BRITAIN WILL INVITE A NEW BERLIN MOVE; REJECTS CUNO NOTE

Cabinet Is Preparing a Separate Reply, to Be Announced in Parliament Today.

But Differs With Paris on the Right to Invade Ruhr and View of Resistance.

Italy Is Reported Backing France —German Press Is Shocked by Franco-Belgian Notes.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, May 7.—The British Government is expected to send its separate reply to the German note in a few days. The Cabinet had before it at its meeting this morning the French and Belgian answers and sent acknowledgements to Paris and Brussels of the courtesy by which the British Foreign Office received a copy of it twenty-four hours before it was sent to Berlin.

Complete reticence is observed in official circles as to the line the British Government will take, but Stanley Baldwin promised the House of Commons this afternoon that a statement should be made tomorrow.

In diplomatic circles, however, attempts were made to minimize the importance of the French refusal to listen to Lord Curzon's appeal for renewed allied unity of action. It was impossible, it was argued, for Great Britain and France to agree upon the terms of a reply to Berlin and consequently nothing could have been gained by the delay in a fruitless search for a common formula. It must not, however, be presumed for a moment, it is declared, that the British Government has any desire to accept the German terms, indeed, a semi-official communique issued today describes that offer as inadequate and unsatisfactory," and Great Britain will certainly require that it be revised materially, but it has no desire to break off negotiations merely because their beginning has been so inauspicious and it will answer in such terms as will invite Germany to make a new offer.

Moreover, there are several points made in the Franco-Belgian reply with which this country cannot agree. It is not so sure that the invasion of the Ruhr is quite clearly authorized under the Treaty of Versailles, or that passive resistance to the forces of occupation is merely a result of orders from Berlin. Consequently, it is maintained, it was quite plain to diplomatists at the end of last week that no conversation would succeed in reconciling the French and British points of view, and it would be useless to enter upon them.

This evening The Standard says this was the view taken by the French Ambassador after his talk with Lord Curzon, and it seemed to him wise to advise his Government to take its own course in the matter of a reply to the German note while still maintaining in all its sincerity its desire to co-operate again with Great Britain as soon as the opportunity presents itself.

It is also suggested here that Lord Curzon's speech may have had the result of inducing Belgium and France to send a reasoned reply to Berlin and not merely a curt refusal, and that this reasoned reply holds out much better hopes for a resumption of negotiations than a short and angry answer.

Italy, it is presumed here, will also now reply to Germany, but there are not likely to be any further consultations concerning it with this Government.

Would Welcome Our Suggestions.

LONDON, May 7 (Associated Press). Official circles here express appreciation over what is felt to be America's sympathetic attitude toward the whole reparations problem.

While the attitude of Washington regarding the latest German proposals and the Franco-Belgian reply is not expected to have a fundamental bearing on the British's Cabinet's decision, it is nevertheless pointed out that America's disinterested counsel and suggestions would, as always, be welcomed in such a complex world problem.

Berlin Officials Say Door Is Not Shut.

BERLIN, May 7 (Associated Press).—Despite the acrimonious tenor of the French reply to the German reparations note, the Foreign Office is not inclined to interpret it as wholly barricading the path to negotiations.

The Foreign Minister, Baron von Rosenberg, devoted the entire morning to a study of the official French text, which, it was stated, revealed several slight variations from the early textual version received late last night.

After this scrutiny it was declared in authoritative quarters that, making due allowance for the polemical harshness which the Germans ascribe to M. Poincaré, the prospects for further discussions are not wholly dissipated.

On the other hand, it is reiterated in official quarters that there can be no compromise on the issue of abandoning the passive resistance to occupation of German territory. Neither, it is added, can the German Government consent to a progressive evacuation of the Ruhr, maintaining its position that the French must withdraw completely from the occupied district before active separation discussion can proceed.

Paris Bars Sale of Stamps to Aid German Resistance

Copyright, 1923, by The New York Times Co.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, May 7.—The Prefecture of Police forbade today the sale of "Rhein Ruhr Hilfe" stamps, which agents of the German Government had put on sale in the French capital. A number of stamps were seized and the Judiciary and the police are actively seeking the persons who introduced them into France. The object of the stamp, as indicated by the name, is to raise funds for the resistance of the French occupation.

The collectors of Paris declare that philately is international, but the French officials take the point of view that if the collectors are unable to restrain their ardor when it is detrimental to France they must be restrained. Supporting the Prefecture, the Prosecutor claims the right to intervention whenever stamps are issued for other purposes than the payment of the carriage on postal matter.

COLUMBIA HOLDS UP $10,000,000 BUILDING

ASYLUM PROJECT PUT OFF

Hebrew Orphanage Abandons $4,000,000 Program for the Present.

The Board of Trustees of Columbia University voted yesterday to suspend temporarily the university's $10,000,000 building program. The present excessive building costs and the uncertainty as to whether these costs may not be even greater in the immediate future, it was announced, forced the trustees to decide to put off the program.

President Nicholas Murray Butler, who made the announcement, said the Trustees regretted the necessity for their action, but intended to authorize the continuance of the building program at the earliest moment that the interests of the university and the public would permit.

The Trustees' action will not affect the completion of the School of Business Building at 116th Street and Broadway, the contract for which was made some months ago. The Faculty House on East Field has just been finished.

No further contracts will be let for the greatly needed woman's dormitory on East Field, the excavation for which will shortly be finished. Plans for the students' hall on South Field, for modern laboratories for research in chemistry, chemical engineering and physics and for the completion of University Hall are all in hand, but no work upon any of these buildings will be authorized at this time.

The announcement followed similar action by the Hebrew Orphan Asylum, which will not erect its new $4,000,000 building until construction prices come down. The present buildings, although inadequate, will be renovated and fireproofed at a cost of $800,000.

Considerable discussion took place in building circles yesterday on the offer of President Michael J. Colleran of the Building Trades Council, who promised to use his efforts to stabilize mechanics wages if manufacturers of building materials and building contractors took similar action.

"So far as we are concerned we welcome a full investigation of the profits made by the contractors and we hope the new Building Emergency Committee will go into this question fully," said C. J. Norman, Chairman of the Board of Governors of the Building Trades Employers' Association. "Conditions have been so chaotic that building contractors have been glad to get their money back. Labor received in 1922 a wage scale which was an increase of between 66.6 per cent. and 150 per cent. over the 1914 wage scale. This does not include any of the snowballed wages where higher rates were paid, notably the plasterers with $12 and $14 a day."

Ten thousand painters began voting yesterday on the question of authorizing their representatives to fix the date for a strike to enforce the journeymen's demands for $10 a day, the five-day week and certain health demands. The men now receive $9 a day. The result of the vote will be known Saturday night.

The strike of stone cutters ended last night when the 2,700 men who walked out last week decided to return to work today and submit their demand for an increase of $2 a day to arbitration.

BIG FORGERY PLOT WITH FAKE ORDERS RIGS STOCK MARKET

Brokers and Speculators Defrauded of Many Thousands by Daring Conspiracy.

BAD CHECKS FOR $1,500,000

Accompany Flood of Buying Orders From 16 Cities Sent to Exchange Firms.

Coup Set for Market Opening—Bucketeers Suspected—Police, Federal and Exchange Inquiries Begun.

Stock brokers and speculators trading on small margins are believed to have been defrauded out of thousands of dollars yesterday by a gang of financial crooks, who flooded Wall Street and the financial centres of other big cities with fake buying orders for active common stocks, accompanied by forged cashiers' checks on out-of-town banks. It was regarded in Wall Street as criminal manipulation of the stock market on the largest scale and in the most daring manner that has ever been attempted.

The manipulators are believed to have been bucket shop proprietors trying to "shake out" their own customers who had been induced to play the market short, and who would be wiped out by a sudden rise in prices, or bear operators who expected to profit by the probable decline in prices which would follow the exposure of the fraudulent nature of the buying orders.

Whoever it was who rigged the market may have won tremendous profits, for some of the brokers who received the fake orders were deceived into executing them before the plot was exposed. If it was the bucket shop crowd, they made their money by the rise in prices at the opening of the market, especially in New York Central and Corn Products, which are said to have been bought heavily on the strength of the fake orders. If it was an outfit of bears, they profited when the market declined after the fraud was shown up, and the brokers who had been deceived rectified their "mistake" by reselling the stocks at the market, taking their losses.

Investigations Into Conspiracy.

Investigations into the conspiracy were commenced by the Post Office Department, the New York police, as well as the police in other cities affected, the New York Stock Exchange, the Better Business Bureau, the American Bankers' Association and the Burns International Detective Agency, representing the bankers. Prosecutions can be started under the Federal laws for using the mails to defraud and under both Federal and State laws for forgery.

So extensive was the plot that brokerage houses in New York City, Boston, Philadelphia, Chicago and Pittsburgh received the fake buying orders and forged checks by mail, at approximately the same time yesterday morning, before the opening of the market, from at least sixteen cities in New York, Massachusetts, Pennsylvania and Indiana.

In this city alone, according to incomplete figures made public by the New York Stock Exchange, 62 fake buying orders were received for 34,326 shares of twelve different common stocks. It was understood that each order went to a different brokerage house, so that at least sixty-two New York Stock Exchange houses are supposed to have received them. Most of the forged checks sent to New York and in other cities affected as well, were for $15,000 each, and the total amount of the forgeries was estimated at $1,500,000.

The list of Stock Exchange houses that received the fake orders was not made public, but information gathered in Wall Street showed that among the firms which the tricksters tried to victimize were Hornblower & Weeks, Pynchon & Co., Knauth, Nachod & Kuhne, Block, Maloney & Co., Mann, Fell & Peake, H. F. McConnell & Co., Laidlaw & Co., Strong, Sturgis & Co. and R. M. Simpson & Co.

Orders for Delivery of Stocks.

In each case the letter giving the fake order called for the delivery of stock to a New York bank which was the correspondent for the out-of-town bank represented as ordering the stock for the account of a client, and in all cases the signatures to the letters and checks were declared to be spurious when they were submitted to the New York correspondents. Among the New

LONDON, May 7 (Associated Press).—That large part of the British public which looks with avidity to the Royal Academy for a picture "with a story" has been intrigued by Sir William Orpen's arresting canvas, "The Unknown British Soldier in France."

The picture represents a coffin, decked with the Union Jack and guarded by two ghostlike comrades, nude but for helmets and boots, over whose heads hover two cherubs in conventional attitude. The background is the magnificent Mirror Hall at Versailles, where the peace treaty was signed, and cavalry is outlined in the distance through the vista.

What induced Sir William to conceive this work, which was painted under agreement for the British Imperial War Museum, has been the subject of much critical gossip, especially as regards the fat cherubs, which contrast strangely with the corpselike warriors below.

One critic objected to the "irrigating sentiment and accessories"; another declared the picture "is almost flippant in spirit and out of keeping with its sacred significance." A third critic spoke of "ironical and satirical intentions," while others took similar lines of comment.

Sir William Orpen in reply has explained that it had been arranged that he should group in Mirror Hall "the twoscore of politicians, Generals and Admirals who won the war." This took him nine months.

"And then," Sir William adds, "I just could not go on. It all seemed so unimportant, somehow, beside reality as I had seen it and felt it when working with the armies. So I rubbed out all the statesmen, Admirals and Generals and painted the picture as it now it."

Sir William added that he had satirized nobody and that he did not intend to set any problem.

"I painted the picture in all seriousness and humility," he added.

Colorado Governor Is Urged To Appoint Mrs. Kerr Senator

Special to The New York Times.

COLORADO SPRINGS, May 7.—Governor Sweet has received a petition from Colorado women's clubs to appoint Mrs. Lillian H. Kerr of this city to the vacancy caused by the recent death of United States Senator Samuel D. Nicholson.

Colorado Poet Laureate, Mrs. L. A. Miller, and the State Regent of the Daughters of the American Revolution, Mrs. Herbert H. Haden, are among the leaders in the movement. Governor Sweet has promised to consider the question.

Mrs. Kerr is a club leader, writer and lecturer. She has had experience as an office holder.

HARDING SAYS NATION WANTS WORLD COURT

Writes That the Heart, Conscience and Judgment of the People Are For It.

'VICIOUS OBSTACLES' IN MIND

Tells Women's Convention at Atlanta That He Believes Obstruction Must Fail.

ATLANTA, Ga., May 7 (Associated Press).—The "national heart, conscience and judgment are alike enlisted" in the movement for American adherence to the World Court of International Justice, "and against these we need never fear that any opposition will prevail," President Harding declared in a letter read here tonight to the council of the General Federation of Women's Clubs.

"Not since I have been President has there been in connection with any great question of public policy so impressive a demonstration of substantially unified opinion," he wrote. "It convinces me that as the discussion proceeds the evidence of this attitude will become so overwhelming that there will at least be no vicious obstacles to attaining the ends sought."

The President's letter was addressed to Mrs. Thomas G. Winter, President of the General Federation. It reads:

"I am writing to acknowledge my appreciation of the invitation to address the convention of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, and to express my regret that it is not possible to accept. The broad and intelligent interest which this great organization has taken in public affairs, and its splendidly effective effort to insure that the nation shall derive the utmost advantage from the full participation of womanhood in the responsibility of public life, entitle the federation to be ranked among the great constructive and educating forces of the land.

Has No Doubt of Support.

"It has been most enheartening to learn of the attitude of this great organization, so long devoted to the consideration of public problems and so well trained in that field, toward the proposal that our country signify its adherence to the World Court of International Justice. You will, I am sure, be interested to know that the evidence of nation-wide judgment upon this issue, which comes to me from every part of the country and the every element of our citizenship, are such as to leave no doubt that the overwhelming preponderance favors the step which has been proposed.

"Furthermore there are multiplied and increasing evidences that these judgments are being reached as the result of earnest, deliberate and studious consideration of the subject in all respects. The assurances which are received in increasing numbers day by day leave no doubt as to the community's mind. There is a profound conviction that our obligation to human society and likewise our very material interest equally demand that this nation shall give this sincere and effective proof of its wish to co-operate in eliminating the causes of strife among the nations and peoples. I have wanted you and your associates of the federation to know of these accumulating evidences of a firmly crystallizing opinion.

"The national heart, conscience and judgment are alike enlisted, and against these we need never fear that any opposition will prevail.

Confidence in the Present Court.

"Especially I am glad to be able to tell you that there is evidence of a thoroughly practical attitude as regards our adherence to the court already created and functioning. It is plainly the considered judgment of the country that if we are to unite with other nations in a world-making effort to establish adjudication of international differences we should adhere to the court which is already in being.

"That court, in its constitution, represents the matured thought and purpose of men who have given most expert consideration to the subject. It is difficult to believe that a more representative, more impartial, a more able tribunal could be established under any other plan. But in any case, the present court is actually in existence. Its jurisdiction, defined by its protocol of foundation, has been accepted by a large number of nations.

"It may well be doubted whether the nations which in good faith have given support to this program, would esteem it either a helpful or friendly gesture on our part, if we should indicate our willingness to join in a judicial establishment, but should insist that it must be some other than the one already put up. To adopt that attitude would seem unlikely to bring us far on the road to effective participation in such a system. On the contrary, it might be regarded as implying our lack of faith in a tribunal which has the support and confidence of a group of nations.

"In short, the opinion of the country plainly is that if we have any sincere purpose of adhering to the procedure of international adjudication, our only way to give convincing evidence of this disposition is to accept, under such restrictions as may be found necessary, the tribunal already created.

"Not since I have been President has there been, in connection with any great question of public policy, so impressive a demonstration of substantially unified opinion.

"It convinces me that as the discussion proceeds the evidence of this attitude will become so overwhelming that there will at least be no vicious obstacle to attaining the end sought. I am writing thus frankly and fully my view of the situation, because to do this is the best acknowledgment I can make of the great obligation which I feel toward the federation for its counsel and support."

2,000 FLEE SUBWAY, CHOKED BY FUMES 60 FT. BELOW STREET

Ten Are Sent to Hospitals and 100 Treated After Rescues by Police and Firemen.

PANIC IN ONE CROWDED CAR

Women Trampled Upon and Windows Smashed as Dense Smoke Adds to Alarm.

SHORT CIRCUIT ON EXPRESS

Accident Occurs at Rush Hour on Jerome Avenue Line—No Extinguishers Used, Says Hedley.

Choking from acrid fumes caused by a short circuit sixty feet below the street in Lexington Avenue last night, 2,000 passengers had to be assisted from a subway train by firemen and policemen. About 100 of those on the train—a northbound Lexington Avenue express which had reached Sixty-eighth Street—suffered so severely that they needed medical attention. Ten were sent to hospitals.

Passengers in one car, panic-stricken as the atmosphere slowly grew more unbearable, fought and scrambled for freedom, women suffering severely as frantic men tossed them aside, forced their way to windows and smashed the glass. The mishap came just at the rush hour, when men, women and children were jammed tight in each of the ten cars.

The accident was similar in many respects to that in the Lexington Avenue subway last July 6, when more than 150 persons were nearly asphyxiated by fumes, and it occurred at about the same point on the line.

When the heavily laden train, with about 200 persons seated and standing in each car, had reached Fifty-ninth Street, where last year's accident occurred, the motorman of the train and the conductor smelled smoke. This was followed, according to passengers, by a blinding flash beneath the fifth car of the rapidly moving express and dense smoke which filled the car.

Motorman Ridder, sensing trouble behind, finding that he was getting power from the third rail, and realizing what the blinding flash meant, crowded on all speed and brought the train to a jolting stop in the tunnel at Sixty-eighth Street, about sixty feet below the level of the street.

Fight in Crowded Car.

So tightly wedged in that they could make only feeble efforts to reach the doors, the passengers in the fifth car fought each other and kicked through windows in their efforts to let out the smoke. Women who attempted to leave their seats were knocked to the concrete floor of the car, and one, Mrs. Amanda Carlson of 323 Willis Avenue, the Bronx, suffered a broken leg, the result, she told physicians, of the mad rush for doors.

Passengers in the fourth and sixth cars, in a similar state of excitement, also attempted to make their way out of the smoke-filled zone into other cars.

Ridder and Conductor Szarano, aided by guards, directed passengers who were scrambling from the train, to make their escape through the emergency exits. The first woman to reach the upper level, or the local subway station, in safety, ran out to the street and around to the East Sixty-seventh Street Police Station, between Lexington and Third Avenues. She was Mrs. Alfreda T. Kraemer of 107 East Sixty-seventh Street, and she knew just what to do in the circumstances.

Inspector Thomas MacDonald and Captain James Wall were in the station when Mrs. Kraemer rushed up to the Lieutenant's desk.

Quick Work for Rescues.

Inspector MacDonald called the reserves, and firemen from the adjoining fire house were notified. It took the firemen a minute to get around the corner, and Battalion Chief Laut, descending into the smoke-filled tunnel, sent in a second alarm of fire. He directed his men to carry the injured, some of whom already were being carried through the emergency exits by fellow-passengers, to the Presbyterian Hospital, on the northwest corner of Park Avenue and Seventieth Street. Firemen passed their burdens along to the police, and in a few minutes the

AMERICAN OFFICER SLAIN, PEKING HEARS; BANDITS UNDER ATTACK; WOMEN FREED; OUR TROOPS MAY MARCH TO THE RESCUE

Names of Eighteen Americans Kidnapped in China; Eight Have Been Released or Escaped the Bandits

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—An official statement issued this afternoon with the approval of Secretary Hughes gave the names of eighteen Americans believed to have been on the train raided yesterday in Shantung by Chinese bandits. The statement said that seven of the Americans originally held escaped or were released. These included Miss Lucy T. Aldrich, sister-in-law of John D. Rockefeller Jr.

The Americans reported as having been on the train when it was held up are:

Major Roland W. Pinger, Ordnance Department, U. S. A., and Mrs. Pinger and their two sons, en route from Manila to Peking. Mrs. Pinger reported rescued.

Major Robert A. Allen, Medical Corps, U. S. A.; Mrs. Allen and their one son, en route from Manila to Peking. Mrs. Allen reported rescued.

Miss Lucy T. Aldrich of Warwick, R. I., and her maid. Both reported released.

Miss Edith M. Schonberg of Naugatuck, Conn. Reported released.

Miss Minnie McFadden of Ogdensburg. Reported released.

Larry Lehrbas. Reported to have escaped.

L. C. Solomon of New York City.

Leon Friedman of Chicago.

J. A. Henley of San Francisco.

Mr. — Levy.

J. B. Powell, correspondent of The Chicago Tribune and editor of The Far Eastern Review of Shanghai.

Allen Child.

A message from Mrs. Pinger received in Berkeley, Cal., reports the release of her youngest son with her. This would make eight who have been freed.

Robert P. Scripps was at first reported on the train, but it was later found that he had not traveled on it.

WASHINGTON READY FOR DRASTIC ACTION

Relies on Schurman's Judgment That Will Have Our Troops Move if Need Is Seen.

SITUATION CALLED SERIOUS

Details Come to Hughes of Hold-Up and the Crisis That Has Developed From It.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—A possibility that American troops may be used with those of other nations having forces in China to hunt down the bandits who held up the Shanghai-Peking express loomed up here today. The final decision will probably depend upon the outcome of a conference of the diplomatic corps in Peking tomorrow. Jacob Gould Schurman, the American Minister, will attend this council, and it is understood that this Government will be guided by his recommendations and support any action he feels compelled to sanction in the crisis caused by the wholesale kidnapping of foreigners.

Officials in Washington would regret any development that would require the use of troops, but recognize that when the protection of Americans is at stake they will have to be guided by the trend of events, and especially by the judgment of Minister Schurman after his conferences with Chinese officials and his colleagues in the Diplomatic Corps.

Unless the Americans and foreigners are promptly released and the weak Government at Peking shows sufficient ability to cope with the situation, which is regarded as very serious, it would be no surprise if the diplomats at Peking should recommend concerted action by the foreign powers and dispatch an expedition against the bandits.

These forces of the powers are now at Tientsin:

United States—Two battalions of the Fifteenth Infantry, consisting of thirty-five officers and 885 men.

Great Britain—Thirty-one officers and 933 men.

France—Twenty-four officers and 1,060 men.

Japan—Fifty-nine officers and 1,082 men.

Netherlands—One officer and seventy-six men.

MISS ALDRICH FREED; FOUND IN TSEETSUN

Mrs. Rockefeller's Sister's Condition Is Not Serious, Though Bandits Carried Her Off.

CAPTORS SPAT ON WOMEN

Beat Them Also, Says Eyewitness, When They Lagged Behind in Barefoot March.

SHANGHAI, May 7 (Associated Press).—Miss Lucy T. Aldrich, sister-in-law of John D. Rockefeller Jr., of New York, who was carried off by the Chinese bandits who held up the Peking express at Lincheng Sunday morning, is free and unharmed, according to a message received this evening from Lincheng.

Miss Aldrich, the message said, was found today in the village of Tseet-sun, on a branch line railroad, fifteen miles from the main line to Peking. Her condition is not serious, the message said, and she is proceeding to Tsi-nan-Fu, Province of Shantung.

Miss McFadden, her traveling companion, and Miss Corallil, her maid, were released with Miss Aldrich.

Lloyd Lehrbas, reporter on the China Press of Shanghai, formerly of Pocatello, Idaho, and of The Chicago Tribune, who escaped from the bandits, arrived today with the first eyewitness story of the affair.

Lehrbas said he was in the hands of the brigands for three hours. With the others captured on the train, men and women, most of them clad only in their night clothes as they were routed from their berths, he was driven from the scene of the hold-up in his bare feet, while the guards about the party continually menaced them with revolvers and rifles.

The captives were driven forward at high speed over rough country. Women whose pace was slower than that of the men were shoved ahead as they fell behind, beaten when they could travel no faster and spat upon as they fell alongside the trail, worn out.

Husbands of the helpless women were forced to leave their wives where they had fallen or were driven on ahead as the women dropped to the rear, unable to keep up with the main party despite the beatings administered by their guards.

The bandit who was guarding Lehrbas, the newspaper man said, was laden with loot, wrapped in a sheet snatched from a berth in the train. He dropped some of his booty, and as he stooped to recover it Lehrbas said he crawled away into the darkness and hid in the tall grass.

Lehrbas gave the names of the following as being in the party of which he was a member as the bandits drove them into the hills:

Major Robert Allen, U. S. A. Medical Corps; Major Roland Pinger, U. S. A. Ordnance Department; their wives and Roland Pinger, aged 8, who still is a captive with his father, and Edward Pinger, aged 4, who later was released with his mother; Robert Allen, son of Major Allen, still held captive; J. A. Hinley and C. Jacobson.

Lehrbas said he saw a white man, who had been traveling in a third-class carriage of the train, shot dead by the brigands.

All the passengers lost everything they had with them except the night clothes in which they slept when the bandits raided the train.

Lehrbas said he first knew something was wrong when he was awakened by the train bumping over the stretch of track which had been torn up by the brigands. Then followed a volley of shots that broke the windows in the coaches along the entire train.

The newspaper man said he wedged himself under the berth and remained there while, one after another, five bandits searched the compartment. A sixth discovered Lehrbas's hand extended from beneath the berth and wrenched a gold ring from his finger. Then the bandit thrust the muzzle of his carbine under the berth and Lehrbas crawled out to join the other captives.

Report Americans Killed, Forced Into Firing Zone

PEKING, May 7.—The Chinese received word tonight that troops today attacked the bandits, whereupon the outlaws put the foreigners in the front lines. It is stated that two Americans and one Englishman were shot.

This appears to confirm another report that one American army officer was shot after Major Pinger disappeared.

PEKING, May 7 (Associated Press).—Unconfirmed reports have been received here that the Suchow train bandits have killed one or two of their prisoners.

PEKING, May 8 (Associated Press).—The Chinese bandits, who in the daring holdup of the Peking express train near Suchow Sunday, kidnapped the passengers, have demanded a ransom of $1,000,000, in addition to a pardon for all involved, according to advices received here. The diplomatic representatives of the foreign governments are conferring on what action to take.

PEKING, May 7.—Scenes of indescribable horror occurred yesterday when more than 1,000 Chinese bandits derailed the northbound Shanghai-Peking express near Lincheng station in Shantung, robbed the passengers of their valuables and drove off many of them to the hills.

The passengers were asleep when the raid was made and the bandits forced them to get out in their night clothes.

The foreign passengers are believed to have numbered thirty-six, the majority of whom were Americans. The Chinese passengers are estimated at 300. One Britisher was killed on the first volley. A Frenchman was killed later resisting capture. Six foreigners escaped, as well as twenty-three Chinese. Among the captured Americans are: Major Pinger and his two children; Major Allen, his wife and child, J. B. Powell and others. Mrs. Pinger escaped.

A special train brought up the refugees to Peking. The legations consider the outrage the most serious in recent years. The American Minister was due to leave for that neighborhood this week to inspect important works on the Yellow River. His departure now will probably be delayed.

Englishman Is Killed.

PEKING, May 7 (Associated Press).—Twenty foreigners, many of them Americans including two American army officers, are tonight in the hands of the Chinese brigands, who raided the Peking Express Sunday morning at Suchow, Province of Kingsu, and at that time, shot dead one English passenger named Bothman and drove scores of others, white and natives, off like a herd of cattle.

Advices received here from several sources indicate that the women among the white passengers were not released only after they had been beaten and spat upon by their captors in an effort to make them keep up with the fast-moving cavalcade as it traveled through the darkness away from the scene of the hold-up.

Several of the women are said to have dropped from exhaustion and the bandits left them where they fell, refusing to permit their husbands to stop and render assistance.

One of the women was Miss Lucy T. Aldrich, sister-in-law of John D. Rockefeller Jr., of New York. Late today it was definitely established that she had been released and was unharmed in a small village fifteen miles from the main line of the railroad where the hold-up was staged.

Among the prisoners still believed to be held captive are Major Roland Pinger of the United States Army in the Philippines, with his children, Roland Jr., aged 8, and Major Robert Allen, also of the American Army in the Philippines, with his son Robert.

Larry Lehrbas, formerly of Pocatello, Idaho, a newspaper man, who was one of the captives, escaped after traveling under guard for three hours.

Bandits Drove Off Troops.

The bandits, heavily armed, and outnumbering soldiers of the Peking Government who were guarding the railroad, first drove off the troops and then tore up the track.

7,500-Mile Radio Links Holland to Indies As World's Largest Stations Begin Service

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, May 7.—It is undoubtedly due to Holland's far distant colonies, which were completely cut off from the motherland during the recent war, that service from the most powerful wireless station in the world, carrying messages 7,500 miles between the Netherlands and the Dutch East Indies, was begun today by a message to Queen Wilhelmina from the Dutch East Indian Government.

It was after the experiences of the recent war that a great effort was made to link up Holland with her colonies. It has taken four years to complete the stations at Kootwyk, Holland, and Bandoeng, Hava, which are built on the plans of the Nauen wireless station in Germany by the Telefunken Company. These stations cover an area of 750 acres, and are 7,500 miles apart.

It is also the first wireless to cross the equator, which, according to one of the directors of the technical department of the State Telegraph Company, greatly increases the severity of atmospheric conditions and causes difficulties of transmission.

The director stated that new wave lengths were continually being tried, and that the most satisfactory one so far was the 8,400 meters, especially for use after sunset, which will be the regular transmitting and receiving time. He said that for sending messages during sunlight a much longer wave length was necessary, namely, 16,500 meters.

Owing to the severe atmospheric conditions, however, these stations can only work regularly after sunset, and, with the difference in time, are restricted to a six-hour work day, the director continued. The new wireless station will, however, probably be used for communication with the United States during the remainder of the time. Owing to their atmospheric conditions, the Dutch Indies are able to transmit much more satisfactorily than receive.

The Kootwyk and Bandoeng stations are equipped with duplex instruments enabling them to receive and transmit simultaneously. The receiving and transmitting stations in both cases have been built at a considerable distance from each other in order to prevent interference.

These stations have been sending trial messages intermittently for six months and continual efforts have been made to improve conditions.

Seven and a half million guilders were expended on each station and the working expenditure is rather heavy, but, as the director pointed out, messages sent to the Colonies by the new wireless are entirely for the profit of the Netherlands Government, whereas up to the present foreign cable companies took a large percentage of the profit.

There is no doubt that Holland's new wireless stations are considered much more important politically than economically or commercially. She now feels independent of foreign cable connection in event of war.

opened a fusillade from their earthwork, shattering the car windows and rousing the occupants of the sleepers.

The marauders went through the train, seizing everything portable, and then drove off upward of thirty white passengers and approximately a hundred native travelers. One man fell before a bandit's bullet. His name was given as Rothman and his nationality as British.

Without giving their captives an opportunity to dress, the Chinese gang forced them at high speed over the rough country in their bare feet. Some fortunate ones eluded the brigands and hid in the tall grass, but the remainder were herded along under the guns of their captors.

When the bandits had departed the soldiers arrived and took up the chase. Later advices were received that the troops had come up with the raiders and were firing on them, to which the brigands are said to have replied that they would kill their prisoners unless the troops withdrew. The Government had instructed the Military Governors of the neighboring provinces to turn out their soldiery.

An American of the name of Zimmerman arrived in Tientsin. He said that he escaped through a window of the train when it was held up and remained in hiding until the bandits left. Zimmerman said the desperadoes first combed the train, robbing the passengers, rifling baggage and then rounding up and abducting their victims.

One report was that the train slowed down perceptibly before it reached that portion of the track which had been torn up by the bandits. It was suggested that this might have meant collusion between the train crew and the robbers. However, the train crew was taken with the passengers. The relief train which was sent to the scene has picked up those passengers who escaped and is taking them to Tientsin.

The motive for the train hold-up and the subsequent kidnappings is believed to be to force the Peking Government to reinstate the kidnappers, mostly discharged soldiers.

Rob Passengers of Valuables.

TIEN-TSIN, May 7 (Associated Press).—A relief train arrived here this morning with a party of foreigners who escaped when the Shanghai-Peking express train was held up yesterday by a large force of bandits at Lincheng. In the party were Mrs. Robert Allen and Mrs. Pinger and the latter's younger son. The women stated that their husbands, who are Majors in the American Army, and the Pingers' elder son were kidnapped.

The Americans told a graphic tale of their experiences. The bandits, they said, started firing upon the train before it was derailed, and swarmed about it, smashing the windows with their hatchets, when it was brought to a standstill. They then entered the cars and robbed the passengers of all their valuables, visiting some of the coaches three times to be sure of missing nothing. One foreigner was killed, but his identity was not known to the party arriving here.

It was nearly two hours after the train had been stopped that a warning whistle was blown and the bandits decamped with their captives. A few of the foreigners escaped by hiding in the long grass, but more than twenty were carried off, including six women. Mrs. Allen and Mrs. Pinger were left behind when it was found they were unable to keep up with the fast pace set by the bandits.

Major Pinger and his wife kept in touch for a time by shouting to each other, but the voice of the Major, who was ahead, grew fainter and finally ceased, and his wife returned to the train with her younger son.

It is estimated that about 125 passengers were kidnapped, most of them in their night attire and without their baggage. They were forced to walk barefoot over the broken glass in the vicinity of the train and were hustled by their brutal guards over the rough country as the bandits fled in fear of pursuit.

Soldiers arrived at the scene soon after the departure of the raiding party, and the Government ordered the Tuchuns (Military Governors) of the neighboring provinces immediately to take up the pursuit.

The Tsin-Pu Railway Company reports that six more foreigners and five Chinese have escaped from or been released by the bandits. They include Miss Aldrich and Miss McFadden, Miss Schonberg, Mrs. Coralti and Messrs. Day and Jacobsen. All of them are expected to arrive here tonight.

Reports One American Killed.

SHANGHAI, May 7.—A telegram from Lincheng states:

"The soldiers must withdraw immediately or the bandits will kill all the foreigners."

Later this message was received:

"The bandits have been surrounded by the soldiers and there has been continuous firing from both sides since last night. A report that one American was shot is authentic. It is reported that all the women have been released, but the men are in grave danger."

Another message stated:

"The bandits are divided into six groups ten miles from Lincheng. A small military group is pursuing; the situation is serious. Nineteen foreigners are still held."

The railroad company has announced the following passengers who booked passage on the derailed train to Peking: F. W. Pratt and wife, M. N. and Vera M. Bembe, A. L. Zimmerman, V. Rymovitch, G. D. Muso, Miss Carail, L. Y Yang, Mr. Hong, Leon Friedman, J. A. Healey, R. Pinger, E. Pinger, R. A. Allen, wife and child; Miss L. T. Aldrich.

Miss McFadden, Miss Schonberg, Mr. Hins, Miss E. Fleming, Mrs. Seaton, Miss L. Auld, Fred Elias, E. Elias, Theo Saphire, E. Gensburger, Mr. Day, Mr. Chen, Mr. Jacobson, L. C. Solomon, H. W. Pinger and wife, Mr. Chang, T. E. Powell and Larry Lehrbas.

Some of the passengers were going to Tsinan to join Minister Jacob Gould Schurman for a ceremonious inspection of a huge dike and construction job along the Yellow River in Shantung, which is almost completed by the Asia Development Corporation. Mr. Powell was going there.

The latest reports received through consular channels state that the Chinese troops, pursuing the bandits, have become sufficiently close to begin parleys with the bandits and talking has replaced the shooting.

Americans and British Protest.

PEKING, May 7.—One hundred and thirteen captives, including twenty-eight foreigners, mostly Americans, were carried off by the Shantung bandits who held up a Shanghai-Peking train at Lincheng yesterday, while J. Rothman, a British subject, was killed. Both the American and British Legations here have filed strong protests with the Chinese Foreign Office.

A meeting of the Diplomatic Corps here is waiting the return of United States Minister Jacob G. Schurman.

Withdrawal of recognition of the Peking Government is being considered, but, owing to the possibility that such action would involve the vacation of properties exacted over fifty years, the Legations are consulting their home Governments.

Some days probably will be required in trading all the passengers, but only six of the thirty-five first-class passengers escaped. Those who escaped included the wives of Majors Pinger and Allen and Mrs. Pinger's youngest son, who was left behind owing to exhaustion.

The Government has ordered troops from Chili, Shantung, Anhwei and Kiangsu Provinces to search for the bandits, but the outcome is very doubtful, as such a disposition will aid in the prospects of civil war.

President Li Yuan Hung has sent a messenger to Paotingfu asking the approval of Tsao Kun, the Chili war lord, for the issuance of a mandate dismissing the military and civil Governors of Shantung for their failure to protect the railway, but these men are strong henchmen of Tsao Kun, who doubtless will fear to remove them, especially when their co-operation is necessary to obtain the release of the captives from the bandits.

Killing of Captives Feared.

The bandits carried their half-clad prisoners into the mountains northeast of Lincheng where they are reasonably safe from injury. Even should the troops give evidence of sincerity in their attacks, it is quite possible that the bandits either will put their captives in the front ranks or kill them to further discredit the Government. Therefore, the situation is far more serious than the mere captures of half-clad foreigners who unused to the rough Chinese fare would suffer consequent privations.

SHANGHAI, May 7 (Associated Press).—Señor Ancira, paper mill magnate of Guadalajaran, Mexico, and his wife, who had been visiting in Shanghai, are among the prisoners held by the Suchow train bandits.

Headquarters of the Scripps-Howard newspapers announced last night that they had received a cablegram announcing the safety of Robert P. Scripps, their editorial director, who is in Peking. The message said that Mr. Scripps was not on board the Peking express wrecked by Chinese bandits.

MANILA CIRCLES ARE STIRRED.

Two Majors Kidnapped in China Were Popular There.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MANILA, May 7.—The kidnapping of Major Pinger and Major Allen has stirred local army circles, wherein both were popular. Pinger being Assistant Department of Ordnance Officer at Fort Santiago, Manila. Both left April 6 on two months leave.

Complete co-operation is known to exist between army and State Department representatives in China, and great confidence is expressed in General Conner, who has commanded the China station since April 1, when that station was separated from the Philippine department. It is not believed that local assistance will be required.

The Philippine garrison consists of 2,500 white and 9,500 Filipino troops.

STANDARD STARTS INQUIRIES.

Agents in China Seek Definite News of Miss Aldrich.

While relatives of Miss Lucy T. Aldrich, sister of Mrs. John D. Rockefeller Jr., and officials of the Standard Oil Company were endeavoring to learn by cable and through the State Department of the fate of Miss Aldrich, other families in New York were trying in different ways to get information of relatives who might have been traveling with Miss Aldrich in the party which was kidnapped by Chinese bandits. No definite information concerning them was received here yesterday other than through press dispatches.

In an effort to establish the fate of Miss Aldrich, the Standard Oil Company rapidly set in motion its machinery in China and elsewhere. At the offices of the company, 27 Broadway, it was explained that the company's representatives in China had been requested by cable to make every effort to get in touch with Miss Aldrich and to communicate any news concerning her immediately to the Standard's offices.

The only information from China concerning the raid that was received by the Standard was in this cable dispatch:

Shanghai, May 6, 1923.

Miss Aldrich in party on Peking train held up by bandits. Out of the thirty-four foreigners on the train ten are safe, names unknown. In conjunction with legation, we are doing everything possible. Will keep you advised.

STANDARD OIL COMPANY OF NEW YORK.

It was said at the offices of Winthrop W. Aldrich of the law firm of Murray, Prentice & Aldrich, 37 Wall Street, that Mr. Aldrich had received no direct information concerning his sister during the day.

At the offices of John D. Rockefeller Jr., a reassuring view as to the safety of Mr. Rockefeller's sister-in-law came in a telegram from Charles F. Meyer, Vice President of the Standard Oil Company of New York, at San Francisco. He expressed the belief that no harm, other than mental distress, would befall Miss Aldrich and other members of the party waylaid by the bandits. His telegram was:

San Francisco, May 6, 1923.

Mrs. Meyer and I are very deeply distressed to read here newspaper dispatches regarding the capture of Miss Lucy Aldrich by bandits between Shanghai and Peking. Feel confident of prompt relief by troops and regular Chinese Generals. When Mrs. Meyer last saw Miss Aldrich at Kyoto she was in best of health and spirits just before leaving Shanghai. On account of large number of tourists reported captured, undoubtedly immediate action in force will be taken by Chinese military authorities. Beyond temporary inconvenience and natural mental distress, believe ladies captured will be generously treated.

CHARLES F. MEYER.

The raid of the large force of bandits on the train was called yesterday by the Rev. Handel Y. Y. Li of Nanking, China, acting Chinese Secretary of the Board of Foreign Missions of the Methodist Episcopal Church, 150 Fifth Avenue, the most extensive anti-foreign action in China since the Boxer uprising. Mr. Li spent most of his life in Nanking, opposite Pukow, which is the terminus of the railroad on which the attack was made.

"Bandit raids are infrequent in North China," said Mr. Li, "and the occurrence of such an attack as this on a train is regarded as most serious by mission officials administering work in China. Even down in Fukien, South China, and Szechuan, West China, where hostilities between Northern and Southern troops make banditry comparatively easy, such a daring attempt would be alarming.

It is probable that the attack was planned by bandits who learned that the travelers on the express train included Miss Aldrich, a member of one of the richest families of the world, according to the Rev. R. Le Torrey of the Board of Foreign Missions, who formerly was a missionary to China. Assuming that Miss Aldrich's identity was learned, Mr. Torrey believes it is certain that the bandits would use such a hostage as the basis for excessive demands.

He predicted that the bandits would stop short only of bringing on an armed expedition against their band, an expedient which he regarded as unlikely of adoption by the Chinese Central Government unless it is compelled to do so by the United States and some other Government.

"In such an event," said Mr. Torrey, "the famous Christian General Feng Yu Hsiang, called the 'Chinese Cromwell,' commanding the Eleventh Division of the Chinese Army, will be sent against them with his Christian soldiers whom he has welded into the most formidable fighting unit in China.

"General Feng, with his unit, is now at Peking and within easy striking distance of the place where the raid occurred. Outside the possibility of General Feng being sent against the bandits, the chances are for a long period of negotiations before any satisfactory settlement can be obtained, owing to the unsteady condition of the Central Government at Peking."

Other officials of the Board of Foreign Missions who are familiar with the general situation in China concurred in the belief of Mr. Torrey. In addition some of them suggested that the move was planned by the bandits to corral important hostages whom they could exchange for some of their own leaders now facing execution. Frequently they time a raid to fall just before the death blow of the executioner. Usually they kidnap high officials of the Chinese Government rather than foreigners. According to the mission representatives, the bandits are seldom so daring that they will provoke foreign Governments to send punitive expeditions against them.

While the bandit forces as a rule are composed of military deserters who became dissatisfied when they failed to get their pay, other bands of marauders are attracted to the leadership of a Chinese politician inciting to lawlessness as a means of discrediting his opponent. It was said that bandit chiefs nearly always through driving hard bargains with the Government, win important concessions of land in particular as well as pardon for their criminal activities. In some cases bandits in China, through the mediation of missionaries, have made their peace with the forces of law and order and returned to the pursuits of peace.

At the Board of Foreign Missions it was predicted that missionaries would act as the emissaries seeking the release of the present group of hostages. The missionaries are trusted by all groups in China, where for political reasons the bandits are little inclined to place confidence in Government officials. Wounded bandits have sought shelter frequently in the past at the posts of missionaries, who often have been rewarded with gratitude. Often they have sought the good offices of the missionaries in settling disputes between opposing factions of bandits.

JOHN D. JR. IS RELIEVED.

Gets News of Release of Sister-in-Law While Working on Home.

SEAL HARBOR, Me., May 7.—John D. Rockefeller Jr., clad in his working clothes and an old brown slouch hat, paused in his activities of building a new Summer house at his country home here today to thank The Associated Press for its prompt news service from China. Through The Associated Press Mr. Rockefeller learned yesterday that his sister-in-law, Miss Lucy Aldrich, now on a world tour, had been kidnapped by bandits who attacked the Shanghai-Peking express near the Shantung border and carried off 150 passengers. Today from the same source he was informed that Miss Aldrich and other women passengers had been released.

"When I was told yesterday that Miss Aldrich was believed to be among those kidnapped, I called up our offices in New York," Mr. Rockefeller said. "Nothing had been heard there from China. Then I called up Secretary Hughes at Washington, whom I know well personally. I asked him to do what he could. I did not make any request other than any citizen might make in like circumstances.

"I gave Secretary Hughes the first news he had received of the kidnapping incident. Naturally, we are all greatly relieved at today's news, and I wish to express my appreciation to The Associated Press for keeping us informed. The Standard Oil Company heard nothing at all of the incident.

When the correspondent arrived here today he found Mr. Rockefeller attired in belted mackinaw and old gray trousers superintending a group of workmen in the building of the new Summer house.

Get Word of Persons Kidnapped by Chinese Bandits.

HANNIBAL, Mo., May 7.—Verification of the capture of John B. Powell, former Missourian, by Chinese bandits was received today by J. P. Hinton of Hannibal. Powell's father-in-law, in a cablegram from Mrs. Powell, who is in Shanghai.

In 1916 Powell went to Shanghai becoming associated with Millard's Review, an American business publication, of which he later acquired control. He spent several months in the United States during the Washington Disarmament Conference as a special representative of American business interests in the Far East and an adviser to the Chinese delegation.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 7.—Leon Friedman, reported among the Americans captured by the Chinese bandits, is believed here to be a former promoter of aeronautical and other public events, who came from Kansas to San Francisco with his brother, Max Friedman, about ten years ago. Leon Friedman was manager for Ruth Law, aviatrix, and Art Smith, aviator. The Friedmans went to Shanghai to open a public garage.

TOLEDO, Ohio, May 7.—Mrs. Negley D. Cochran, wife of the former editor of The Toledo News-Bee, received word from headquarters of the Scripps-Howard Newspaper Syndicate today that Mr. Cochran and their daughter Dorothy are among those held captive by Chinese bandits.

BERKELEY, Cal., May 7.—The following cablegram was received today by Mrs. George H. Blacker from her daughter, Mrs. Roland W. Finger, wife of Major Finger, who is being held by Chinese bandits:

"I and Edward are safe. Expect relief soon. Others held."

Edward is the Fingers' 3-year-old son. Another son, Roland Jr., aged 9, is being held by the bandits.

BIG FORGERY PLOT RIGS STOCK MARKET

York banks named as correspondents were the Guaranty Trust, City, Chase, Irving Bank-Columbia Trust, Hanover, National Bank of Commerce, Seaboard, American Exchange, New York Trust and National Park Bank.

The stocks ordered from the New York brokers were all market leaders—New York Central, Chile Copper, Tobacco Products, American Tobacco, American Sugar, American Car and Foundry, Corn Products, Davison Chemical, American Woolen, Baltimore & Ohio, Westinghouse Electric and Anaconda Copper.

The orders were in lots running from 200 to 1,000 shares each, and some were in mixed lots, such as 350 or 410 shares, so that they had to be executed through two channels, in the regular 100-share lots and in odd lots. Orders came from banks in Amsterdam, Utica and Schenectady, N. Y.; North Adams and Pittsfield, Mass., Huntington, Ind., and Harrisburg, Greensburg, Bethlehem, Altoona, Reading, Uniontown, Johnstown, York, Lancaster and Allentown, Pa. They purported to be for the account of commercial firms—grocery, hardware, baking, lumber, coal, chemical and supply companies, &c.—and for individuals.

Fake Orders Received Here.

The following schedule of the orders received in New York was prepared by the New York Stock Exchange, showing the bank on which the check was drawn, the shares ordered and for whose account:

First National Bank, Harrisburg, Pa., 500 New York Central, Harrisburg Grocery Company.

West Moreland National Bank, Greensburg, Pa., 900 Chile Copper, Borts Hardware Company.

Lehigh Valley National Bank, Bethlehem, for its Tobacco Product, Bethlehem Baking Company.

Altoona Trust Company, Altoona, Pa., 450 New York Central, V. A. Oswald, Altoona, Pa.

Bucket Shop Theory.

The best-informed people in Wall Street believe that the manipulation was the work of bucket shop proprietors rather than bear operators. Since the bucketeers were driven out of New York some months ago they are said to have made Philadelphia and Pittsburgh the principal seats of their swindles. Recent reports from both those cities have stated that thousands of patrons of bucket shop customers had been advised to sell stocks short, and had done so as the result of the recent decline in the market. Thousands of shares were being carried by bucket shop clients on margins of 1½ or 2 points, according to reports.

If yesterday's rigging was a bucket shop affair the bucketeers must have been motivated by fear that the market would continue to decline or would remain a trading affair without any natural rise to wipe out their clients. So, assuming that the bucket shops are to blame, they must have decided to cause an artificial rise which would send prices up enough to wipe out the small margins. If this was the case the procedure was the reverse of the usual bucket shop scheme, which is to clean out their "long" customers on the same kind of small margins.

The next most plausible theory—that the swindle was done by bear operators dependent on crediting the manipulators with such an insight into psychology that they foresaw not only the rise which accompanied the execution of the buying orders, but also the decline that came when brokers who had been "stung" threw their stocks back on the market. Wall Street opinion thinks the bear theory less plausible than the other, for the operation was of such magnitude that only the big bears could have handled it, and Wall Street does not believe that any of those gentlemen would take such chances as yesterday's affair involved.

Even less plausible, Wall Street thinks, is the theory that the trick may have been a straight manoeuvre by bull operators, not connected with bucket shops, but aiming to sell their long stock on the bulge that accompanied the execution of the fake orders. The profits on so simple a transaction before the plot was exposed, Wall Street thinks, would not be enough to compensate for the great outlay of time and money that must have been necessary to put through the scheme.

No Chance of Getting Stock.

There is no possibility at all that the schemers expected ever to get control of the stock they ordered with the forged checks, because if any of the stock had been delivered it would have gone to the out-of-town banks or their New York correspondents, and not to the swindlers.

Whoever the manipulators are, it is obvious that they must have had behind them a thoroughly organized system with plenty of financial backing, and that they must have been well acquainted with the mechanism of Stock Exchange transactions and the relations between the banks and Stock Exchange houses. They also must have had the assistance of professional forgers and counterfeiters, for the letterheads of banks were counterfeited in addition to the forging of the signatures of bank cashiers and presidents. Couriers in plentiful supply also must have been at the disposal of the market riggers, for they were able to send letters from many different cities in such widely separated localities at approximately the same time.

The letters were mailed last Saturday and were received yesterday morning just in time to be executed at the opening of the market. They were typed in blue ink, with the number of shares and the name of the stocks inset in red type. The work was rather crudely done in some respects, as the letterheads were printed, rather than engraved, and the checks were not only of uniform size and appearance, but seemed to have been signed in the same handwriting in many instances, although they purported to be signed by different bank officials. However, both the letters and checks impressed some stock brokers sufficiently to cause them to execute the orders.

Letters Alike in Wording.

The letters were identical in wording, except for the particular stock ordered, the name of the bank, its cashier and the bank's client for whom the stock was ordered, and the name of the bank's New York correspondent. With the omission of such particulars, the form of the letters as addressed to New York Banking houses follows:

"Enclosed please find check for $15,000, as initial payment on purchase for our account and risk of the following stock, which order you will please execute immediately at the market.

"Stock certificate one above to be made in name of our client as follows:

"We do not wish this transaction handled or certificate delivered (draft attached) through any local bank or broker, therefore, when you receive this stock certificate please notify and deliver same to our correspondent, namely * * * through whom arrangements will be made to take it up. You will please confirm this purchase to our client, name and address as above. Very truly yours,

"CASHIER."

No announcement was made as to what particular Stock Exchange houses "fell" for the fake orders. The difference between closing prices Saturday and opening prices yesterday in certain stocks, however, indicated that some of the spurious orders had been executed. For instance, New York Central, which closed at 91¼ on Saturday, opened at 91¾ yesterday; Corn Products, closing at 138½ on Saturday, opened at 121 yesterday, and Chile Copper, closing at 27¾ on Saturday, opened at 29¼ yesterday.

It was pointed out in Wall Street that the rise in prices may not have been wholly due to the fake orders, but that these orders, added to the usual buying orders that accumulate over the week-end, made an unexpectedly heavy volume of Monday morning transactions, so that the two classes of orders together accounted for the rise.

Some of the Stock Exchange houses became suspicious of the orders even before the market opened, because of various peculiarities of the orders. It was regarded as unusual to send orders in mixed lots, such as 350 or 410 shares, for only one customer's account. New York Central traders became especially suspicious, because orders in that stock are usually in 100 share lots or multiples thereof. In some cases the brokers who were suspicious of the orders decided to hold them back for ten or fifteen minutes and wait till they executed their regular orders.

Scheme Soon Exposed.

The scheme had bee nexposed and a warning had been sent out over the ticker, with a typical order, by ten or fifteen minutes after the market opened. Exposure of the plot came when the Stock Exchange houses communicated with the New York banks named as correspondents in order to verify the orders, and were told that no instructions to take up the orders had been received from the out-of-town banks, and that the signatures of the cashiers were fraudulent.

By this time, however, some of the brokers had already executed the orders according to the regular routine, having treated the verification from the New York correspondents as a matter of form.

When the scheme was discovered, the brokers who had bought stocks for mythical clients immediately dumped such stocks back on the market, in accordance with the unwritten law of Wall Street that when "mistakes" in the purchase of stocks are made they must be sold at the market without delay. The result was, of course, an immediate decline in prices, which may have affected other stocks besides those which were traded in as a result of the fake orders.

The machinery of the New York Stock Exchange was set in motion as soon as possible to detect the perpetrators of the fraud. Seymour L. Cromwell, President of the Exchange, issued a statement in which he said: "Following an attempt at fraud which developed this morning in the sending of various orders to purchase stocks, together with checks, to members of the various security markets, the Stock Exchange has communicated the facts to the Post Office authorities and the Police Department of New York, and will make every effort to co-operate with those agencies in finding out the origin of the fraud."

W. S. Silkworth, President of the Consolidated Stock Exchange, announced that as far as he had been able to learn none of the commission houses on the Consolidated had received any of the forged orders.

Burns Detectives at Work.

The American Bankers' Association announced that it had put fifteen detectives of the Burns agency at work on the case. These men were reported to be investigating in the various cities from which the letters were mailed, trying to identify some of the swindlers. According to the American Bankers' Association, "It was found that the plot was apparently aimed solely to affect the stock market and that the only losses suffered were through stock transactions by brokers, but not by the banks.

The Forgery Prevention Bureau used the swindle as an object lesson in a statement sent out last night, warning banks to keep blank checks and cancelled vouchers under lock so that forgers could not get access to them, and to scrutinize certified checks carefully, as certification stamps are not hard to duplicate.

PHILADELPHIA GETS ORDERS.

Swindlers Believed to Have Relied on Daylight-Saving Aid.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., May 7.—Of five local brokerage firms that received fake orders and forged checks here today only one is known to have executed its order. This was for 900 shares of Chile Copper at the market. The fraud was discovered almost immediately and the stock was sold without loss.

Most of the checks were for $15,000, and the letters called for the purchase chiefly of New York Central, Chile Copper and American Car and Foundry.

Postal inspectors expressed the belief the conspirators had relied on daylight saving time to put over the fraud. Nearly all the cities in which the banks whose names were used are located are on Standard time and the banks, therefore, do not open until an hour after Philadelphia financial activity has begun. The inspectors said they believed the conspirators expected the buying orders, mailed over the week-end, to be executed in this hour, before they could be verified.

BOSTON FIRMS VICTIMIZED.

Five Brokerage Houses Buy Stocks on Fake Orders.

BOSTON, May 7.—Five local brokerage houses bought 2,500 shares of stock and suffered a loss of $3,750 as the result of fake buying orders accompanied by forged checks here today. Ten other houses detected the fraud or were warned in time to avoid the losses. All the orders executed here were on the New York Stock Exchange.

George A. Rich, Secretary of the Boston Stock Exchange, said the forged cashier's checks were apparently the work of the same hand. Mr. Rich estimated that the average loss taken by the brokerage houses, in selling the stocks they bought on the fake orders, was 1¼ points a share.

FAKE ORDERS IN PITTSBURGH.

Brokers Believe Gang Made That City Their Base.

PITTSBURGH, May 7.—New York brokerage houses with Pittsburgh branches were among the firms which received fake buying orders this morning. Forged checks on Harrisburg and Greensburg, Pa., banks were investigated here and found to be worthless.

Brokers said they believed the checks were put out by a gang operating with Pittsburgh as a base. Only high-grade active stocks were included in the orders covered by the bogus checks.

Plot Tried in Chicago.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, May 7.—Several Chicago stock brokerage firms reported attempts to victimize them through the same fraud that was perpetrated in New York. They received "certified checks" and orders to buy certain stocks. The fake checks were drawn on Pennsylvania banks and the brokers were instructed to deliver the stocks to Chicago banks represented to be correspondents of the Pennsylvania banks.

Italy—One officer and thirty-five men. The powers also maintain legation guards at Peking, the United States having 14 officers and 312 men of the Marine Corps there, under command of Colonel R. H. Dunlap. The only other marines in the Far East are 5 officers and 160 men on the naval cruisers and 11 officers and 275 men in the Philippines.

Reports to the State Department.

The text of an official announcement issued by the State Department, summarizing its dispatches, read as follows:

"According to information received by the Department from Minister Jacob Gould Schurman at Peking and Consul-General Edwin S. Cunningham at Shanghai, the following Americans are believed to have been on the express train from Shanghai to Peking which was held up by bandits early Sunday morning at Lincheng, Shantung:

"Mr. Larry Lehrbas, Mr. L. C. Solomon, Mr. Leon Friedman, Mr. and Mrs. A. Henley, Miss Lucy Aldrich and maid, Miss McFadden, Colonel and Mrs. Pinger and two sons, Major and Mrs. Allen and son, Mr. Levy, Mr. Robert Scripps, Mr. J. B. Powell, Miss Schonberg, Mr. Alder Child.

"Mr. Lehrbas is reported to have escaped. Mrs. Pinger and Mrs. Allen were rescued by guards and are now in Tien Tsin. According to a message from Peking the latest Chinese information is to the effect that the bandits captured twenty-nine foreign passengers while ten others escaped.

"Minister Schurman has instructed the American Consul at Tientsin to send Vice Consul David C. Berger immediately to the scene of the wreck. The Consul General at Shanghai has been instructed to send Consul J. K. Davis, who is very familiar with conditions in the district where the hold-up occurred, to whatever point he thinks he can do the most good, and to report to the Legation any information he can obtain regarding the captured Americans.

"Consul Davis has also been instructed to take whatever steps he may consider advisable toward obtaining the release of any captured Americans. The Chinese Government has issued stringent orders to the provincial authorities to the effect that all possible means be taken to rescue the captives. Minister Schurman has addressed vigorous representations to the Chinese authorities in regard to this matter.

"Word has just reached the department from Consul Jay C. Huston at Tientsin to the effect that the railway authorities have report that Miss Aldrich, Miss McFadden and Mrs. Schonberg have just been released by the bandits."

Earlier in the day the State Department made public a report from Minister Schurman, dated midnight, Sunday, reading:

"An express train which left Saturday morning from Shanghai was held up about 9 A. M. Sunday by bandits near Lincheng, in the Province of Shantung.

"Out of twenty-six foreigners nineteen were held captives, including a Mr. Powell of The Weekly Review.

"A Mr. Mothman, a British subject, was killed."

"The bandits are being pursued by a small military force.

"Situation very serious. There is little information received so far. Have telegraphed Shanghai to inquire if there were other Americans on train. Information received from an American (unnamed) on the scene."

The object of the bandits in stopping the train and taking prisoners is believed by some officials to be straight-out ransom for their prisoners or to use them as a lever for obtaining recognition as a military unit from the

UPSTATE CRY GROWS FOR WET BILL VETO

Some Democratic Editors Join In Urging Governor Smith to Kill Repeal Bill.

INDEPENDENTS OPPOSE, TOO

Many Upbraid the Legislature for an Attempt at "Secession" and "Rebellion."

FEAR BOOTLEGGING ORGY

Minority Would Nullify State Enforcement to Prevent "Double Jeopardy."

About thirty newspapers throughout the State yesterday expressed their attitude on the Mullan-Gage Prohibition Enforcement law repeal, the great bulk of their opinions going to buttress the overwhelming sentiment against repeal, already recorded by other widely scattered newspapers outside of New York City.

In the responses that were received to a telegraphic inquiry by THE NEW YORK TIMES, three Democratic newspapers were in favor of a veto of the repeal bill by Governor Smith. One Democratic editor frankly favored the repeal and another expressed his willingness to abide by Governor Smith's decision.

Only one independent newspaper favored repeal, while another took a not very decided stand. Three independent papers opposed obliterating the State enforcement act.

Republican newspapers opposed nullification of State enforcement in the proportion of 9 to 1. A few were frankly gleeful, however, that, as they viewed the situation, Governor Smith must sign. One expressed the belief that the Governor's mind was made up and that the delay was "hokum."

Regardless of political affiliation, up-State newspapers generally deplored the attempt to repeal the law, calling it "secession from the Union" and "rebellion against the Federal Constitution." Many were fearful of lawlessness by bootleggers, particularly along the Canadian border. One feared the people would begin drinking poison and the grave diggers would become very busy.

The chief ground for favoring repeal on the part of the few who took that side of the argument was that while the law stood a man could be put in jeopardy twice for the same offense—once by the Federal Government and once by the State.

The following are expressions of opinion received by THE TIMES:

MOUNT VERNON.

Pleads for a Veto.

DAILY ARGUS [Ind.]—No doubt there were features of the Mullan-Gage law that were not altogether satisfactory, but the principle of the measure was correct. We believe, of course, in the Eighteenth Amendmnth. We are a law-abiding people. Our laws were made to be enforced, and unless as a people we stand by that, the country is apt to become communistic.

The Mullan-Gage law was intended to aid in the enforcement of the national law. It should remain on our statute books.

BUFFALO.

Calls Hesitancy "Hokum."

EVENING NEWS [Rep.]—Can it be any one is serious in thinking Governor Smith has not made up his mind about the Mullan-Gage Repeal bill? It is his pet measure. He engineered its passage with considerable industry and ingenuity. Such being the case, what's all the shouting for? Why, to build up the show. That's all. New York's secession from the Federal Constitution can only be a gesture. But Governor Smith is determined it shall be a dramatic gesture, and a crowd of good people are falling for the hokum.

ROCHESTER.

Urges Smith to Kill It.

DEMOCRAT AND CHRONICLE [Rep.]—Both parties have been guilty of playing politics with a question with which politics should have no connection. The Democrats set a bad precedent when they made a deliberate bid for Wet support in their State platform. Governor Smith made himself equally culpable when he posed as the friend of those opposed to prohibition and encouraged hopes that he would find some method of overturning the Volstead act. His election by an overwhelming majority naturally gave great encouragement to the Wets and emboldened them to attack the State Enforcement act.

He might have checked the whole disgraceful business at the start if he had announced that he stood for the maintenance of law and order.

SYRACUSE.

Challenges the Government.

POST-STANDARD [Rep.]—The attitude of those who would repeal the Mullan-Gage act is that the Federal Congress has enacted a law that the people of New York do not like, and that the Federal authority should therefore send its Marshals into the State to enforce it if they can. The repeal does not make prohibition less the law, but it is designed to make enforcement less effective.

UTICA.

Opportunity for Smith.

UTICA PRESS (Ind.).—The Assembly Republicans have killed a great many bills during the session, and if they had killed the Mullan-Gage Repeal bill, they would have done a good job and gained a strong strategic position. It is now up to Governor Smith. He has a splendid opportunity for the display of courage and regard for constitutional authority. Will he prove equal to the opportunity presented for manifesting the highest qualities of statesmanship?

Whatever may be one's views as to the Volstead act, it is not by nullification, a bad sounding wording in this country, that its objectionable features can be removed. The question is not one of personal liberty, but of law and order.

JAMESTOWN.

Uphold Law of the Land.

POST [Rep.]—The Morning Post favors the enforcement of the Eighteenth Amendment because it is a part of the supreme law of the land and because the policy of prohibition of the liquor traffic has already resulted in economic prosperity and a large addition to the happiness of thousands of homes where the wages of the bread earner are now spent for the comforts of life. It regrets the repeal of the State enforcement law because it is a backward step by the greatest State in the Union, unfavorably affecting New York's reputation among her sister States and increasing the difficulties of enforcing the law.

WHITE PLAINS.

Wants Law to Stand.

DAILY REPORTER [Ind.]—We are of the same opinion as Governor Smith, that hasty action would be unwise. There should be the widest public discussion.

Wets are urging the Governor to sign. They think that by his doing so the flow of liquor will be unrestrained, but will it? The Eighteenth Amendment will still be in effect. State and Municipal officers are sworn to uphold the Federal laws just as well as the laws of their own State. The Federal enforcement forces will be augmented, and the effort to enforce the law will go on unrestrained.

ROME.

Thinks Its Aim Will Fail.

SENTINEL (Ind. Dem.)—Governor Smith wisely is not going to allow himself to be stampeded into signing the repeal. It is to be hoped that he will eventually veto it with a stinging rebuke to the Legislature for an attempted imposition on the voters of the State, for the signing of the bill will not legalize the selling of one drop of beer, wine or whiskey or any other drink that is now forbidden. Instead of permitting a flood of intoxicants across the Canadian border it will cause the Federal enforcement agents to concentrate on New York State with a thoroughness not before known. It will bring suspicion on the sincerity of the State's demand for the sale of light wines and beers, which many have contended was all the masses asked.

LAKE PLACID.

No Hope for Wine and Beer.

LAKE PLACID NEWS (Rep.)—The Lake Placid News voices disapproval of Governor Smith signing the repeal of the Mullan-Gage law for the reason that withdrawal of State co-operation in an honest attempt to enforce the law of the land is stultifying. Such a move can only tend to increase crime tenfold. What can its object be? It certainly will have no bearing on the Volstead act. Those expecting the modification the Democratic platform is pledged to work for cannot expect their light wines and beer by this means. The News is not debating the merits of the Eighteenth Amendment, pro or con, but on law enforcement it gives its unqualified support. The State of New York should bend every efofrt in an honest endeavor to enforce the Eighteenth Amendment without fear or favor.

ELMIRA.

No Reason for Excitement.

TELEGRAM [Rep.]—There is no apparent reason to get excited over the action of Friday night. The Eighteenth Amendment and the Volstead law are still in force and all people within the United States are bound to respect the mandates.

From a legal aspect this nation is dry and is likely to remain under embargo against intoxicating liquors for some time.

The Eighteenth Amendment to the Federal Constitution delegates to the respective States concurrent jurisdiction in enforcing the law of the land in this particular. New York State now comes forward and, at least for the time being, surrenders its privilege of concurrent power to enforce through State law.

Assuming that the repeal meets with the approval of Governor Smith, the consequence is obvious. All offenders against the dry laws will have their day in Federal court and none in State courts.

BINGHAMTON.

Warns of Lawlessness.

BINGHAMTON PRESS [Ind.]—The Binghamton Press is unalterably opposed to the repeal of the Mullan-Gage law. Unlawful liquor traffic has been had enough in Binghamton and Broome County, with county and city police forces constantly active in combating it. With enforcement of prohibition laws dependent solely on Federal forces, with no authority for search and seizure by city and county officers, prospects for intolerable conditions seem excellent.

SCHENECTADY.

Not a Wet-Dry Question.

UNION-STAR [Rep.]—We are opposed to the Governor signing the repeal of the Mullan-Gage act. It is not a question of being wet or dry. It is merely the straightforward matter of sustaining the Constitution of the United States. The Eighteenth Amendment provides for the prohibition of intoxicating liquors. Is New York to stand by that constitutional provision or secede from the Union by this action of its Legislature? No American need hesitate for a moment in making his decision. As to the Volstead Act, any effort to nullify it by any State is an impropriety at the very least.

CARMEL.

Relies on Smith's Judgment.

PUTNAM COUNTY COURIER [Dem.] (J. A. Zicker, Editor).—While I am opposed to prohibition and censorship and would like to see the Volstead act so modified as to allow the manufacture and sale of light wines and beers, I am also uncertain as to the advisability of the repeal of the Mullan-Gage law. I think that the liberal-minded people of Putnam County would have been satisfied to have had it modified to allow 2¼ per cent. beer and make it impossible to try an offender twice for the same offense, so far as our State laws are concerned. However, I have great respect for Governor Smith's judgment and, personally, will gladly follow him in the matter.

LIBERTY.

Favors the Repeal.

LIBERTY REGISTER [Rep.]—Political consistency alone demands that Governor Smith sign the Mullan-Gage repealer. Casual though his pre-election utterances may be characterized, Mr. Smith waged his campaign for the Governorship on one plank that was at least impliedly wet. Failing to sign what constitutes a mandate from the people means to break the faith. However, aside from this, which is more highly significant from the personal standpoint of the Governor than from that of his constituency, the State ought to be relieved from responsibility for prohibition enforcement. The issue is Federal. Enforcement resolves itself into a Federal problem.

CHATHAM.

Puts Empire State Out of Union.

CHATHAM COURIER [Rep.]—The approval of Governor Smith of the Mullan-Gage law will, in the opinion of this newspaper, be but an open invitation to every bootlegger, every law evader and every illicit liquor dealer to openly flaunt and violate common decency and public opinion. The vast majority of convictions for violations of the liquor law in Columbia County have been the result of this law and if the authority to prosecute is removed from the District Attorney, every self-respecting, law-abiding citizen will view the future with considerable apprehension and alarm.

HUDSON.

For Allegiance to the Country.

THE HUDSON REPUBLICAN [Rep.]—The Hudson Republican is opposed to repealing the Mullan-Gage act, and disapproves of Governor Smith's signing the repealer. So long as the Eighteenth Amendment remains a part of the Constitution, and so long as the Volstead act is the law of the land, both are binding upon every State in the Union, New York no less than the others.

As loyal citizens of the commonwealth, we of New York State are legally and morally bound to support the Federal Constitution and to uphold the national laws with the same earnestness that we do those of our own State.

AMSTERDAM.

Hopes for a Veto.

RECORDER [Rep.]—In this State, outside of New York City, newspaper opinion is strongly in favor of a veto by the Governor of the Cuvillier bill repealing the Mullan-Gage Prohibition Enforcement law. The prevailing view, which The Recorder shares, is that, while the Eighteenth Amendment stands and the Volstead law is the law of the land, the Empire State should honestly co-operate in prohibition enforcement.

The repeal of the Mullan-Gage law would throw open the State to far greater lawlessness than it has yet known.

PORT JERVIS.

A Repeal "Disgraceful."

EVENING GAZETTE [Dem.]—The great State of New York hangs its head in shame today because of the action of its lawmakers at Albany. They have voted to repeal the Mullan-Gage prohibition enforcement, and only a veto by Governor Smith can prevent the disgrace from being made complete.

The repeal of the Mullan-Gage law is a disgrace to our State, because it is an attack on the Constitution and the law of the United States.

GLOVERSVILLE.

Fears Rum Running From Canada.

LEADER-REPUBLICAN [Rep.]—The Leader-Republican believes that Governor Smith should veto the measure repealing the Mullan-Gage law, first and foremost because as Chief Executive of New York State he has taken oath to uphold the Constitution of the United States and assist in enforcement of Federal laws. By signing the repealer the State of New York, through its Governor, establishes a most dangerous precedent, which, if followed by other States, would in effect nearly nullify the Eighteenth Amendment.

GOSHEN.

Sees Grave Diggers Busy.

GOSHEN DEMOCRAT [Rep.]—When Governor Smith signs the bill repealing the Mullan-Gage Enforcement law, he breaks faith with the United States of America by deliberately destroying the only means by which local police authority can co-operate in enforcing a compliance with the nation's basic law. He does more than that, he invites every bootlegger to come out of hiding and more openly flaunt the stuff that is surreptitously peddled under the name of whisky. He takes his State's protecting arm from around an incalculable number of people who are willing to take a chance with death for the artificial exuberance of a drink.

About the time the ink dries on his signature and prosecuting attorneys are divested of their power and bootleggers defy local police search and seizure, the grave diggers will enter upon a busy season. Only by Federal legislation can the booze bars be lawfully let down. To encourage illicit traffic by tying the hands of local enforcement is disloyal.

MIDDLETOWN.

For Full Enforcement.

HERALD [Ind.]—We think Governor Smith should veto the measure repealing the Mullan-Gage act. If New York State were a separate entity and not a part of the American Union, that would put an entirely different phase on the matter. The Volstead act has greatly benefited the American people. If it were enforced it would add greater benefits. New York has no more right to attempt to nullify the United States Constitution so far as it applies to this State than South Carolina has to attempt to nullify it.

COOPERSTOWN.

Delays Sane Prohibition.

FREEMAN'S JOURNAL [Dem.]—The Freeman's Journal disapproves of Governor Smith signing the repeal of the Mullan-Gage act because we believe that it will delay the establishment of sane prohibition laws. We believe, however, that its passage shows the growing dissatisfaction with present conditions. The present laws are a joke as far as enforcement is concerned, but as long as the Volstead act remains on the books we believe it should be enforced.

If some Congress could show more than one-half of one per cent. of common sense and pass a law legalizing light wine and beer, the prohibition question would be settled as far as the great mass of the people are concerned.

PLATTSBURG.

Does Not Envy Smith.

PRESS [Rep.]—Regardless of what the effect of the Mullan-Gage law may have been in actual operations as observed along the Canadian border, there is this to be said about it:

As far as Governor Smith's connection with the law is concerned, it is assumed that he was elected on a platform which was frankly for the repeal of the Mullan-Gage law. If he is consistent we fail to see how he can avoid signing the Cuvillier law, regardless of what the effect will be. The Mullan-Gage law was the will of the people two years ago. The Cuvillier law is the will of the people now, expressed through the same medium, the Legislature. Now there are apparently two very strong wills, and we'd hate to be Governor Smith.

PENN YAN.

Wants Law to Stand.

EXPRESS (Rep.)—The Penn Yan Express is opposed to repeal of the Mullan-Gage law.

BATH.

Wants Police Upheld.

STEUBEN COURIER (Rep.)—The Courier opposes a repeal of the Mullan-Gage law by Governor Smith. This law upheld the hands of the local police in enforcement of prohibition. Such laws are on the statute books because the people willed them. A repeal of the Mullan-Gage act would please the classes more than the masses.

Against Double Punishment.

STEUBEN ADVOCATE (Dem.)—Fair-minded people will approve of the repeal of the Mullan-Gage act so far as it prevents a second trial by a different court of an alleged offense. Concurrent jurisdiction was never intended to mean double punishment. The failure of the Legislature to provide for a referendum so that the people of the State could register their opinion of the Eighteenth Amendment is to be regretted. Such a vote having been taken, there would have been no doubt as to the attitude of the State of New York on the subject.

OGDENSBURG.

Wants Law Repealed.

NEWS [Dem.]—By all means the Governor should sign the bill repealing the Mullan-Gage law. A recent decision of the United States Supreme Court holds that punishment for violation of a State prohibition law was not a bar to the trial of the culprit in a Federal court for the same offense, the court reminding the people that the Fifth Amendment's guarantee against double jeopardy applies only to Federal proceedings.

No steps were taken to insure to the individual freedom from this double prosecution, and for this reason many came to the belief that prosecution by the State Court which was liable to be followed by prosecution in the Federal Court was an injustice to which the people should not be subjected.

MALONE.

For State Aid in Enforcement.

EVENING TELEGRAM [Rep.]—The Malone Evening Telegram is opposed to the repeal of the Mullan-Gage law. The co-operation of State and county authorities is absolutely necessary to the successful enforcement of Federal prohibition, and as long as the Federal law remains in effect it should be supported by the State.

Repeal of the Mullan-Gage law would virtually nullify the Volstead act in this State. The Federal prohibition forces, particularly along the northern border, are totally inadequate to prevent the smuggling of liquor from Canada. If the Mullan-Gage law is repealed, the State will be wetter than ever and crime may run rampant. Governor Smith should veto the repeal bill.

DELHI.

Decries Cuvillier.

DELAWARE EXPRESS [Ind. Rep.] (A. C. Wyer, Editor).—I decidedly disapprove Governor's signing the repeal of the Mullan-Gage law. Divested of all camouflage, the fundamental purpose is to make easier violation of the Eighteenth Amendment. When George Washington advised the first Constitutional Convention "to raise a standard to which the wise and honest may repair," he did not contemplate an instrument which his countrymen would regard as a joke.

2,000 FLEE SUBWAY, CHOKED BY FUMES

train was cleared with the exception of a few passengers who had not suffered from the fumes, and about twenty or more who required medical attention.

Battalion Chief Laut, the first of the firemen on the scene, then directed Motorman Ridder to drive his train to the express stop at Eighty-sixth Street, where the remainder of the injured and the other passengers could be taken from the train with less danger to themselves and to the rescuers. The live third rails prompted the fire chief's action, he said later.

"When I got down into the tunnel and found that what fire there was was in the motor box of the fifth car and under the concrete flooring, through which it had no chance to progress, I thought the best thing to do was to proceed to Eighty-sixth Street, and we got there a few moments later after all doors had been closed," the Battalion Chief said. "It took only a minute and it seemed the safest thing to do. It did not take long to put out the fire and the damage to the train was only slight.

While the train was getting out of the way word was sent to shut off the power on the express tracks. A crowd of several thousand persons gathered near the subway exits at Sixty-eighth Street and the hundreds of passengers were helped to the street by policemen, firemen and attaches and surgeons from the Presbyterian Hospital. The crowds were dispersed by reserves from the East Fifty-first, the East 104th and other police stations, sent for by Inspector MacDonald.

Captain Wall notified Police Headquarters and ambulances were rushed to the scene from Bellevue, Reception, Flower and other hospitals. The yard of Hunter College was the place near the Presbyterian Hospital served as dressing stations. There was no lack of medical attention due to the proximity of the hospital with its large number of nurses and physicians, reinforced as they were a few moments later by arriving ambulance surgeons.

Transit Commissioner George McAneny, bound home from his office, had left the local subway station at Sixty-eighth Street as the train bearing its load of panic-stricken passengers pulled in on the lower level.

McAneny Praises Rescuers.

"I smelled smoke as I climbed out of the station," Mr. McAneny said, "but had reached my home a few blocks away before I was informed that what appeared to be a serious subway accident had occurred. I immediately notified the office of the Transit Commission and Chief Engineer Lucas arrived a few minutes later to make an investigation. I am very glad indeed that the rescue work proceeded so efficiently.

"A statement by the Transit Commission probably will not be made until tomorrow, at least until after Mr. Lucas has completed a thorough investigation, which, of course, will include an examination of the train, statements of the crew and the reports of passengers."

Mr. Lucas, after he had completed a preliminary examination, said that the train had left the Atlantic Avenue Station, Brooklyn, at 5:28 P.M., bound for the Kingsbridge station on the Jerome Avenue line. No trouble was noticed by the motorman up to the time the train had reached Grand Central Station. It was learned that a high official of the Interborough was on board the train.

After leaving Grand Central Station, the first intimation that the train was developing trouble was noticed in substation power house No. 4, at Ninety-ninth Street and Lexington Avenue, where the circuit breakers on the express tracks blew out at 5:56 P.M.

At 5:58 P.M. the circuit breakers again recorded trouble. Another "trouble maker" went up one minute later, and at 6 o'clock the power on the north-bound express tracks between Seventy-seventh Street and Grand Central Station was cut off.

When the train came to a stop at the Sixty-eighth Street emergency exits, officials said, the motorman immediately left his motorman's box and went back along the tracks to look for the trouble. He found, it was reported, that the motor lead of car No. 4020, the fifth car in the train, had developed an arc or short circuit.

Express on Local Tracks.

He at once switched off the "train line jumpers" that connected the fifth car with the cars in front and behind and then broke off the shoes, which "isolated" that car from the third rail. The smoke, the official version ran, was caused by the setting afire of cable insulation making up the motor lead. The smoke thus permeated through the cars.

When the train had discharged its injured and uninjured passengers at Eighty-sixth Street it was sent under its own power to the Kingsbridge car barns. Throughout the half-hour period it was stalled, however, twenty-two express trains were diverted to local tracks.

Many Help in Work of Rescue.

The first policemen to reach the scene, Dennis Brown, Joseph Conovan and Joseph esspoli, of the East Sixty-seventh Street Station, strove valiantly to stem the tide of humanity which rushed through the exits in their efforts to reach persons who had fallen and were in danger of being trampled upon. They finally broke through the choking street-bound crowd and made repeated trips to the street with those unable to get out unassisted. They nearly were overcome themselves on the third trip into the lower tunnel and emerged gasping for breath.

Men passing in the street just before the arrival of Inspector MacDonald with the reserves heard the screams of women and the shouts of excited men, and dashed into the subway to aid the policemen, and themselves staggered into the street a few moments later, into the arms of firemen from Engine 16 and Truck 28, and were carried or aided to the temporary relief station established on the grounds of Hunter College.

One of the partly overcome passengers, who said he was a buyer for a large department store, said he had kicked through a window of the fifth car in an effort to get air. More smoke poured through the window, he said, and intensified the suffering and excitement among the passengers in that car.

Pulmotors were employed to revive two women who, first suffering from hysteria, fell unconscious in the fifth car and were carried, overcome by smoke, to the Hunter College grounds. They were Reita Prlin and Mildred Lipman. The operation of the pulmotors was watched with interest by a number of student-teachers who had helped in the rescue of women.

"I want to take time enough," said Captain Wall, "to compliment the student-teachers in Hunter College. They did wonderful work in calming hysterical women and in reviving those who were overcome. All the students got bottles of smelling salts, it appeared, and put them to good use in assisting the police."

Miss Jean Dreyfuss of 604 Riverside Drive, one of the passengers on the first car, said that when the train came to a stop the motorman jumped from his box and shouted something to the conductor.

Women Knocked Down.

"The next second the car began to fill with smoke," she said. "The odor was terrible, suffocating and nauseating. The more timid passengers began to show signs of panic, and although some men tried to assure every one that there was no danger their efforts were futile. I was knocked from my feet and trampled on. I heard breaking glass and in a few minutes I could hear glass windows or doors being broken.

"In some manner that I'll probably never know I managed to get out of the car. I followed the others to the emergency exits and was assisted to the local platform and then to the street. I was almost overcome. It was an experience I shall never forget."

Ralph Fossell, 19 years old, a clerk of 34 Vermilyea Avenue, a passenger in the fifth car, said he realized that nothing could be done to calm the pushing and tightly packed throng in the car, but kept shouting that there was no danger. When the power was turned off the fifth car and the guards opened the doors. Fossell led the passengers to the emergency exits.

He piloted woman after woman to the exit and turned them over to police and other rescuers. He finally was forced because of the acrid fumes to rush to the street himself, collapsing upon reaching the sidewalk.

When he was revived he insisted upon returning to the work of rescue, but was assured that all danger was passed. He was taken to the City Hospital.

It was the opinion of one official that had the passengers not become panic stricken they would have fared better than by making the dash through emergency exists. The passengers who remained on the train, with the exception of a few who had been injured before they had a chance to get out of the short-circuited car, did not suffer as other passengers did, it was pointed out.

He explained that as soon as word reached the Interborough officials, the fan system recently installed to clear the subway of smoke, was turned on at Ninety-eighth Street, the fan starting in motion at 6:05. It was kept going until 7:18.

Frank Hedley, President of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company, said last night that there would be no statement from the company until the facts had been gathered. He was asked whether the use of fire extinguishers had intensified the fumes. He said that he did not think the extinguishers had been used.

"In a fire caused by a short circuit," he said, "it is of no use to use the extinguishers. Burning insulation causes the fumes. I do not think the fire extinguishers were used."

ARSON BUREAU IS OPENED.

Banton Starts Campaign Against Incendiaries and False Claims.

District Attorney Banton announced yesterday that he and District Attorney Dodd of Brooklyn had completed plans for a campaign against incendiaries and persons filing false claims of loss through fires with insurance companies. He said that the campaign will be on similar lines to that of the merchants which resulted in the creation of the Commercial Frauds Court, through which frauds on merchants and banks in this city had been considerably reduced.

Mr. Banton said that he had organized an "Arson Bureau" and had assigned Assistant District Attorneys Hugo Wintner, Frank K. Carstarphen and Thomas J. Whalen to take charge of all fire and claim investigations. District Attorney Dodd has assigned Assistant District Attorney Leo Healy to co-operate with the police in the investigation of cases in Brooklyn.

"In order to strike terror to the hearts of persons suspected of being responsible of incendiarism in New York County," Mr. Banton said, "I have ordered that in every case where an indictment charging arson or filing false claims for insurance is returned by the Grand Jury the defendant or defendants must be called to trial within a week. That is the way to put a check to such criminal acts."

NAB 400 MEN AND 2 WOMEN.

Police Raid Fraternal Club, Call Performance Indecent.

Four hundred men and two women were taken in a raid made last night by detectives of Inspector Thomas McDonald's staff on the Fraternal Club, holding a "meeting" in a hall in East Eighty-sixth Street, between First and Second Avenues. The raid was made, according to the police, on the ground that an indecent performance was being given in the hall.

Considerable excitement followed the announcement by detectives that every one in the hall was under arrest. Ten patrol wagons were pressed into service to take the prisoners to the East Sixty-seventh Street Station. As Night Court was closed most of the prisoners had to spend the night in cells. Every station in the East Side was filled with them.

CHEER KRUPP CHIEF AS HERO ON TRIAL

"Even Innocent," He Says, He Can Face Prison but Cannot Let Others Suffer for Him.

FIRST NOTE OF LEADERSHIP

Final Testimony for Defense Submitted and Summing Up Will Now Begin.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WERDEN, Germany (via Paris, May 7.)—"Even though innocent I can face prison myself, together with the colleagues who are on the accused bench beside me today, but I cannot ask it of others to face prison for me," declared Baron Krupp von Bohlen, his voice shaking with emotion, in answer to Captain Duvert this afternoon when he was asked why he returned from Berlin despite his impending arrest, while he didn't request Directors Scaeffer and Bauer, who escaped into unoccupied Germany, to return with him.

It was the first dramatic incident at the Werden court-martial, and the German public, which was more numerous today than before, gave a murmur of approval, quickly stopped by sharp orders by the Provost Marshal.

It was also the first time von Bohlen seemed to rise to the occasion and show himself something more than the person who married Bertha Krupp. For the first time he played the real part of a leader—precisely what Captain Duvert wanted him to do, the French prosecuting counsel showing satisfaction when von Bohlen revealed himself the effective chief of his vast firm.

Von Bohlen previously had denied receiving special instructions regarding the firm from the German Government, but admitted later that they had consulted him regarding economic problems.

The whole of today was given up to hearing witnesses for the defense. The prosecuting counsel sought to establish the source and contents of pamphlets which came fluttering down on workers massed around the little French detachment at the automobile garage of the Krupp Works on March 31. Many witnesses admitted seeing them, but nobody could say whence they where they came from. One witness, with naive assurance, thought the pamphlets were dropped by a French airplane.

"Of course it must have been the Nuremberg airplane," said the presiding Judge Spruy, alluding to the German fable of a French airplane having bombarded Nuremberg in 1914 before the war and forming a casus belli.

The court rose this evening after hearing the last witness for the defense. Tomorrow Captain Duvert will sum up for the prosecution, followed by Maitre Maurtaud and Drs. Wolff and Grimm for the defense. The Court's deliberation is expected to take several hours, so it will be afternoon or night before a decision is reached.

Should the accused be convicted they will be transported at once to a French fortress. The military are taking no chances, and the cordon of troops around Essen has been reinforced. Every precautionary measure has been taken to display military strength as a calming influence on the workers.

BRITAIN TO INVITE A NEW BERLIN MOVE

to the German reparation offer the attitude of Premier Poincaré is as follows:

"It was impossible to make a common reply because the German note made statements and proposed conditions which affected only France and Belgium.

"The German note contained not only references to reparations generally, which interest all the Allies, but made charges against France and Belgium which only France and Belgium were called on to answer. One such was a reproach that we had violated the Treaty of Versailles in occupying the Ruhr. Another was that passive resistance toward the French and Belgians was the work of the populations. These called for an answer by France and Belgium, who did the occupying and toward whom the resistance is directed. It is obvious that our allies couldn't answer for us."

Lord Curzon's apparent desire to enter the reparation and Ruhr problems after a period of British neutrality arouses great interest here. The effect on the diplomats is to make them believe that Britain is getting nearer the French point of view. The effect on the public is to encourage their faith in eventual success of the Ruhr occupation. But this feeling appears to go a little too far in the popular summary of the situation, which is that "Britain must get on the band wagon if she wants to ride."

There appears little indication of any change in Poincaré's position that France will insist on the reparation total remaining at 132,000,000,000 gold marks, with 50,000,000,000 to be paid under all conditions, and the remainder to be demanded of Germany in proportion as Britain and America demand payment by France of her debts to them.

There is nothing on the French side in Poincaré's linking reparations with interallied indebtedness in his note to Berlin. He has always taken the position that France will demand to be paid in full if she must pay in full. There are those who believe that in reiterating this statement Poincaré merely is maintaining his bargaining position, but certainly up to the present he has shown no inclination to reduce the total so long as France's obligations remain intact, and for the present the French and Belgians will continue exploitation of the Ruhr as best they can.

Daily Ruhr deliveries of coke now total 11,000 tons and for coal about 7,000 tons, which about meets the direct cost of occupation.

'STINGING' FRENCH NOTE SHOCKS BERLIN PRESS

"Insulting," Says Stinnes Organ —"Word of a Burglar," and "End Hope," Others Declare.

By CYRIL BROWN.

Copyright, 1923, by The New York Times Company.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, May 7.—The German public was shocked when it woke up this morning to read the text of the Franco-Belgian answer to the Cuno offer. Wilhelmstrasse is whistling to keep its courage up. Chancellor Cuno is hurrying back to Berlin from an interrupted holiday at Freudenstad (Joytown) in the Black Forest.

Poincaré's stinging note more than fulfilled the German fears and expectations. The first reaction is general pessimism and the sensitive Berlin Boerse quickly reacted on that line. There appears to be a leaderless situation, general lack of counsel and futile speculation on what ought next to be done, but, significantly, there is agreement on one proposition: "Passive resistance must be continued."

Official Germany and the German press are clinging to one straw, the expected answers from England and Italy, particularly England. Lord Curzon looms in the German mind as Germany's last sole hope.

Pending Cuno's return tonight or tomorrow morning, official circles are trying to suggest that, after all, Poincaré's note might have been worse, and that it has started a discussion of the reparation problem. It is suggested that Cuno may speak in the Reichstag on Friday, indirectly answering Poincaré, and thus "spin along the discussion," though the Cuno speech is not definitely decided on. The British and Italian answers are being awaited first.

Gloom on the Boerse.

On the Boerse today Poincaré's note was almost the sole topic of discussion, and was unfavorably interpreted, helping to put the mark down to 37,500 to the dollar, and at the same time sending many stocks up. One typical comment of the Boerse was on Poincaré's "sharp, intransigeant tone." The Boerse enjoyed a gloomy "double-header" for simultaneously with the Poincaré note the Reichsbank statement for the week ending April 30 became known, including 449,900,000,000 new paper marks issued, swelling the total paper circulation to 6,588,000,000,000. The Reichsbank pursued the policy of "watchful waiting" as the mark slumped today.

Newspapers of the Right place their main emphasis on seeing "all possibilities of negotiation ended," and "passive resistance must continue." More moderate newspapers, while agreeing that passive resistance must continue, specialize in speculating "What next?" and what, if anything, the German Government could and should do to bring negotiations nearer.

The bitterest and most venomous comment is contained in Stinnes's Deutsches Allgemeine Gazette, such as: "The Franco-Belgian answer is a document of insufferable insult and fresh stupidity. The sarcastic polemics of an impudent attorney run through it like a red strand. It devilishly little fits the serious situation. French imperialism, greedy for prey, has got itself into the Ruhr and it knows no way out. The burglar powers have again put themselves in the wrong before all the world.

"We know that practical political consequences for us are not to be expected directly or immediately. Poincaré shows what we never doubted, to wit, that he isn't after reparations or negotiations, but seeks to establish unlimited domination of French militarism on the Continent. With this French Government there is no discussion unless Germany capitulates. Defiance in the Ruhr will continue."

The Stinnes organ seeks to interrupt Poincaré's note and policy as an "affront to England," further seeing an "affront to Italy in Foch's propaganda trip to Poland and Czechoslovakia," and concludes:

"Thanks to Poincaré's stubbornness, German policy will inevitably and automatically be brought closer to England and Italy. The English and Italian answers are still to come, but we must warn against all hopes. In Paris sits the disturber of peace and a criminal against Europe's future."

More sober and restrained comments are voiced by the Social Democratic Vorwarts: "Since negotiations are essential, a way must be found to overcome the difficulties incident to the question of passive resistance. If French militarism would cease to irritate the Ruhr populace the rough resistance of that population would make itself less felt to the burglarous troops. To find such a way out for the evacuation question will be very much more difficult. No solution is visible at present.

"Attempt to Prevent Solution."

"French criticism of the German payment proposals shows that agreement in financial questions will be very difficult, too, but that is nothing new. Continuation of France's present policy signifies a danger to the world. If any Germany Government—and at present one can't imagine any Government which would—were to promise impossible payments to the French Government and agree to have the Ruhr remain occupied, it would only increase European confusion and the whole world would suffer to the utmost. Summarizing the German note, we find it was an unclever effort to bring about a solution, while the French note is a clever attempt to make the problem insoluble. In consequence the necessary discussion will get under way more clumsily and slowly. Meanwhile we must wait to see what England does."

The moderately reactionary Lokal-Anzeiger says the Poincaré note has "slammed the door of negotiations with a loud bang and thoroughly beaten to death Lord Curzon's hope that the German offer would lead to negotiations. The Franco-Belgian note won't contribute to Anglo-French friendship."

The ultra-conservative Preussische Kreuz-Zeitung says the "Franco-Belgian answer is just what was expected. The fact that Poincaré refused to discuss his answer to the German note with England and other allied powers is a sign on the one hand of the strength of the French policy and on the other hand of its purpose to nip in the bud any sensible or milder view. Poincaré's note definitely confirms that there is no possibility today to negotiate with France. Even a long-suffering, tolerant people like the Germans will lose its patience some day. And let Poincaré ponder this—passive resistance must become ever more active the more he and his helpers proceed with their atrocious work of annihilation."

Says France Dodges the Issue.

The Agrarian Deutsche Tageszeitung says that Poincaré has now openly uttered the secret French slogan, "Not reparations, but protection against reparations." It calls on the Cuno Government to "act forcefully, with determination, certainty of purpose and plain talking."

The Centrist organ Germania says its first impression is that "Poincaré's answer in the name of France and Belgium betrays in every line his purpose to influence world public opinion. It is clever propaganda and a grand-scale attempt at justification of the Ruhr action. Nobody had expected that France would answer Germany's proposals with a request for direct negotiations. For Germany's answer to Poincaré the British and Italian answers will not be immaterial."

The Democratic Börsen Courier takes a sober business view that "Poincaré's note is forensically clever, but does not add one iota toward the promotion of practical results"; that it "dodges the real issue," and that "how far France can adapt herself to world political and world economic realities the discussion between Paris, London, Rome and Washington will show." It says the French answer affords no clue.

Georg Bernhard, editor of the Democratic and Francophile Vossische Zeitung, says "the lawyer and politician in Poincaré have got together and drawn up a note which reads like a brief in a claim for damages of France versus Germany, but with full knowledge that the judges in this case are not independent of world public opinion."

Bernhard accordingly concludes that Poincaré not only expects but wants a German answer. "He does not want to close the case; he wants to continue discussion. Discussion has actually begun. That is the main thing," he says.

Colored Etchings—By Louis Icart

This Parisian artist known as "the painter of the golden palette" is as graceful with his stylus as with his brush. For he has etched feminine graces and "fetes galantes" after the romantic manner of Watteau with a touch of modern boldness and caprice.

The cool colors in which these etchings are printed make them doubly decorative for the walls of summer rooms.

WANAMAKER SHOPS FOR MEN

Wanamaker Suits for Men and Young Men

Are the Highest Standard in America in Ready-to-Wear

This is true because they are built according to rigid specifications developed through sixty years of making and selling men's clothes.

We do not now make our own clothing because we find it better to use the workshops and skill of the finest specialty makers in America. But we do lay down the specifications in fabric, trimming, and tailoring, and in some cases insist that a special shop be installed for the exclusive making of Wanamaker models.

The result is shown in improved style, fit, wear, line and general appearance of the clothes—the nearest to the fine custom-made that it is so far possible to produce.

Lettuce Green Iron Garden Furniture from France

This iron furniture, so characteristic of summer life in France, of luncheons served under grape arbors, and long afternoons in a garden, has a perennial charm.

Nothing is quite so practical, for the country garden, or for the walled city garden that is found at the back of almost every attractive town house nowadays. And nothing could be more charming.

WRECKS CAR IN FLEEING

Chauffeur Hit Aged Man and Tried to Escape, Says Policeman Who Made Arrest.

A girl and two men were killed in automobile accidents yesterday, and an aged man may die from injuries received when struck by a car, the chauffeur of which wrecked his machine while being pursued by a policeman in a commandeered car.

Alice Drew, 6 years old, of 220 West Eleventh Street was killed by a motor truck in front of the North Baptist Church at 232 West Eleventh Street in the afternoon. She was riding on the axle of a velocipede operated by a little boy, when it overturned and threw her under the rear wheel of a five-ton truck.

Bernard Nachman, 61 years old, of 844 Gates Avenue, Brooklyn, was killed by a motor truck while crossing Gates and Sumner Avenues, Brooklyn. George Beck of 969 Madison Street, Brooklyn, the driver, was arrested.

Thomas J. O'Donnell, 24 years old, of 49 Oak Street, Yonkers, died of internal injuries in the hospital at Dobbs Ferry yesterday forenoon, received when the automobile in which he and four other young men were riding crashed into a telegraph pole and turned over in Broadway near Riverview Place, Hastings, N. Y.

John J. Fink, an electrician of Bay Shore, was killed on the Montauk Highway in Amityville, L. I., when an automobile operated by Hugh Costello of Bay Shore crashed into a telephone pole. Costello was held on a manslaughter charge.

District Attorney Rowland of Westchester County yesterday was requested by Coroner Fitzgerald to make an investigation of the killing of 10-year-old Alvira Jones in Yonkers several days ago by an automobile operated by John Nicholson. It is charged that Nicholson drove his car from behind a stalled trolley car in violation of the traffic regulations.

Pinkert Eisenkroff, 67 years old, received what may prove fatal injuries last evening when he was knocked down at Belmont Avenue and Ashford Street, Brooklyn by an automobile driven by Nathan Schatzoff, 19 years old, of 310 Hinsdale Street.

Policeman Failes of the Liberty Avenue Station witnessed the accident and declared that Schatzoff tried to escape. He chased the automobilist on his bicycle through Ashford Street to Blake Avenue, but was thrown from the bicycle as he came abreast of the fugitive, he said. The policeman then commandeered an automobile, and when he was fifty feet of the fleeing car, Schatzoff lost control and the car crashed into a pile of sewer pipes and was wrecked. Schatzkoff, the policeman alleged, was thrown out of the automobile, but got up, and the policeman had to chase him another block before he was arrested. The victim of the accident was taken to the Kings County Hospital, where it was found he had sustained internal injuries.

NEGOTIATIONS BLOCKED ON RHINE ARMY COST

No Headway Is Made in Two Weeks, Hughes Having Rejected New Allied Proposal.

Copyright, 1923, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, May 7.—There seems to be considerable mystery about what has happened to negotiations for a settlement of America's claim for a billion gold marks in payment of the cost of her army of occupation. A month ago it was supposed, and indeed officially stated, that the matter was all but adjusted. Ten days ago a snag was struck and the negotiations remain tied up. There have been no detailed official statements of the reasons, and the French say the British and Italians, more than they, are causing the hold-up.

As far as can be learned the Allies maintain their agreement to pay America out of future German cash payments when there are any, and it is understood there is an accord on the issue of the priority these payments are to have.

Two weeks ago, however, the Allies attempted to introduce a clause into the agreement saying that if the United States, by a recovery act or other such methods, attempted to collect from Germany for payment of our claims any more than we now hold in sequestered property, these collections should be applied toward liquidating the army of occupation claim.

Secretary Hughes refused to accept this provision and offered as a compromise that if America took any such action she would discuss the new situation with the Allies. This proposition was submitted to the allied Governments, which up to the present have not made a reply.

Meanwhile, Elliot Wadsworth, American negotiator, is waiting for something to happen.

It is possible there are other considerations than this official one, delaying the negotiations, but if so no light is to be had on them.

Chinese Murderer Loses Appeal.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—Ziang Sun Wan, a young Chinese student found guilty early in 1920 of the murder of Ben Sen Wu, Under Secretary at the Chinese Educational Mission in Washington, must pay the penalty by hanging, the District Court of Appeals held today in affirming the conviction. The execution will take place May 18.

No Rolls-Royce has ever worn out

ROLLS ROYCE

PERHAPS the most frequent comment made by Rolls-Royce owners refers to "the feeling of safety which the car gives under all conditions." . . . This statement is, in reality, an epitome of all the conditions attendant upon the building of the Rolls-Royce. . . . The one dominating purpose, controlling every detail of Rolls-Royce building, is to secure perfection. No part is so small as to escape the utmost refinement in design and manufacture and the most exhaustive tests to insure the permanency of its performance. Each Rolls-Royce, when completed and delivered to its owner, represents the concerted best of the craftsmen who have designed and built it. . . . Over and above its other qualities, in its every-day performance, the Rolls-Royce proves that it is the safest car to ride in or to drive. And surely its length of life proves it to be the safest of investments.

Payrolls are Investments no less than Plants

A STOUT fence—watchmen—fire equipment—an insurance policy! All these protect your plant. What safeguards your greater investment—your investment in men?

Here are scores—hundreds—perhaps thousands of veteran employees. For years they may have been on your payroll. Unquestioned statistics show that under-production is causing losses as high as one-fourth of annual payroll investment. What assurance have you that your investment is absolutely safe?

Some of your employees are "green." Until they mesh with your production, the greater part of their wage is an expense. Will they remain to yield you a return when they become skilled, or will they transfer to another firm the talent you paid to develop?

In five brief years you invest in your employees more money than went into your plant. Welfare work and bonuses are less of a safeguard for your payroll than is a fence for your plant.

"Stopping Payroll Losses" is the title of an interesting booklet that will be sent industrial executives gratis, on request. Please address Dept. L 3.

Good Advice to Brides and Grooms—about their Household China

IF the devastating hand of a careless housemaid bring ruin to a cup, can you be sure of replacing it? That is a very important question. At Ovington's the answer is always, "Yes."

"DO NOT COMPROMISE on an unworthy dinner service. Rather buy part of a good set, and add to it as you can."

Cheap and nameless china always appears as it is, while the beautiful wares of the world's great potters grow in interest and charm the longer you use them.

Since 1846, Ovington's have been china merchants whose displays of china-and-crystal have been among the largest and the best selected in the world.

You will find at Ovington's dinner patterns of excellent fabric and touched with graceful decoration. And in reserve for the set you buy, there are ample stocks for "fill-ins"—should you break a cup, it is a cup you have broken, and not your dinner service.

The price of an Ovington dinner service ranges from $40 to $1000.

Values in Chinese Rugs

DUE to a special "under-the-market" purchase, we are able to offer some very fine examples of Chinese Rug-making at decidedly attractive prices. Compare the prices by all means—you will find them low. But compare the quality of the rugs, too—you will find that high.

The prices of the 2' x 4' Chinese rugs range from $18 to $29. This is a very popular size for use in odd floor space.

The 3' x 6' Chinese rugs are to be found in a great variety of beautiful patterns. Their prices run from $42.50 to $57.

Chinese rugs 6' x 9' with prices from $133 to $168 are especially adaptable to cosy alcoves of larger rooms.

The 8' x 10' Chinese rugs are especially suited to bedrooms. We have them in attractive patterns from $186 to $240.

ENGLISH OFFICIAL SHOT IN MOSCOW

Slogett, Member of British Mission, Is Wounded as the Police Chase a Robber.

RELATIONS MAY BE CUT OFF

Mission Is Charged With Presenting Government's Protest Against Seizure of Ships.

By WALTER DURANTY.

Copyright, 1923, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MOSCOW, May 7.—A distressing incident occurred here tonight, when a British automobile returning with the English mission from the telegraph office became involved in a shooting affray in Stoleshnikoff Street.

Robbers tried to enter a house in the street, but were interrupted by the police. They rushed into the street, and the leader boarded the British car, shouting: "Hands up!" The chauffeur drove away at the orders of the robber, and the police behind opened fire, to which the robber standing on the running board replied.

In the exchange of shots one Englishman, Henry Slogett, was seriously wounded in the head.

I have investigated the story and have every reason to believe it is true. The robbers tried to hold up a young student at the entrance to his apartment. The boy ran and gave the alram. Then the robbers got scared and dashed toward the street. The one who boarded the British car was mortally wounded by the police, and three other robbers were captured.

Max Eastman, an American radical, was walking in the street at the time and witnessed the shooting from a distance.

The incident is particularly distressing in view of the fact that the British mission is reported to be about to present a note to the Russian Foreign Office which will probably result in the breaking off of all Anglo-Russian relations.

BRITAIN SENDS NOTE OF PROTEST TO RUSSIA

Complains of Seizure of Ships, But Makes No Threat of Ending Relations.

Copyright, 1923, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

LONDON, May 7.—A British note to Russia, protesting against the seizure of British ships and the mistreatment of British nationals by the Soviet Government was dispatched to Moscow today.

While it does not definitely threaten to break off relations, it points out that if trade relations are to be maintained Russia must respect the comity of nations and the ordinary rules of international law.

This attitude is a compromise between two elements in the Cabinet, one of which wishes to break off all communication with the Soviet, while the other wishes to encourage and develop trade relations.

In the House of Commons this afternoon Sir P. Richardson asked if the Government was prepared to take action with the purchasers of Russian oil products to bring about the cancellation of agreements for sale on the ground that such purchases were contrary to the public interest.

Ronald MacNeill replied that it was contrary to the practice of the Government to interfere in such cases, which concerned only the companies themselves.

MONARCHIST DISPLAY ANNOYS BERLIN PAPER

Hindenburg, Prince Eitel and Republican War Minister Dedicate Monument.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, May 7.—"For Kaiser and Republic" is the ironical headline in the Vorwärts over an article branding as a "provocation to the whole German people" the unveiling on the old Deobberitz Parade Grounds of a monument to the World War dead of the Third Guard Regiment, in the presence of Hindenburg, Prince Eitel Frederick and the Republic's Minister of National Defense, Dr. Geasler, with the Republic's Reichswehr troops in attendance.

The Vorwärts characterizes a speech made by Hindenburg as "provocatory, and bearing witness to an unbelievable political madness," being particularly aroused by this portion:

"Joyously and proudly, we old and young who are gathered around this monument bear witness that in this hour we think with loyalty, love and awe of his Majesty, our most gracious Kaiser, king and master, our exalted leader in the almost superhuman struggle for the honor and existence of our fatherland, and that we harbor sincerest good wishes for his Royal Highness the Crown Prince on this his birthday. And then, with warm, grateful hearts, we think of all those who in our ranks joyously gave their lives in a firm belief in their country's greatness. They rest in peace, for loyally they did their duty to King and fatherland."

Then the Vorwärts draws a parallel in a speech by the Reichswehr Minister, Dr. Gessler, who said: "Everything that moves our hearts today, let us gather it together into a pledge of loyal fulfillment of duty for the German people, the German nation, the German republic. In this sense I take over this monument as a rare connecting link between the old order and the new."

The Vorwärts says the "German people will be astonished and indignant at the possibility of such a monarchistic demonstration under the eyes of the Republican Minister of National Defense without his promptly ordering the Reichswehr troops present to march off, or, better yet, order them immediately to clear the exercising grounds belonging to a republican State of the monarchistic elements present."

SADIE MARTINOT DIES INSANE AT 61

Once Famous Actress Succumbs in Lawrence State Hospital—Inmate Five Years.

SANG NANON AT CASINO

The Original American Hebe in "H. M. S. Pinafore" Was a Native of New York City.

OGDENSBURG, N. Y., May 7.—Sadie Martinot, stage celebrity known to audiences of twenty years ago, died of heart disease today at St. Lawrence State Hospital.

Miss Martinot was registered at the institution under the name of "Nethersole." There is a story current in Ogdensburg that her true identity was unknown until nearly three years after her transfer here from Manhattan State Hospital for Insane on Ward's Island, when she was recognized by a casual visitor as the stage favorite of other days. Hospital authorities said her identity was known to them when she was committed.

Records here show the actress to have been committed to Ward's Island in March, 1918, and transferred here in December of the same year.

In the early part of 1918, hospital authorities said, Miss Martinot disappeared, later to be found in Washington with no clue to her identity but a pencilled memorandum bearing the name of Pauline Hall, also prominent on the stage. Miss Hall died shortly afterward, and it is said the facts concerning Miss Martinot's disappearance never were established.

Miss Martinot was 61 years old. She had been confined to her bed for several months with heart trouble. The body is being held here pending efforts to communicate with relatives, said to be in New York City.

Sadie Martinot was born in New York, Dec. 10, 1861, the daughter of William Alexander and Mary Lydia Randall Martinot. She was educated at the Ursuline Convent in Westchester County, N. Y., and married Louis F. Nethersole.

Her first appearance on the stage was made at the Eagle Theatre, here, on Aug. 21, 1876 as Cupid in a revival of "Ixion." She continued playing here in various other roles, among them as Benika in "Across the Continent," and in "Ben McCullough."

She then went to the Boston Museum, where she played for a number of years. She was the original American Hebe in "H. M. S. Pinafore," and played leading soubrette parts in many productions.

Her first appearance on the London stage was at the Alhambra, Dec. 26, 1880, as the spirit of the Brocken in "Mefistole II." Subsequently she appeared in the roles of Celine in the opera "Jeanne, Jeannette and Jeanneton"; Katrina in "Rip Van Winkle."

On her return to America she was engaged by the late Dion Boucicault and appeared as Mrs. Cllingstone Peach in "Vice Versa," at the opening of the Star Theatre in New York in March, 1883.

She played Florence in "Queena" and Manon Patin in the opera "Nanon" at the Casino Theatre.

Between 1885 and 1890 she temporarily disappeared from the stage, returning as Lois in "Sunset." From that time on she appeared in some fifty plays, the last of which was as Lady Dover in "Toddles," at the Savoy Theatre in March, 1906.

THANKS J. P. MORGAN.

Dr. Tyson Grateful for Library for Foundation Meeting.

The annual meeting of the Tyson Lectureship Foundation, Inc., for the Promotion of Christian Knowledge was held yesterday in the Pierpont Morgan Library, 33 East Thirty-sixth Street. The Rev. Dr. Stuart L. Tyson, special lecturer for the foundation, in presenting his annual report, thanked J. Pierpont Morgan for the use of the library, and said it was the first time Mr. Morgan had lent it for any meeting since his father's death.

"The old order has passed away and with it much of the traditional theology which we have inherited from medieval Europe," Dr. Tyson said. "Man is still incurably religious, however, and in the 400 lectures which I have delivered in the past year the meetings have been crowded, the audiences including hundreds of young people."

Sanford Robinson of Greenwich, Conn., was elected President. The Rev. Dr. Alexander G. Cummins, rector of Christ Episcopal Church, Poughkeepsie, N. Y., was chosen Vice President; Joseph S. Auerbach, Chairman of the Board of Directors; Miss A. C. Schoonover, Secretary; Dr. Tyson, Treasurer.

BANDIT KILLER TO GET $100.

Merchant Truckmen Commend Heroism of Patrolman Lilienthal.

The Executive Committee of the Merchant Truckmen's Bureau of New York at its meeting yesterday unanimously adopted a resolution commending the heroism of Patrolman Thomas Lilienthal of the Beach Street Station, who last Saturday shot and killed a bandit who had robbed the cashier of the trucking firm of J. Pitman Company, 29 Front Street, of a pay roll amounting to more than $3,000.

The resolution awarded Lilienthal $100 for his heroism, which will be presented to him at the next regular meeting of the organization to be held on the evening of May 17 in the rooms of the Merchants' Association, 233 Broadway. The award became known yesterday when Thomas F. Barry, Executive Secretary of the organization, made public a letter written to Commissioner Enright, to which was attached the resolution.

Railroad Clerks Ask Pay Increase.

A request has been filed with the United States Railroad Labor Board in behalf of 1,600 clerks employed by the Boston & Albany Railroad Company for a pay increase of 20 per cent. Similar requests have been filed by the clerks of the New York, New Haven & Hartford, the Boston & Maine and the Maine Central & Portland Terminal companies, and more are expected from other railroad clerks' organizations. No date has been set for hearing on the petitions.

We'll Bet Your Wife A Bunch of Violets

Women are better judges of values than men. That's why we wish more men would bring their wives with them to look at our clothes.

So here's an offer to induce Friend Wife to walk up the Avenue with you to our store. If she does not tell you that our clothes give really remarkable value in fabric, workmanship and finish, we will give her a bunch of violets.

Of course, if she says what we think she will—why then we shall simply have to give her the violets as a compliment to her good taste!

"Bambalina"

Like widening waverings, the fame of "Bambalina," the dance hit from "Wildflower," has spread in every direction.

The Columbia Record of this sparkling fox-trot (introducing the melody, "Wildflower"), as played by Ray Miller and His Orchestra, is sensational.

"Argentina" on the reverse side, is "Bambalina's" buddy.

International Sale Hand Bags Beaded Bags Travellers Requisites

AVERAGE HALF PRICE

This International Sale of Leather Hand Bags, Beaded Bags and Travellers' Requisites is unique. It presents things you want, things you need at remarkably low prices. The largest collection of its kind we have ever been able to offer—at a fraction of actual value. Months ago GIMBEL BROTHERS came to the conclusion that that was the psychological time to buy leather goods. They sent their representative to Europe. Gave him carte blanche to buy—to buy in tremendous quantities. From country to country he traveled, picking up goods here, goods there. For several months almost every ship has brought over a part of this wondrous collection. These we have saved for this great event. Stored away until such a time as we could say, "All is ready for you." It IS ready NOW! Ready for you to inspect. Ready for you to buy. Leathers that are a perfect joy to touch. Exquisite beaded bags—the labor of months. Thousands of useful things so low in price that you can satisfy your needs, and if the need be not important, you will not hesitate to store against the requisites of the future.

MANILA, May 6.—Governor Castelleño of Batanes Province has reported to the Secretary of the Interior that on March 9 and 10 two Japanese launches landed on the beach at Santo Domingo de Basco, the crews making inquiries regarding the number of soldiers stationed thereabouts.

The Governor requests that a detachment of constabulary be stationed at Basco. The constabulary authorities are investigating the feasibility of complying with his request.

A steamer touches at Basco once every two months.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—War Department officials said today that no report had been made to them, confirmatory of the Manila report that Japanese launches had landed crews on the beach of Santo Domingo de Basco.

This island is in the Batanes group, the northernmost of which is 167 miles from Luzon, the largest of the Philippines. The Batanes Islands are only sixty-six miles from Tobago Shima, a Japanese island, and 160 miles from Formosa, which is also under Japanese control.

BRITISH EXPERT TO AID AUSTRIAN RAILROADS

Sir William Acworth Is Hopeful that Harassing Problem May Be Solved.

LONDON, May 7.—Sir William Acworth, one of the foremost British railway authorities, has accepted the post of adviser to the experts appointed by the Austrian Government to study the problem of railways. Sir William will start for Vienna about May 18. He is sanguine regarding the possibilities of the Austrian railways.

"I do not think they are insolvent," he said to The New York Times correspondent today. "If they were I should not have been sent for. The Austrian lines are in a much better position than the German, which spend fifty cents to earn twenty-five.

PARIS, May 7.—A new world's record for the helicopter was made today by Peteras Pescara, the Spanish inventor, who covered fifty-seven meters in a straight line. Last week Pescara took the same machine over a circle forty meters in diameter.

Pescara's helicopter weighs 1,000 kilograms, including the pilot, and carries a Hispano-Suiza engine of 180 horse power. The inventor tried for the Aero Club's prize for the first helicopter covering a kilometer circuit, but failed.

PRESENT MEDAL TO ELIOT.

President Emeritus of Harvard Honored for Public Service.

The National Council of the Civic Forum presented its medal for distinguished public service to Dr. Charles W. Eliot, President Emeritus of Harvard, at a meeting held last night in Town Hall. In the absence of Dr. Eliot, the medal was received by Jerome D. Greene, who turned it over to Charles W. Eliot, 2d, grandson of the University President. Dr. Eliot heard the speakers via radio at Cambridge.

A poem written for the occasion by Edward S. Martin was read by the author. Tributes to the character and career of Dr. Eliot were spoken by Elihu Root, Dr. Henry van Dyke and Dr. John H. Finley, the latter making the presentation of the medal. Mr. Root, declaring that public opinion ruled the country, said that Dr. Eliot was the greatest molder of public opinion America had produced in a half century.

Last night was the fifth time the medal had been bestowed. The others who received it were Maj. Gen. Goethals, Thomas A. Edison, Alexander Graham Bell and Herbert Hoover. The Chairman last night was James Byrne.

LAWRENCE WITHOUT CARS.

Strike Is Deadlocked and Jitneys Neglect Longer Routes.

Special to The New York Times.

LAWRENCE, Mass., May 7.—The deadlock in the strike of the employes of the local division of the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway, which has existed since Saturday, continued today. Each side appeared to be waiting for the other to make some move.

The officials of the street railway had issued an ultimatum to the strikers that unless they returned to work by 4 o'clock today their places would be filled by former employes of the company. This ultimatum fell on deaf ears, and no move was made by any of the strikers.

Hundreds of jitneys are carrying people over some of the routes which were formerly plied by the street railway. The City Government, in repealing the jitney law, voted that no fare be more than 10 cents, with the result that the drivers of the jitneys are picking only the short routes, and people living in the outlying districts are feeling the brunt of the strike.

MOTHER SUES HER SON.

Asks $25,000 Damages for Injuries Suffered in Auto Accident.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., May 7.—Henry Benzenga, a rich member of the Italian colony here, was named defendant today in a suit brought by his mother, Mrs. Vincenza Benzenga of New York, to recover $25,000 damages for injuries received in an automobile accident on the Freehold-Hamilton road July 9, 1922.

Benzenga was driving an automobile in which his mother and Mr. and Mrs. Peter Iannicelli of Asbury Park were passengers when the car struck a telegraph pole. All the occupants were injured. Mrs. Benzenga receiving a fractured skull and other injuries. Iannicelli and his wife filed a joint suit to recover $92,000 from Benzenga which is still pending.

Why Investors Need the Guarantee

NO. 8.

A lawyer who could guarantee to win your case—a doctor who could guarantee to cure you—a real estate broker who could guarantee you a profit—would be a treasure indeed.

Forty years ago, a company that would guarantee you that a mortgage investment would bring regular interest payments and absolute safety of principal was unknown.

Now it is an accomplished fact and has become an indispensable treasure to the prudent investor.

The Bond and Mortgage Guarantee Company, which guarantees the mortgages we sell, has brought this about by care and skill and 31 years' experience in selecting its mortgages and has grown stronger each succeeding year.

50,000 GREET 'UNCLE JOE' CANNON

Host of Danville Friends Pay Him Honor on His 87th Birthday.

"CAN'T HOLD BACK TEARS"

Have Faith in the Government, Is the Message He Sends to All Americans.

Special to The New York Times.

DANVILLE, Ill., May 7.—"I can't hold back the tears that come into my eyes today," said "Uncle Joe" Cannon today in addressing 50,000 persons gathered in this city to pay tribute to him on his eighty-seventh birthday. His speech, choked by the tears that would not stay back, was heard by men and women who surreptitiously wiped away their own tears as they listened to Danville's "grand old man" thank them for their homage.

Following his speech, "Uncle Joe" received eighty-seven American beauty roses presented by fifteen school girls, a silver loving cup from the citizens of Danville and a huge birthday cake bearing eighty-seven candles.

"Today's celebration is unusual in American history, according to Senator James E. Watson of Indiana, who delivered one of the chief addresses, in that few men have received such tribute after their retirement from public life.

James J. Davis, Secretary of Labor and personal representative of President Harding, said:

"He links our day with the day of the immortal Lincoln, and his life has been in the service of Illinois, the State that gave Lincoln to the nation. His lifetime has covered more than one-half the lifetime of our Republic. During his days America has grown from a struggling nation whose interests centred along the Atlantic seaboard to a continent-wide Republic, stretching from ocean to ocean and embracing 100,000,000.

"His high courage, his devotion to principle, his unswerving integrity, his unchanging loyalty to the great principles of America are written into the statute books of the Republic for the past half century. For his is a record of public service probably unparalleled in all the history of organized governments among men. For fifty years, with two brief exceptions, Joseph Gurney Cannon has occupied a seat in the House of Representatives of the United States—there by the suffrages of his fellow citizens of the Eighteenth District of Illinois.

The following birthday greeting was given to the people of America by "Uncle Joe":

"Friends, this demonstration of your affection is in itself compensation for my half century of public service. The extent of my gratitude cannot be weighed nor measured. To all, my heart goes out in thankfulness.

"It is good to have lived and worked with you. You are my neighbors. You are the people I have served in Congress through two generations. You are the people with whom I intend to pass the remainder of my days.

"To you, to all the people of America, from my observations of half a century, I bring this message: Have faith.

"Often you feel that you detect a great uneasiness, an unrest, a threatening undercurrent in this Government. This is neither new nor unusual. I have learned that America will rise to meet her problems. I have learned that goodwill triumph over evil.

"Have faith in the Government of your fathers. Show your faith by works to support that Government. Have faith that right will prevail."

WARNED NOT TO BID FOR MARY PICKFORD

Witness Testifies that Exhibitor's Organization Planned to Take Stars from Famous Players.

Walter W. Irwin, prominently identified with the motion picture industry since 1909, and at one time theatre manager for Famous Players, was the principal witness yesterday at the Federal Trade Commission's hearing to determine whether the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation, six subsidiaries and six individuals, have been operating in restraint of trade.

Irwin said that First National, the exhibitors' organization, was reported to have been formed to rescue independent theatre owners from the Famous Players' alleged monopoly. Adolph Zukor had told him, Irwin said, that the members of First National had sent word to him that they intended to get Mary Pickford away from Famous Players, no matter how much it cost. Zukor was advised, said Irwin, that he might stop bidding for Miss Pickford as all his bids would be too low.

Mary and her mother also told Mr. Zukor of First National's plans, Mr. Irwin said he heard. Mr. Zukor was unwilling that his star should be taken away and asked his theatre manager what he should do, Mr. Irwin stated.

"I advised him," Irwin said, "to point out to the exhibitors that this alleged exhibitors' organization would only result in the increased price of pictures and would inevitably, through the bidding of the Famous Players for stars, result in increasing the prices tremendously, and also to tell the exhibitors that instead of the First National being their friend it was their commercial enemy."

He advised Mr. Zukor further, he said, to decline to serve theatre owners who had franchises with First National on the ground that they were a part of the conspiracy to ruin Famous Players. In reply to a question by counsel for the Government, Mr. Irwin declared that the open booking policy and an open market for producers was the only way to bring about healthy conditions in the industry.

The hearing will be continued today.

HARDING AIDS SALOON MAN.

Extends Clemency to Dry Law Offender on Account of Poor Health.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., May 7.—John L. Thompson, a saloon keeper here, is to be released from the Mercer County Workhouse on order of President Harding, it became known today.

Thompson was convicted in the Federal Court of violating the national prohibition laws and was sentenced to serve six months in the Mercer County Jail. He went there in December, but was soon transferred to the workhouse on Government orders because of his poor health. Republican State Committeeman A. Dayton Oliphant today received a telegram from Senator Edge's secretary to the effect that the President had extended clemency.

The Power Of Color

¶Upon the threshold of summer, it is well to remember that Comfort is not only a condition of body, but a state of mind. The man, who knows that he looks cool, feels that way—by mental illusion, auto-suggestion, auto-hypnosis or "the white in your eye", as somebody cleverly calls it.

¶A white shirt, or a pair of white socks, or a pair of white flannel trousers, or a white golf hat is, in itself, not a bit cooler than any other color. It feels cooler because it looks it—that's all.

CITY WINS CLAIM TO TRACTION LINE

Supreme Court Confirms Its Right to Seize Manhattan and Queens Property.

RECEIVERS' APPEAL DENIED

Decision Lifts the Injunction Restraining New York From Declaring the Franchise Forfeited.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—The Supreme Court sustained today the judgment of the Circuit Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit, which reversed an order of the District Court for the Eastern District of New York enjoining the New York City Board of Estimate and Apportionment from adopting a resolution declaring the franchise of the Manhattan and Queens Traction Corporation forfeited. The case was that of William R. Begg and Arthur C. Hume, receivers of the corporation, against the City of New York and others. The appeal to the Supreme Court involved mainly the question of jurisdiction on the ground of diversity of citizenship.

"On the threshold of the hearing the appellees moved to dismiss this appeal upon the ground that jurisdiction depends entirely upon diversity of citizenship, and that the decree of the Circuit Court of Appeals is therefore final," said Justice Sanford in the opinion which he handed down for the Supreme Court.

"The appellants were appointed receivers for the Manhattan and Queens Traction Corporation in a suit in equity brought against it in the United States District Court for the Eastern District of New York by a judgment creditor for the administration of its assets. The jurisdiction depended entirely upon diversity of citizenship of the parties.

"The receivers, after taking possession of the corporation's railway in the City of New York, which had been partly completed, filed a petition in this equity case, alleging that the city, through its Board of Estimate and Apportionment, was threatening to adopt a resolution declaring a forfeiture of the franchise contract of the corporation and of the completed portion of the railway for failure to complete the railway within the prescribed time. This, it was averred, would deprive the corporation of its property, in violation of the Fifth and Fourteenth Amendments of the Constitution of the United States and Article 1 of the Constitution of the State of New York, and cause irreparable injury to the corporation, its creditors and the property in the custody of the receivers.

"Upon this petition the court granted the receivers, ex parte, a temporary injunction and an order to show cause why it should not be continued during the receivership, and thereafter, upon a summary hearing, the temporary injunction was made permanent and the city and the board were enjoined under further order of the court from passing a resolution forfeiting or affecting the franchise contract of the corporation, or declaring its railway and property in the hands of the receivers to be the property of the city, or otherwise interfering therewith in any manner. Upon appeal by the city and the board, the Circuit Court of Appeals reversed the order of the District Court granting this injunction, and the receivers have appealed to this court."

The court held that the decree of the Circuit Court of Appeals was final, and the appeal was dismissed.

Intercoastal Conference Called.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—A meeting of the fifteen shipping companies which comprised the intercoastal conference will be held in Washington May 27, it was announced today, with a view to reorganizing the conference. The American-Hawaiian Line of San Francisco has consented to enter the negotiations.

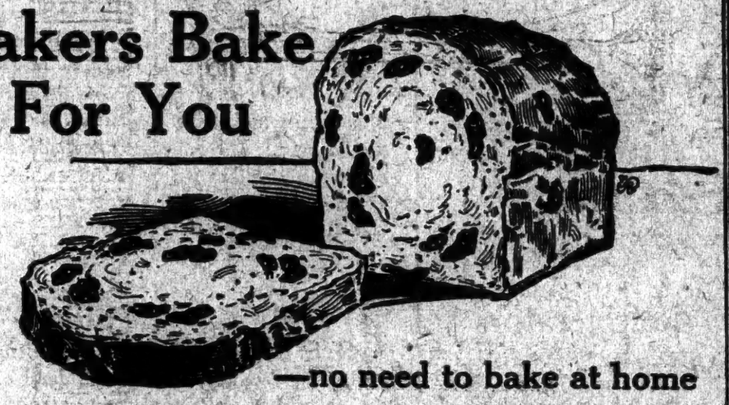
Bakers Bake It For You



—no need to bake at home

HERE'S your old-time favorite—full-fruited raisin bread with at least eight tempting raisins to the slice—already baked for you by master bakers in your city.

Simply 'phone your grocer or a neighborhood bake shop and have a fresh loaf for lunch or dinner to delight your folks.

We've arranged with bakers in almost every town and city to bake this full-fruited raisin bread.

Made with big, plump, tender seeded raisins. The raisin flavor permeates the bread. You've never tasted finer food. Order a loaf now and count the raisins.

Raisin bread is a rare combination of nutritious cereal and fruit—both good and good for you. Serve at least twice weekly to get the benefits.

Use Sun-Maid for home cooking of puddings, cakes, cookies, etc.

You may be offered other brands that you know less well than Sun-Maids, but the kind you want is the kind you know is good. Insist, therefore, on Sun-Maid brand. They cost no more than ordinary raisins.

RIOT OF NOISE STOPS THE PRUSSIAN DIET

Seventeen Communists Are Expelled by the Police Finally Called in to Stop Uproar.

PARTIES VIE IN DISORDER

Slamming of Desk Covers, Shouting, Shrieking and Exchange of Threats Mark Turmoil.

By CYRIL BROWN.

Copyright, 1923, by The New York Times Company.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, May 7.—The Prussian Diet was swept by another storm of disorder today. The daily rows, riots and fisticuffs which have enlivened its legislative proceedings recently, necessitating the maintenance of a strong-arm squad from police headquarters on the premises, have become a new chapter in Teuton Parliamentary history.

The Communists systematically filibustered during the session by continuously slamming the tops of their desks, trampling, whistling, screeching and shouting. Socialist and Bourgeois members unsuccessfully tried to outdo them in noise. The President sought in vain, swinging his bell, to restore order. He directed the Communist ringleader, Paul Hoffmann, to consider himself excluded from the session and leave the hall. The presiding officer also ordered the sergeants-at-arms to clear the visitors' galleries and the press gallery and suspended the session for half an hour while he called for the police.

It was the first time that the press gallery of the Diet had been cleared. A member described the ensuing proceedings thus:

"A shock troop of husky police entered the assembly hall and waded into the Communists, who had stayed behind and massed around Hoffmann in his defiance of the order to leave. A plain clothes policeman seized a Communist member, Herr Schmetter, by the neck and threw him on the floor. The police battered their way into the centre of the Communist group and plucked out Hoffmann, who convulsively sought to cling to his seat, shrieking meanwhile: 'They are trying to murder me. They are pulling my arm out. They want to kidnap me. Help! Help!'

"The police dragged him through the assembly room, but encountered a locked door. Then they dragged him all the way back again, followed by other Communists. They finally kicked and shoved him through a door back of the presiding officer's chair into the lobby, where they turned him loose.

"In the lobby lively scenes ensued, in the course of which the Communist members, Frau Rosi and Herren Schottka and Scholem, were arrested and taken to the Democratic caucus room.

At the second session of the Diet there was such a riot that the presiding officer expelled four Communists who refused to leave. Police reserves were called in and cleared the assembly hall and galleries. Altogether seventeen Communists were driven out of the chamber. The next session is scheduled for tomorrow morning.

GREECE WILL REFUSE TO PAY REPARATIONS

She Also Warns Allies That She Reserves the Right to Punish Defeated Generals.

THREATENS TO KEEP ON WAR

Venizelos Declares That His Government Will Sign No Treaty Violating These Stipulations.

LAUSANNE, May 7 (Associated Press).—Greece came to the front today in a lively conference session over the Near Eastern situation, when Eleutherios Venizelos suddenly convoked a meeting with the allied chiefs, Sir Horace Rumbold, General Pelle and Signor Montagna, and told them some of the things Greece would not accept when it came to the signing of the peace treaty.

M. Venizelos asked for British, French and Italian support in excluding from the Lausanne document the draft provision that the Athenian Government must extend amnesty to Greek military offender. He asserted that this violated the sovereign rights of Greece. The revolutionary Cabinet at Athens, it is evident, wants to keep a free hand in dealing with military officials accused of responsibility for the Asia Minor debacle.

M. Venizelos also warned the allied leaders that Greece would not pay one cent of reparations to Turkey. Greece, he said, was ready to offset Greek with Turkish reparations, but there must be no balance against Greece. Otherwise she would continue the war.

Lastly, the former Greek Premier informed his colleagues that the recent seizure of the Bank of Athens in Constantinople by the Turkish Government was a distinct violation of the terms of the Mudania armistice and should not be tolerated by the European Powers. He expressed a desire for an early consideration of the problem of reparations, saying that that was a peril that should be confronted immediately.

The conference today decided that the Turks should abandon their claim to the right to collect from foreign firms taxes covering the period since the abolition of the Capitulations or extraterritorial rights for foreigners in 1914. Such taxes as have been already paid, however, cannot be recovered by the foreigners. Future taxation will be determined by treaty.

The French, supported by the other Allies, insisted that the dispute over the Turkish contention that the interest on the Ottoman debt be paid by the Turks in their depreciated currency should be adjusted directly between Turkey and the bondholders.

Hope is expressed in conference circles that there will be an adjustment of differences between the Turks and Allies on the question of the powers to be granted the foreign legal advisers in Turkey. The Angora delegates are maintaining a firm attitude, although Minister Grew has advised Ismet Pasha of the wisdom of conceding wide powers to these advisers as a means of quieting the apprehensions aroused in foreign circles by the abolition of the Capitulations.

SEEKS TO BAR MOTORS FROM SWITZERLAND

Copyright, 1923, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LAUSANNE, May 7.—Since the advent of high-powered automobiles there has been a constant war in Switzerland between motorists and walkers. Walking is the favorite amusement of every one in Switzerland who cannot ride, and on Sundays the roads in every direction are filled with strollers. Naturally enough, most of the mountain roads being narrow and most of Switzerland being mountainous, the automobiles interfere with the Sunday sport of the majority of the Swiss.

For years there has been a law in the Canton of Geneva that no automobiles should use the roads on Sunday afternoon. Yesterday a new law went into effect, forbidding automobiles to travel at a speed of more than thirty kilometers (between eighteen and nineteen miles) an hour on Sundays and providing heavy punishment for a motorist passing another on Sunday.

But it develops that this law repeals the restrictions which kept all automobiles off the roads Sunday afternoons. As a consequence the National League of Pedestrians has begun the circulation of a petition calling for a referendum on the issue of excluding all automobiles from Switzerland. If 50,000 signatures are obtained the country will vote.

Inasmuch as there are more Swiss interested in walking than in motoring, the movement is causing the automobile clubs much worry.

Harding to Be Here a Few Hours.

When President Harding comes here on Thursday to speak at the twenty-seventh anniversary celebration of the Volunteers of America, he will stay only a few hours, Dr. A. M. Young, Secretary of the Committee of 1,000, said yesterday. He received a letter from Secretary Christian saying that the President would arrive here in the afternoon, deliver his address at the Metropolitan Opera House, and return immediately to Washington. President Harding is expected to present a testimonial certificate to General and Mrs. Ballington Booth of the Volunteers of America, at this time.

SWEETSER DEFEATED BY LAYTON AT DEAL

U. S. Champion Eliminated in First Round of British Amateur Tourney by 5 and 3.

GARDNER ALSO IS BEATEN

Team Captain Loses to Forrester, 2 Down — Lewis, Standifer and Lake Out.

HARD BLOW TO AMERICANS

But Oulmet, Marston, Rotan, Johnston, Wright, Neville and Hunter Win—Herron and Willing Idle.

DEAL, England, May 7.—The British amateur golf championship was begun here today, causing more excitement than in any previous year. Even the non-golfing population of the British Isles is watching the results with keenest interest and all because the Americans this year are making a most determined attempt to capture the trophy. It may be said at once that the Americans have displayed such fine sportsmanship since their arrival that they would, if successful, be heartily congratulated on a well-deserved victory.

In seventy-two matches played today twelve Americans participated. Of this number five succumbed and seven got through into the second round, so that the American force has been considerably reduced. Among the five who suffered defeat were such stalwarts as Robert A. Gardner, Captain of the Walker Cup team; Jess W. Sweetser, the American amateur champion; H. S. Lake, R. M. Lewis and Guy Standifer. Survivors are Francis Ouimet, John T. Neville, Robert Hunter, George V. Rotan, Max R. Marston, S. Harrison Johnston and Fred Wright. The first round was not completed today, so that S. Davidson Herron, who comes toward the end of the list, will play his first match tomorrow. The remaining American competitor, Dr. O. F. Willing, has a bye into the second round.

Weather conditions at Deal today were not too good for the American players. The calm of the previous days had disappeared, and was succeeded by a stiff breeze with a cold touch to it. Anyway with one or two exceptions, the golf in general, whether it came from the American or British side, was not striking.

Two Defeats Unexpected.

The two biggest sensations of the day were, of course, the defeats of Gardner, who was bracketed with Ouimet as a probable winner among the Americans, and Sweetser, who failed absolutely to reproduce the form he showed when he first arrived. Gardner's exhibition was distinctly disappointing. It was about the worst golf he ever played in this country. Playing against S. Forrester, former champion of India, he sliced, pulled and topped his ball. He took 6s at the second and third holes, and yet, after taking 43 for the first half, he was 1 up on his opponent. He won the first hole in 4, but on the second tee, in attempting to cheat the wind, he smothered his shot, his ball traveling only a few yards into a bunker. Even after getting out, it took him 4 to reach the green. Again, at the third, Gardner sent his second shot into the sand hills, and he lost another hole. At the short fourth the American captain was not far enough with his tee shot and was far with his third, and he became 2 down. In the next five holes he retrieved himself sufficiently to become 1 up at the ninth, but Forrester drew level at the tenth. And so it went until Forrester became dormie one at the seventeenth, where Gardner missed a putt of a little more than a yard to win. He couldn't capture the last hole, and so went into the discard. Gardner said afterward: "I didn't know what club to take, but I thought of Francis Ouimet's advice always to underclub yourself and hit hard when you are in doubt. You saw the result."

Ouimet Wins Comfortably.

Ouimet, although not entirely satisfied with his golf, won comfortably, beating Arnold Read by 4 and 3. The American was slicing his shots and was otherwise uncertain in his direction and curiously enough was weak on putting. He is reckoned here to be one of the best amateur putters, his style being pointed out even by professional golfers as an example to be copied—if possible.

A big crowd followed the Ouimet-Read match, but they would have seen better golf elsewhere. Nevertheless, the American reached the turn in forty and only required twenty-five strokes for the next six holes, which was as far as the match went. Ouimet was lucky to win the fifteenth hole. Read had played a pitch shot to within two feet of the pin. Ouimet played a pitch and run and, as the ball, which looked like running yards beyond hole, struck the back of the tin, jumped up and stopped dead. And then Read missed his putt.

Sweetser found a formidable opponent in Noel Layton, who won by 5 and 3. The Englishman was beating the American at his own game, namely, approaching, but even so the latter was only one down at the turn. He halved the next two holes and then collapsed sensationally and lost the next four. But it must be said that Layton was putting over some very hot stuff in those last few holes. He was only one over fours at the fourteenth and this despite the fact that he lost two holes through missed drives. Sweetser balanced this, however, by missing a foot putt at the thirteenth and then thrusting his tee shot at the fourteenth into a bunker. There was much speculation as to how the American champion would fare in today's wind.

After his defeat he said: "I'm not going to cry over it. Layton played the better golf. I had chances at the start and did not take them and I shall have to put up with the result. The only explanation I can offer is that the course played differently from any time previously. In fact it was upside down owing to the wind having gone right around."

Johnston's Game Brilliant.

A welcome change from some of the poor golf that had gone before was provided by H. R. Johnston. His relentless accuracy was altogether too much for H. G. Holden, whom he beat at the eleventh hole by 9 and 7. Johnston did not sink any exceptionally long putts, and yet he did the first nine holes in 35, with a 6 at the fifth, his outward figures being 3, 4, 5, 3, 6, 4, 4, 2, 4. He got fours at the next two holes.

G. V. Rotan was another brilliant exception. Playing against J. A. Board, he dazzled the latter by doing fourteen holes in one over fours after losing a ball at the third. But the amazing part of his performance was that he had six threes, although there are only three one-shot holes on the course. He won comfortably by 6 and 4. Neville had no difficulty in disposing of Viscount Maidstone by 5 and 4, and Max Marston won even more easily by beating Lieutenant Commander G. Miller by 7 and 5. Fred Wright played rather patchy golf, but beat Commander Bannerman by 2 up. Two Americans, Robert Hunter and S. S. Lake, had the misfortune to be drawn against each other in the first round. Hunter beat his compatriot by 4 and 2.

But the first of the Americans during the day to suffer defeat was Reginald Lewis. He lost a remarkable match to Leslie Schon, who is one of the crack players of the Deal Club. Schon was 4 down at the sixth, but then started getting holes back until he brought the match all square at the fifteenth. They were still all square at the seventeenth, but Lewis then smothered his drive and was beaten 1 up. Lewis's score for the round was 80. Guy Standifer was handicapped by an injury to his foot, received aboard ship on the way over, especially in his long game, but he was putting well. His opponent, H. E. Le Bas, was 2 up at the turn, and finally won by 3 and 2.

Among the Britishers, three favorites—Tolley, Wethered and Holderness—all survived the first round. Wethered managed to beat E. R. Campbell by 1 up, but his golf was not such as to inspire confidence. Tolley in defeating Hartley by 3 and 1 accomplished some amazing drives, some of them reaching a distance of over 300 yards, and in other departments of the game showed encouraging improvement on his recent form. Holderness, too was playing extremely well. His match with John Wilson, Scottish amateur champion, was the sternest struggle of the day, and produced some sterling golf. The match was ding-dong all the way up to the last green, where the English champion won by 2 up.

Other winners today were Bernard Darwin and W. A. Murray, each of whom may go a long way toward the final.

Seven Yankees Survive.

DEAL, England, May 7 (Associated Press).—Seven Americans passed safely through the first round of the British amateur golf championship today. Five others who came across seas hopeful of taking back with them the British title went down to defeat. Two others of the team, S. Davison Herron and Dr. O. F. Willing, will not get started until tomorrow.

Numbered among the seventy-two ambitious amateurs who failed today were Jess Sweetser, the American champion, and Robert A. Gardner, captain of the American team, on whom high hopes had rested. Neither man played well in the wind that was blowing today—a wind that killed many fond dreams. They readily acknowledged that in getting drubbed they received their desert. With them went down Guy Standifer of Washington, Reginald M. Lewis of Greenwich, Conn., and H. S. Lake of Hartford, Conn.

Those of the Americans who won their matches are Francis Ouimet of Boston, now the lone member of the America's "big three" remaining in the tournament, who breezed along recording pars or birdies with splendid regularity; Max R. Marston of Philadelphia, Harrison R. Johnston of St. Paul, Fred Wright Jr. of Los Angeles, John F. Neville of San Francisco and Robert Hunter.

Ouimet's game did not rise to the heights where so often it has risen to thrill the gallery and wound the spirit of an opponent, but it was good enough to do what he set out to do—to defeat a gray-haired, rather slim gentleman whom fate had named as the first obstacle to his bath to possible glory, A. H. Read of Sunningdale. Ouimet won from Read 4 up and 3to play and just about the same moment that the Boston player was receiving congratulations from the vanquished another American, Neville, was having a similar enjoyable experience. It was a noble lord, Viscount Maidstone, the commoner from California crushed, 5 up and 4 to play.

Johnston One Under 4s.

The vigorous young Jimmy Johnston never bothered his head about the terrible gusts off the Channel that seemed so much to irritate Sweetser. Johnston was one under fours for eleven holes, and that was all he had to play today, as by that time he was 9 up on his opponent, H. S. Holden.

Rotan rushed through almost as rapidly. Perhaps he would have attained Johnston's speed had he not lost the third hole, where he had seven, or had he been less badly bunkered on the fifth, where he took six to sink his ball. For the rest of the route Rotan romped along like a record-smasher, picking up a half-dozen threes on the way to sandwich between his fours. He was out in 38 and was one under fours on the last five holes.

Max Marston also had an easy time in defeating Lieut. Commander Guy Miller, 7 up and 5 to play. Wright, however had some difficulty in drubbing his veteran opponent; Commander Bannerman, a task he completed only on the home hole. They had halved more than half of the holes and came down the stretch even. At the sixteenth Wright finally pushed ahead and looked like a sure winner at the seventeenth, but Bannerman sank a long putt to even the hole. Going to the eighteenth Bannerman missed the green with his second, while Wright was on. The Commander's pitch was not very good, while Wright got his third shot to within a few inches of the cup and the match was conceded to him 2 up.

The side-tracking of Sweetser and Gardner constituted the sad story of the day. Sweetser was soundly knocked out of the tournament by Noel Layton of the Royal Cinque Ports Club, who writes golf for magazines and knows every dip and curve in the course, because it is his home club. Layton disposed of Sweetser by a score of 5 and 3.

Loses at Home Hole.

Gardner had the satisfaction of going all the way to the eighteenth hole before passing out, 2 down. G. D. Forrester, his opponent, once was captain of the Oxford golfers, and after graduation went to India, where, in 1921, he won the championship of the colony. Gardner, during the play, could not make his irons behave, and his putts would not go down as he would have liked them to go. The American was 2 down at the fourth, but he pulled himself together, and at the turn was one up. Forrester evened things at the tenth, and honors changed several times up to the fourteenth, after which Gardner could not make his putter sink the ball, losing the fifteenth, seventeenth and eighteenth.

Sweetser, who had learned to play the course with the southwest winds blowing, found the gusts coming from the northeast when he went to the first tee this afternoon. He remarked later that he had learned to play the course one way, and then was turned upon by the elements. It was obvious from the start that the wind was troublesome. He constantly tossed dirt in the air to see the direction the breeze was blowing. After the sixth hole, where he lost the lead, he never could regain it.

The American champion had other worries than the wind. Some of them were his wood clubs and some his irons, but mostly they came from his putter. Last, however, but by no means least, one of his troubles was Mr. Layton, who plugged along, satisfied with scratch scores and par scores, while Sweetser was finishing in a solid block of fives.

The cards of the Gardner-Forrester, Sweetser-Layton and Ouimet-Read matches follow:

British Golfdom Is Sorry To See Gardner Eliminated

LONDON, May 7. (Associated Press).—"The Americans are so good and so dangerous that we cannot afford to feel sentimental over their defeat, but Gardner has so endeared himself to British golfers that one may shed one little tear over his departure without it being suspected of being a crocodile tear," says The Times's golf expert. The Sweetser-Layton match he describes as rather curious golf, "with two rather restive and high-mettled players somewhat frightened of each other." The correspondent adds that, granted the American champion did not play as the correspondent saw him play in the United States, "Layton is deserving of great credit" for defeating him.

TUFTER CAPTURES JAMAICA FEATURE

JOCKEY IS THROWN TWICE

Fields Unseated Before and After First Contest by W. Clancy's Herby Coles.

Out of the large list of eligibles, only six were named for the fifteenth running of the Garden City Selling Stakes, $2,000 added, at a mile and a sixteenth, and scratches reduced the feature race at the Jamaica track yesterday afternoon to only three starters. They were H. Alterman's Tufter, the Quincy Stable's All Over and William Daniel's Olynthus. A large early week crowd was on hand, and All Over was the heavily played favorite, closing at 6 to 5. It wasn't much of a contest, Tufter breaking into the lead and running in front from post to wire, with Olynthus a couple of lengths behind throughout the journey and All Over about the same distance in the rear. Tufter hung momentarily at the half mile, but Laverne Fator sent him on from that point, and he was never in danger, the old gelding winning handily by a length and a half. Olynthus was two and a half lengths in front of All Over at the finish. Tufter was quoted at 2 to 1, receding from an opening of 5 to 2, while Olynthus was 3 to 1 in the betting. The race, which was worth $2,000 to the owner of the winner, was run in the good time of 1:46 2-5, which has only once been beaten in this event. That was in 1913, when J. L. Holland's Donald MacDonald ran the distance in 1:46 flat.

Tufter, an aged black gelding by MacDonald II.—Rose Pompon, is apparently made up of wire and whalebone, for he has won more than forty races since being discarded by the Widener Stable. The handsome French-bred gelding was used as a saddle horse by one of the members of the family of J. E. Widener, who bred him in France. He was too small to make into a jumper and was disposed of after winning a maiden race at Pimlico. In other hands Tufter has been a steady and sure winner and is still going strong.

Because of his easy victory on Saturday when he graduated from the maiden class, Eaglet was heavily played in the Cumberland, the closing number on the card. It was a five-furlong dash for two-year-olds, Eaglet being coupled with Mad Play, the other Rancocas Stable entry, the pair opening at 2 to 5, going to 4 to 5 and closing at 11 to 20, with no place and show quotations. The only other starters were Mrs. T. W. O'Brien's Reply and R. S. Brown's Anne. The former was well fancied on the strength of his easy victory in the inaugural over Donaghee and Lucky Play on the first afternoon, opening at 6 to 5 and receding to 9 to 5 at post time.

Anne Runs Furiong Alone.

Anne misbehaved at the post and finally broke away and ran a furlong before Lang could pull her up and this apparently killed her chances. She was last away when the barrier rose and while she moved up to second for a short time the filly gradually dropped back to finish last. Reply took command at the start was was never headed, running a level race and holding her opposition safely to win by a length and a half from Eaglet, which had a big margin over his stablemate. The race was run in fast time, Reply doing the five furlongs in 0:59 4-5, only two-fifth of a second slower than the track record.

William Clancy sent a trick horse out for the first race in Herby Coles, which succeeded in tossing off Jockey Fields at the end of the parade and again at the post with such ease that he might qualify for a wild west show. After this performance the gelding broke last and maintained the same position at the finish. The race was for maiden two-year-olds and it was won by L. E. Carpenter's Normanna, the 2-to-1 favorite. The Superman filly won easily, never being threatened and having a six-lengths margin over Goldmark at the finish. The feature of the race was the battle between Goldmark, Gibson and Insurance for the place, which was finally named getting the verdict by a neck, while Gibson finished a length in front of Insurance.

The poorest start of the meeting was in the second race, at five and a half furlongs, in which Vice Regent was left at the post and Zouave and Air Bubble failed to break with the rest and trailed the field in that order. Twelve went to the post and Frank J. Farrell's Sea Sand proved the best running horse throughout, although McAtee had to ride him out to beat Dunsandel by three-quarters of a length. The latter was closest to the leader all the way, while Nightboat closed a big gap in the stretch to take third short end of the purse. Nightboat was claimed for $1,550 by Art Rold.

Diagram Wins Brackets.

August Belmont's Diagram, the gelded son of Fair Play, made amends for his poor showing on Friday in a six-furlong dash for maidens, when he gained brackets in the corresponding race yesterday afternoon, easily beating eight other starters. The race evidently did him good, as he appeared short in his first trial. Incidentally, Eddie Dugan, who had the mount, rode his first winner since the veteran returned to the saddle in this section. F. D. Clarke's Golf set the early pace, but tired after running half a mile and was not a serious contender thereafter. Dugan then sent Diagram up to take the lead, which the gelding held to the finish, winning by three lengths from A. K. Macomber's Spurred Eagle, the latter being a length in front of Frank Farrell's Rock Bottom. The winner was the favorite at 5 to 2.

The weights for the $7,500 Excelsior Handicap, at a mile and a sixteenth, to be run on Saturday afternoon, were announced yesterday. Every good horse in the country, with the exception of Exterminator, was named for the event, which has been run since 1903, when Fuller won it with William C. Whitney's Blackstock. Grey Lag, as was to be expected after his easy victory in the Kinsey County Handicap, is at top weight, being asked to carry 130 pounds. Kai Sang is second with 126 pounds. Hunting will carry 124 and Lucky Hour 123.

Canadian Tracks Start Action to Recover $461,000 in Taxes

TORONTO, May 7.—The Kenilworth Racing Association of Windsor and the Metropolitan Racing Association of Toronto today took legal proceedings against the Ontario Government for the return of $461,000, the amount of taxes taken by the 8 per cent. tax on winning tickets from the two race tracks last year. The action was taken, it was said, to test the legality of the tax. The Metropolitan management last year asked its successful patrons to sign their tickets so that they could be reimbursed if the law was not upheld.

MARTINGALE BEATS PREAKNESS ENTRIES

Cosden's Bay Finishes Ahead of Vigil and Goshawk at Pimlico Track.

Special to The New York Times.

PIMLICO, Md., May 7.—Preakness candidates had another trial this afternoon in the third race, which was for three-year-olds over a mile route, and J. S. Cosden's Martingale came through with the honors by beating Walter J. Salmon's Vigil, Col. Bodarin's Goshawk, the Greentree Stable's Barbary Bush and his own stablemate, Golden Rule. The Nevada Stock Farm's General Thatcher, R. T. Wilson's Tall Timber and the Greentree Stable's Moonraker were scratched. Martingale and Goshawk carried the top weight of 120 pounds, giving ten pounds to Barbary Bush and eight to Vigil and Golden Rule.

The Spring Juvenile Stakes of $5,000 added, brought nine two-year-olds to the post for the dash of four and one-half furlongs, the Xalapa Farm's June Flower winning her fourth straight race since coming to Maryland.

KANE POSTS FORFEIT FOR SHELBY MATCH

Gibbons's Manager Puts Up $25,000 to Bind Dempsey Bout on July 4.

CHICAGO, May 7.—With the posting of a $25,000 forfeit, Eddie Kane, manager of Tom Gibbons, St. Paul heavyweight, today fulfilled the challenger's contract, binding a championship match with Jack Dempsey, at Shelby, Mont., the boom town, on July 4.

Kane plans to leave for St. Paul tomorrow to complete details preliminary to Gibbons's departure for the training camp. He hopes to engage Billy Miske, St. Paul heavyweight, as one of Gibbons's sparring partners; Miske fought Dempsey twice; knows his style and Kane figures he will be a valuable assistant.

Gibbons will leave shortly on a barnstorming trip through the West meeting all comers in important towns in Utah, Montana and the Dakotas. He expects to be settled in training camp not later than May 17. It is possible that he will train in Billings, Mont., as he has received an invitation to establish camp there. Dempsey will do his training at Great Falls.

Mike Collins, matchmaker for the Montana promoters, left tonight for Minneapolis en route to Shelby to superintend the construction of an arena, seating 40,000 and costing $50,000. Work will be started Wednesday. Collins said and the contractors have assured him of its completion within a month.

DEMPSEY SENDS RUSH CALL FOR PARTNERS

Anxious to Start Training Immediately —Kearns May Arrive Here Today.

Jack Dempsey, world's heavyweight champion, has sounded the first call for help in his contemplated campaign of preparation for the defense of his title against Tom Gibbons, St. Paul light-heavyweight, at Shelby, Mont., July 4. The title holder wired the headquarters of Jack Kearns, his manager, in this city yesterday, instructing Kearns to enlist the aid of several husky sparring partners without delay.

The champion, it was announced, plans to continue training for a time at Dempsey City, Utah, before shifting his quarters to Great Falls, Mont. Since the contract for the Shelby bout provides that Dempsey must do his training in Great Falls, it is thought unlikely the champion will come here, as was expected, for the Milk Fund bouts next Saturday.

Kearns was expected here yesterday morning on the Twentieth Century from Chicago, but at the manager's office it was said he had not put in an appearance. Inquiry at Kearns's home elicited a similar response, although the champion's manager had wired that he would arrive in the morning. It is expected that Kearns will arrive here today and begin immediately the preparations for Dempsey's training campaign.

Indications point to Kearns leaving this city before another week has passed. The manager intends to join Dempsey as soon as he closes his affairs in this city and arranges for the services of several sparring partners for the champion, it was said.

JOHNNY CLINTON OUTBOXES PRYEL

East Side Veteran Floors Opponent Three Times at Broadway Club.

Johnny Clinton, rugged east side ring veteran, last night added Ray Pryel, Homestead (Pa.) lightweight, to his list of vanquished rivals. The pair clashed in the stellar bout of twelve rounds at the Broadway Exhibition Association, Brooklyn. Clinton received the judges' decision. The verdict met with the approval of the large crowd which witnessed the bout.

Through the twelve rounds Clinton piled up a large lead, battering Pryel severely about the face and body with a two-fisted assault which Clinton launched with the opening bell. Only the gameness of Pryel enabled him to survive Clinton's wicked attack. Three times Pryel was on the verge of a knockout, but the bell came to his rescue on two occasions and he rallied pluckily. In the closing half minute of the bout Clinton had his rival staggering and almost helpless, but Pryel managed to clinch until the welcome final bell rang.

Clinton floored his opponent three times. Twice in the first round Pryel went to the floor, first from a right to the jaw, followed by a hard left as he was falling. Pryel regained his feet at a count of nine but was groggy. Clinton leaped in and floored his opponent again with a left and right to the jaw. At the count of three the bell came to Pryel's rescue.

In the tenth round Clinton floored Pryel and almost knocked him out of the ring with a right to the jaw, but again Pryel regained his feet before taking the count of nine. Through the closing three rounds Clinton pressed the attack and battered Pryel hard, but the latter gamely stood up under the fusillade of blows. Clinton weighed 135½ pounds and Pryel 139½.

In the six-round bouts Joey Silvers and Moe Ginsberg, featherweight, boxed a draw, Harry Gabe gained the decision over Joe Tobin, and Lou Chester received the decision over Charlie Picker.

DUNDEE ACCEPTS PLAN.

Will Waive Protest if Kilbane and Criqui Post $10,000.

Announcement is expected this week of the removal of the final obstacle in the path of the bout between Johnny Kilbane and Eugene Criqui, scheduled for June 2 at the Polo Grounds. Johnny Dundee, Italian veteran, who is recognized by the State Athletic Commission as the featherweight champion, yesterday was reported agreeable to the commission's plan which would compel Kilbane and Criqui to sign contracts and post forfeits of $10,000 each, agreeing to box Dundee after the Polo Grounds bout.

This arrangement has been proposed to insure Dundee of a match for the world's featherweight title against the winner of the June 2 bout. It is understood, too, that Dundee is prepared to post a $10,000 forfeit, which has been demanded by Kilbane.

McTIGUE MAY FIGHT GREB.

Light-Heavyweight Champion Plans to Defend Title in Chicago.

Mike McTigue world's light-heavyweight champion, will box Harry Greb of Pittsburgh, former American title-holder, in a ten-round no-decision bout on June 9 in Chicago if present plans materialize. The bout will take the place of McTigue's scheduled meeting with Young Bob Fitzsimmons, originally arranged for May 29 in Chicago, which has been called off, Joe Jacobs, manager of McTigue, yesterday announced the abandonment of the Fitzsimmons battle and the start of negotiations for a match to be held in the National League baseball park in Chicago. The proposed clash with Greb is one of a series planned by Jacobs for McTigue before the champion's meeting with Georges Carpentier, scheduled for July 14.

RICKARD INSPECTS YANKEE STADIUM

Will Start Work Today to Transform New Ball Park Into Outdoor Boxing Arena.

Promoter Tex Rickard yesterday began final preparations for the Milk Fund heavyweight carnival which will be held at the Yankee Stadium next Saturday afternoon. He visited the American League baseball grounds and in company with Business Manager Ed Barrow of the Yankees and Jim Eustace and Harry Mayler, director of Rickard's force of ushers, went over tentative plans for transforming the great ball park into a well-policed outdoor boxing club.

After inspecting the scene of the heavyweight carnival Rickard announced that a force of carpenters would start installing the field chairs today. There will be about 10,000 of those seats, leading away from the ring in all four directions. The ring, which will be erected over the pitcher's box, will be put up tomorrow, according to Rickard's plans. By Thursday it is expected to have the transformation so far completed as to permit a drill of the ushers. The promoter has not yet determined how many ushers he will require.

The policing of the ground, it is expected, will be done by members of the regular police force, which will be a departure from the custom of the past, when special policemen were employed. Rickard has been in consultation with Police Department officials, and expects to have between 400 and 500 of the "finest" assigned to the route in addition to a large detail of firemen.

Will Avoid Confusion.

Because of the heavy demand anticipated for lower priced tickets Rickard has arranged to throw open the park five hours before time for the first bout. The promoter will open the general admission entrances at 10 o'clock in the morning, and at noon he plans to begin the sale of tickets to the reserved seat

FIGHT MARKS GAME AS GIANTS TRIUMPH

Police Stop Battle Between Stengel and Weinert, Philly Pitcher, in Fourth.

CHAMPIONS HIT BALL HARD

Drive Meadows From the Mound in First Inning and Triumph by 13 to 8.

BENTLEY WINNING PITCHER

Former Baltimore Star Also Makes Three Safeties—Mokan Gets Two Home Runs.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, May 7.—A swirl of fists in the fourth inning marked today's game between the Giants and the Phillies, a game which was won by the Giants by a score of 13 to 8. The gladiators were Casey Stengel and Phil Weinert, a left-handed pitcher on the Phillies' staff, who broke into the game when the Giants hammered Lee Meadows out of the box before a man had been retired in the first inning. Jack Bentley, who pitched for the Giants, moved nicely through seven innings, but was hit hard in the eighth and ninth. Bentley also made three hits. It was the first victory for the former star of the Orioles since joing the champions.

The fight in the fourth was precipitated by a belief on Stengel's part that Weinert had tried to "bean" him. Thoroughly aroused, Casey threw his bat in Weinert's direction and then rushed out to the box. In an instant the two players were swinging at each other, while other players of both teams gathered around them and policemen poured out of the stands.

Manager Arthur Fletcher of the Phils, aided by two policemen, dragged Stengel away from his opponent and Casey was escorted to the Giants' bench by three policemen. Still full of fight, Stengel struggled against the minions of the law, but his struggles were in vain. He and Weinert were ordered from the field by Umpire Barry McCormick. Jimmy Bishop being called in to finish the game in the box for the Phillies. Ralph Shinners replaced Stengel.

The contest was dotted with home runs, Johnny Mokan making two and George Kelly and Bill Cunningham each getting one.

Frisch Doubles in First.

Bancroft started the downfall of Meadows with a single to centre. Groh walked and Frisch smashed a double to left centre, scoring Bancroft and sending Groh to third. Groh scored and Frisch reached third when Stengel singled to left and Young brought Frisch in and put Stengel on third with a double against the scoreboard on the fence in right centre.

Kelly duplicated Young's blow, scoring Stengel and Young. This sent Meadows to the showers and brought Weinert into the game. Weinert began by wild pitching Kelly to third base and Kelly scored while Bancroft was throwing out Cunningham. After Snyder had expired on a long fly to Williams, Bentley singled to right but Bancroft, up for the second time in the inning, hit to Sands, who tossed to Parkinson, forcing Bentley.

Cunningham took an extra base hit away from Walker in the second inning when he grabbed a hard hit ball with his gloved hand while running at top speed close to the scoreboard. Then, after Mokan had been retired, Sand walked, but Parkinson fell a victim on strikes.

In the third inning the Giants scored three runs after two were out. Snyder singled to right, Bentley doubled to left and Bancroft sent both big fellows lumbering over the plate with a double to left. Bancroft went on to third when Mokan hurled the ball past that bag. Groh walked and, when Weinert made another wild pitch, Bancroft scored. Groh tried to go all the way to third on this, but was nipped at the far corner.

Bentley Tightens in Finch.

With Henline out of the way in the Phillies' half of the inning, Weinert beat out a bunt along the first base line. Rapp singled to centre. Weinert scored and Rapp dashed to third when Holke doubled to right. At this juncture Bentley tightened up, fanning Williams and tossing out Walker.

Replacing Stengel at the bat after Casey fought himself out of the game in the fourth inning, Shinners dropped a Texas leaguer in left centre for two bases. He reached third on Young's out at first base and scored on Kelly's double to left.

In the Phillies' half of the inning Mokan deposited the ball in the left field bleachers for a home run. After Sand and Parkinson had perished, O'Brien singled to right but was forced by Bishop.

Snyder singled to left in the fifth inning and Bentley delivered his third hit, a single to right. Bentley was forced by Bancroft. Snyder reaching third, Frank and Dave worked a double steal, Snyder scoring.

Kelly hammered the ball over the right field barrier in the seventh inning and Cunningham, following him to the plate, hit a brand new ball into the left field bleachers.

Bentley weakened toward the finish and the Phillies took him for three runs in the eighth inning and three more in the ninth. In the eighth, Rapp walked, Holke, Williams and Lee singled and Mokan doubled. In the ninth Rapp singled, took second on Williams's out, went to third unmolested and scored on a single by Lee Mokan then delivered his second home run.

PITTSBURGH BEATS CARDINALS, 11 TO 4

Hammers Four Pitchers for 20 Hits—Adams Holds St. Louis in Pinches.

PITTSBURGH, May 7.—Pittsburgh hammered four St. Louis pitchers for twenty hits and a total of twenty-eight bases, and won today's game, 11 to 4. The veteran Babe Adams was hit hard by the Cardinals at times, but tightened in the pinches. The Pirates left tonight on their invasion of the East after having won all seven games played at home.

First Baseman Grimm of the Pirates, who slammed out three hits today, one a triple, has hit safely in all twenty games played this season.

Crush Browns, 12 to 3 — Speaker Still Out of Game.

CLEVELAND, May 7.—The Indians evened up the series with St. Louis today, winning by a score of 12 to 3. Uhle was in good form, holding the Browns to seven hits, and also starred at the bat, making three hits, including two doubles. Manager Speaker was still under suspension, Summa playing centre field and Brower right.

ROBINS WIN, 12-11; BRAVES USE 21 MEN

GAME GOES TEN INNINGS

Johnston Slides Over With Winning Run on Fournier's Out—Eight Errors by Losers.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., May 7.—The Brooklyn Robins made it two out of three from the Boston Braves here today when they annexed the final game of the series by the score of 12 to 11 in ten weird innings. The Robins made fifteen hits and the Braves thirteen safeties and eight errors.

Thirty-five players took part in the contest. Boston used twenty-one, which sets a new National League record for maximum number of men used by any one team in a championship game. The Giants and the Cardinals held the previous record, the former having three times used that number. The American League record is twenty-three, held by Cleveland.

Ten pitchers were used in today's slugfest, the Braves sending in six and the Robins four. In the eighth and ninth innings Brooklyn twirlers appeared so rapidly that it was difficult to keep track of them. One, Art Decatur, did not last long enough to retire a batter. He passed two men in the eighth and forced in two runs. That was enough for him, and George Smith took his place.

Smith could not hold the Braves, and finally Vance was called upon. Dazzy managed to be crowned the winning pitcher.

Rube Marquard was the last of the six Boston hurlers to be used, and he was charged with the loss of the game.

The deciding run was the result of an out by Jacques Fournier, the Robins' new first sacker. With one out in the tenth, Johnston beat out a hit to Boeckel. Griffith drew a pass, and the bases were filled when Kopf fumbled Wheat's grounder. Fournier sent a short fly to Felix, and after the catch Johnston dashed for the plate. The Brooklyn player slid into Gibson, and Umpire Klem, unable to get out of the way, went down with the players in collision. While in a sitting position Klem wiped his brow and shouted, "He's safe!"

Dickerman Starts for Robins.

Leo Dickerman started as pitcher for the Robins. His rival was John Watson. In the second inning the Robins pounded out four hits, and with the aid of errors by Boeckel and Southworth they sent six runs over the plate. While the bombardment was in progress Watson retired and Joe Genewich succeeded him. The latter lasted until the sixtht session, when he gave way to a pinch hitter, Jim Cooney then taking up the burden. Benton, Oeschger and Marquard followed Cooney in the order named, Marquard pitching the last two innings.

The Robins picked up another run in the third inning on Fournier's triple and Hoyt's infield out. In the fifth another Brooklyn run was made on Wheat's triple and Neis's single. These two batters hit safely again in the seventh and one more Brooklyn run was scored.

The Braves were docile under Dickerman's pitching until the sixth inning when, after two were out, they scored five runs. A double by Felix, singles by Southworth, Kopf, O'Neil and Henry and an error by Olsen came in quiet order. Henry batted for Genewich and his hit scored two men.

Mamaux succeeded Dickerman and in the eighth session he was taken out. Before he retired in that inning Mamaux passed three men and another batter. Decatur replaced him and walked Kopf and O'Neil, forcing two more Braves across the plate. Smith was called upon and before he retired the side he forced in another run by walking Powell.

Braves Tie the Score.

Smith started the ninth by passing McInnis and Felix. Then Uncle Robbie sent an emergency call for Vance and the Braves succeeded in scoring the three runs which were needed to tie the score. Conlon singled to left and McInnis scored while Felix took third. Kopf singled to left and Felix romped home. Gowdy batted for Oeschger and forced Bob Smith, who ran for Conlon, at third. Gibson beat out an infield hit, scoring the run when Vance passed Powell, forcing in Kopf with the tying run. There was great excitement among the local fans. With the bases crowded Southworth lined to Johnston, who threw to Hugh and Gowdy was doubled up off third.

DAUSS WINS FOR TIGERS.

Scores Fifth Straight Victory by Beating White Sox, 3-4.

CHICAGO, May 7.—Detroit bunched hits today and defeated Chicago, 3 to 4, in the final game of the series. George Dauss kept the White Sox's hits well scattered with the exception of two innings, and as a result won his fifth consecutive game for the Tigers. Home runs by Cobb and Hooper, the former's with two on and the latter's with one on, and the fielding of McClellan and Jones were features.

GIANTS OPEN SERIES AGAINST CUBS TODAY

Meet First of Western Teams at Polo Grounds—Yankees in Cleveland.

Following three weeks of pleasurable feasting on the weaker Eastern clubs, New York's two champions will meet a sterner test today when the intersectional clashes in both major leagues begin. The Chicago Cubs will wage battle with the Giants at the Polo Grounds, and the Yankees will begin their tour of the sunset sector in Cleveland with a game against their old rivals, Tris Speaker's Indians.

In both leagues it will be East against West. The National League schedule calls for Chicago at New York, Pittsburgh at Brooklyn, Cincinnati at Boston and St. Louis at Philadelphia. The line-up in the American is New York at Cleveland, Boston at Chicago, Philadelphia at St. Louis and Washington at Detroit.

The Giants will face a mean test against Chicago, Cincinnati, Pittsburgh and St. Louis, but they will not be nearly so hard pressed as the Yankees, who will have to make their first invasion of the Western strongholds of the younger circuit. The Hugmen leave New York with a lead of less than half a game, and the most enthusiastic of their friends will be satisfied if they come back within striking distance of the top.

Not in many seasons has the American League been so strong in the Western sector. Detroit, Chicago, Cleveland and St. Louis are all beginning to strike their stride; they look like first division possibilities, all of them. And it goes without saying that the Yanks will find the Western voyage no royal road to a championship. It looks as if each of the four series will be a battle in itself. Added to this is the fact that the Yanks also must visit Philadelphia and Washington, which means that they will stop at every American League city except Boston before returning on May 21.

In their home stronghold the Giants will be more firmly entrenched than their American League cousins, but it will be an interesting test of strength, the season's first battle between the champions of 1922 and their chief rivals from the West. Following the Cubs, who lead the procession, will come the Pirates, then the Reds and finally the Cardinals. The order of march for the Yanks will be Cleveland, Detroit, St. Louis and Chicago. The Hugmen left for Cleveland at 6:30 last evening.

McGraw will shoot either Fred Johnson, the San Antonio youngster, or the veteran Jack Scott at the Cubs today. Bill Killefer has been saving up Grover Cleveland Alexander for the first game of the Eastern invasion.

Just before leaving for the Western belt yesterday Miller Huggins gave Herbert Johnson, the young right hander from the Dakota League, his release to the Atlanta club of the Southern Association.

JERSEY CITY WINS BY HEAVY BATTING

Pounds Three Syracuse Pitchers, Taking Game, 9 to 6—Barnhardt Twirls Effectively.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., May 7.—Jersey City won the second game of the series from Syracuse here this afternoon, 9 to 6, by hitting three Syracuse pitchers hard. The Syracuse team rallied in the second inning, when Lynch lost all control and forced in a run by hitting Dubuc, who was batting for Pierotti. Barnhardt, who finished for Jersey City, twirled effectively.

HAMMETT LOSES AT NORTH SIDE NETS

PLAY REACHES 4TH ROUND

Tournament to Continue Today on Courts at University Heights Club.

The second of the eight seeded players in the north side championship, which is being staged on the courts of the University Heights Tennis Club, was eliminated yesterday when Alfred D. Hammett was defeated in the third round of the tournament by George C. Whitlock. Playing a strong all-around game and putting up a defense that admitted no shot to go uncontested, Whitlock won in straight sets by the scores of 6—3, 9—7. Kenneth D. Fisher was the first of the ranking players to fall by the wayside, losing to Jerry Lang on Sunday. One other of the eight came near fading out of the picture yesterday. A. V. Cawse, in the second set of his match with Armand L. Bruneau, stumbled while attempting to get at a ball sent deep into his court and fell heavily to the ground. When he resumed play he found that his wrist, which had doubled under his body, was weak, and play was suspended while it was massaged. Cawse's stroking from this point on softened considerably and it was evident that his wrist was troubling him. He finished the match, which he won, but it is possible he may be forced to default if the hand stiffens over night.

Fred C. Anderson, winner of the title last year, made his first appearance in the tournament yesterday, playing two matches. In the second round he defeated A. S. Fertsch, 6—0, 6—4, playing easily and a bit carelessly in the second set, and then disposed of J. D. Powers in the third round, 7—5, 6—1. Anderson was in good stroke, getting his service in with control and showing to particular advantage in employing the half volley. Against Fertsch he brought off any number of these pick-ups with the neatest execution, both off the forehand and backward.

Martin Forced by Noyes.

Elliott Binzen, Percy Kynaston, Henry Bassford and Paul Martin, the other ranking players, all gained their fourth-round bracket, though Martin was extended to three sets by S. G. Noyes, the first of which he lost at 6—4. Binzen, employing his twist service effectively and placing his shots with a keen eye for openings, advanced at the expense of Fred Planisani, at 6—3, 6—1. Kynaston put out Horace Graer at 6—4, 6—1, and Bassford won from Dr. William Rosenbaum, after a hard-fought match, at 6—4, 8—6. Jerome Lang had another good day. Following his victory over Kenneth Fisher on Sunday, the Columbia University star defeated Morton Bernstein in straight sets at 6—1, 6—4.

Whitlock, in defeating Hammett, showed himself to be one of the best court coverers in the tournament. Repeatedly during the two sets he brought off gets of shots that seemed hardly retrievable. In the twelfth game of the second set Hammett was within a point of taking the game, leading at 6—5, 40—30. In the next rally Hammett sent over a deep lob that seemed a sure ace, but Whitlock, fleeing back to his baseline, took the ball out of the air and returned it safely, saving the point and the set, which he ultimately won, at 9—7. Whitlock stood out not only as a defensive player, but showed a sound attack, both from the baseline and at the net, where he hammered overhead with decisiveness.

It was Cawse's steadiness, combined with his skill in forcing his opponent out of position, that enabled him to win over Bruneau. Both players were hitting the ball with severity in the first set and long rallies were the rule, with Cawse generally winning the point when Bruneau hit into the net. The Brooklyn man was meteoric on service also. In the seventh game he made two double faults, the second one coming at game point. In the second set occurred the injury to Cawse's wrist, and from this point on he weakened noticeably, playing almost entirely a defensive game. Bruneau likewise softened his stroking, but managed to pull up to 4—5 after his opponent's fall. His control fell off badly after this, however, and he made more errors than he did in the first set, when he went out after the points boldly. After being at set point five times, Cawse finally won the tenth game when Bruneau drove over the baseline.

Bernath-Knox Match Called.

All the brackets in the fourth round have been filled but one. A. F. von Bernuth, after capturing the first set from Leonard Knox, was leading at 8—7 in the second when the match was called. Play will be resumed today.

In the upper half of the draw Fred Anderson is opposed to Jones Mersereau, who put out W. S. Pearse; Paul Martin meets W. M. Fischer, who eliminated James D. Ewing after dropping the first set; Henry Bassford faces Ralph M. De Mott, who put out Thomas Ackerland, and A. J. Cawse is opposed to Charles Anderson, who advanced at the expense of L. Schlesinger, after the latter had taken the opening set at 6—2. In the lower half Elliott Binzen meets Herbert H. Manchester, Jerry Lang faces the winner of the von Bernuth-Knox match, Percy Kynaston plays H. C. Tremaine, who won a hard fought match from Manfred Goldman, and George Whitlock meets W. H. Benedict.

The summaries:

Second Round—Fred C. Anderson defeated A. S. Fertsch, 6—0, 6—4; Charles Anderson defeated J. L. Verstraten, 7—5, 6—4; Anton F. E. Von Bernuth defeated Edwin Bry, 2—6, 6—2, 6—3; James D. Ewing defeated Louis Bry, 3—6, 6—3, 8—6.

Kinsella Leads, 3 Sets to 1, in World Court Tennis Play

Copyright, 1923, by The New York Times Co.
By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, May 7.—Walter A. Kinsella, the American champion, today took the lead over George S. Covey, holder of the world's court tennis championship, in the first part of the match for the world's professional title at the Prince's Club, winning three out of the four sets played. The match is for the best seven out of thirteen six-game sets. Kinsella took the first three sets by 6—2, 6—5 and 6—4, but dropped the fourth, 4—6.

Kinsella opened the service. Playing brilliantly, he took the first game. Covey won the second game, however, by superior stroke play. Kinsella won the third and fourth games, thus leading by three games to one. Covey won the fifth game, but thereafter the American was invincible, winning the set, 6—2.

Kinsella began the second set with dashing pace and brilliant form. Covey defended well and by excellent placing took the score to five all, but Kinsella captured the sixth game and the set at 6—5. The third set, which also was won by Kinsella at 6—4, proved exciting and produced some fine court tennis.

In the fourth and last set of the day, Covey spurted and was leading by 5—3, Kinsella made a desperate attempt to draw level, but could win only one game and Covey took the set by 6—4.

Kinsella displayed wonderful form today and showed no sign of the heel trouble which so handicapped him when he was defeated by Covey last year.

JAPANESE NET STAR WILL ARRIVE TODAY

Fukuda, Holder of Nipponese Title, Will Enter Davis Cup Competition.

Masamosuke Fukuda, the new Japanese tennis sensation, who will represent his country in the international tennis matches this year, will arrive in this city today, after a voyage half way around the world. The Nipponese star, who won the Japanese championship last October and starred in the East-West matches that followed the title play, left his native land expressly to team with Zenso Shimizu and Seiichiro Kashio in the cup ties. The Japanese play their first match with Canada late in July.

Fukuda comes to this country with the highest recommendations as to his prowess from Kashio and Ichiya Kumagae, the latter well known to American tennis fans as one of the strongest players ever sent to this country by Japan and a member of the 1921 Davis Cup team. The new Oriental star first attracted attention during his undergraduate days at Waseda College, where he showed praiseworthy court generalship, tennis temperament and physical endurance.

He is generally regarded as the best of the younger Japanese players of the day, although he has a strong rival in the person of Sunao Okamoto of Calcutta, winner of the Bengal singles and doubles championship and also the Western India championship.

During the next two months Fukuda will play in a number of the prominent Eastern tournaments for the experience and benefit to be gained by competing against some of the leading American players. According to his Japanese trainer, he plays a well-rounded game, possessing well-developed ground strokes, service and control. In volleying, overhead kills and backhand play his game has not reached the standard shown by Kumagae and Shimizu, but it is expected that two months of tournament play and practice in this country will bring about improvement in this respect, and Fukuda is counted upon as a strong asset to the 1923 Japanese team.

DARTMOUTH GOLFERS WIN.

Smother Columbia on Greenwich Links by Score of 7 Points to 0.

The Dartmouth golf team gained an easy victory over the Columbia University linksmen at Greenwich, Conn., yesterday, winning all five matches in the singles and both of the foursomes against the Blue and White. George McKee, holder of the Vermont State championship, was the low scorer of the day, turning in a round of 83, 45 out and 38 in, against Latham, who played No. 2 on Columbia. Ted Learnard had a walkover in his match with Johnson, winning 9 and 7. Frank Sheehy, the Green captain, won from McGeary of Columbia by 4 and 3.

CURRY VICTOR ON LINKS.

Wins Season's First Monthly Tourney of Newspaper G. C.

E. M. Curry was the winner of the first of the season's monthly tournaments of the Newspaper Golf Club at Van Cortlandt Park yesterday. Curry traveled over the links at a fast pace, turning in a gross score of 77 which, with his handicap of 10, gave him a net 67. Harry Solomons and Chandos Sweet were tied for second with scores of 83, 14—69 and 99, 30—69, respectively.

Those who qualified for match play and their scores were:

E. M. Curry, 77, 10—67; Harry Solomons, 83, 14—69; Chandos Sweet, 99, 30—69; Martin Moore, 98, 28—70; Richard Grimler, 83, 12—71; David Hall, 97, 15—72; A. M. Malone, 104, 27—74; James Cruisenberry, 99, 25—74; P. Kernan, 94, 16—78; C. F. Nowlan, 94, 17—77; Al Owens, 97, 20—77; E. B. Davis, 99, 20—79; T. J. Walsh, 102, 23—79; Guy Lee, 126, 35—91.

The pairings for the match play:

Owens, bye; Moore vs. Curry; Kernan, bye; Grimler vs. Solomons; Nowlan vs. Davis; Hall vs. Cruisenberry; Lee vs. Malone; Sweet vs. Walsh.

PADDOCK BARRED FROM EXHIBITIONS

French Athletic Federation Issues New Edict—Suspends Paris University Club.

PARIS, May 7 (Associated Press).—The French Athletic Federation, after a full discussion of the participation of Charles Paddock, the American sprinter, in the international university championship games, had decided to prohibit Paddock from giving exhibitions at meets organized by clubs affiliated with the federation. Last Friday the federation warned the officials of the university championship games that they must not allow Paddock to compete, but announced that the federation would permit the sprinter to give exhibitions. No heed was given the edict of the federation by the officials of the games.

Notification of today's decision of the federation has been sent to the International Amateur Athletic Federation and in addition the French Athletic Federation has suspended the Paris University Club, which held the university games, and its members and the committee in charge until the end of 1924.

As to the Frenchmen who completed in the events of Saturday and Sunday, they have been suspended until they furnish written explanations which have been requested from them. The cases of foreigners who completed in the same events are to be submitted to the International Amateur Athletic Federation.

MAY ERECT STADIUM AS WAR MEMORIAL

Army Officer Wants Plant With Seats for 100,000 Located in Washington.

Plans for a giant stadium in which to stage all athletic events of national importance and interest have been approved by the Washington (D. C.) Board of Trade, and the preliminary arrangements for building the structure are well under way. The plant is to be erected primarily as a monument to the youth of America, according to present ideas.

Colonel George Vidmer, United States Army, who commanded the 306th Infantry of the Liberty Division, which was composed of men from New York City, is the father of the idea. In searching for a suitable memorial to the young men of the country who fell in the World War, Colonel Vidmer hoped to make the monument of some use besides being a work of art. He finally arrived at the conclusion that the most fitting tribute would be in the form of an athletic stadium, believing that every young man in the country is interested in some form of sports and that the American youth is typified by the American athlete. Washington is chosen as the site for the stadium as the capital of the United States.

Present plans include the erection of an amphitheatre large enough to hold the Olympic Games and with the idea that all national events, such as the Davis Cup matches, national tennis championships, international polo contests and intercollegiate and A. A. U. track meets will be staged there. A site in Potomac Park, near the new 18-hole municipal golf course, on which the national public course tournament is to be staged next month, and the municipal swimming pool, has been tentatively chosen. Colonel Vidmer has recently constructed a riding course, which includes more than twenty jumps of different heights and designs, near this site and it is considered an ideal spot with the facilities for holding competitions in practically all branches of athletics near by.

The financing of the project is to be done by popular subscription, the belief being that sufficient funds can be raised by asking each person who served in the World War, or who was closely connected with any one who served, to give the minimum of $1. As there were 4,000,000 men under arms, 2,000,000 of whom were overseas, even with a sufficient discount for those who will not subscribe, it is estimated that enough capital will be realized in this way to not only build the structure but to endow it. A drive will be started with this end in view.

All major league ball clubs will also be asked to subscribe the receipts of one game to the fund and each college will be asked to play one contest in the stadium the year it is completed, the funds to go to the stadium treasury.

LAGERBLADE SETS MARK.

Breaks Professional Record at Norfolk Golf Club.

DEDHAM, Mass., May 7.—Herbert Lagerblade of Bristol, Conn., broke the professional competitive record at the Norfolk Golf Club today in the first tournament of the season held under the auspices of the New England Professional Golfer's Organization. The new mark is 69. Lagerblade's card for the two rounds played today was 73, 69—142.

OUTDOOR BOXING STARTS.

Flores Meets Bernstein Tonight at Queensboro A. C.

The curtain will rise tonight on the 1923 outdoor boxing season in the local district. The distinction of opening the season falls to the Queensboro A. C. in Long Island City. Matchmaker Si Flaherty has arranged an attractive card for the occasion. The principal contest, scheduled for fifteen rounds, will bring together Jack Bernstein, Yonkers junior lightweight, and Elino Flores, courageous Filipino boxer. The contest has attracted unusual attention and it is expected that it will be witnessed by a banner crowd. In the semi-final bout, scheduled for twelve rounds, Willie Darcy, Bronx flyweight, is slated to battle Sammy Cohen of the east side. Johnny Vestri and Jerry Sullivan are matched in a six-round bout.

Farrell to Play in British Open; Arranges for Passport

Johnny Farrell, young Quaker Ridge golf professional, doubtless will be among the American professionals who tee off in the British open championship tournament at Troon next month. Farrell yesterday or Tuesday. President William passports, and possibly may accompany "Long Jim," Barnes of Pelham, who is leaving either Saturday or Tuesday. President William Heckster of Grassy Sprain, who has full confidence in Farrell's ability to trade shots with the world's greatest golfers, has interested himself in a movement within the club to defray Farrell's expenses. Farrell is the holder of the Shawnee open tournament and has made rapid strides toward the top of his profession in recent years. Duncan and Mitchell, as well as Taylor and Herd, stars of the British golf world who were here last Summer, praised Farrell's game highly.

COACH HOYLE PICKS HIS VARSITY CREW

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., May 7.—Two weeks before the Spring day regatta with Yale and Princeton Coach John Hoyle has finally boated a Cornell Varsity eight which is not likely to be changed. For weeks Hoyle has tried to find a combination which would drive the shell along on an even keel.

Portside, although lighter than starboard, has shown a little more power, but with the changes announced today Hoyle thinks that he has solved the problem, and if the reorganized crew meets the test against the watch it will probably represent the Ithacans against Tigers and the Blue on May 19.

Yale's victory over Columbia last Saturday has made a profound impression in the Cornell rowing camp, and the Cornell oarsmen, it is expected, will be spurred on to greater efforts by what is referred to as the Leader menace.

In the reorganized Cornell Varsity another junior varsity oarsman has won a seat. E. W. Hoffman, who had been now in the junior eight, is now rowing No. 7 in the varsity. H. E. Luhrs, No. 4 last year in the varsity, is definitely out, and E. S. Calleson, from the junior eight, has the position.

The new Cornell boating order follows: Bow, C. F. Kells; 2, R. O. Egeberg; 3, C. N. Strong; 4, E. S. Calleson; 5, W. L. Hearn; 6, E. S. Baker; 7, E. W. Hoffman; stroke, M. W. Fillius; coxswain, B. J. Nicholson.

YALE CALLS LEADER "COACH OF DESTINY"

Editorial in College Paper Says Varsity Victory Was "Pre-nomenal Achievement."

Special to The New York Times.

DERBY, Conn., May 7.—In calling the Yale crew together today to prepare for the races with Princeton and Cornell on Lake Cayuga in two weeks, Coach Ed Leader said that no reorganization of any of the boats was necessary, although one or two slight changes may be made. Despite last Saturday's gruelling races, Leader today gave all the crews a workout.

Yale's delight over last Saturday's triumphs on the water today was voiced in the following Yale News editorial:

"Coach Leader has shown that a Yale crew can win a two-mile race. With green material he has developed a combination which could defeat Columbia and Pennsylvania, opponents of the highest calibre, rowing with finish, precision and grit. Like Coach Rogers, Coach Leader deserves the heartiest congratulations on what must be called a phenomenal achievement. Captain Polly and the rowing committee must receive their share of credit for bringing Coach Leader here from the University of Washington and for their co-operation in working out the new policy.

"Saturday's results have added confidence to the faith already placed in the 'Coach of Destiny.' If he can turn out a crew which will be as enduring in a four-mile race as it is fast in a two-mile race, his cup and Yale's will be filled to overflowing."

WEST POINT NAMES FOOTBALL COACHES

McEwan Will Be Assisted by Neyland, Jones, O'Hare and Other Former Players.

Captain John J. McEwan, who was recently appointed head coach of the West Point football team for next Fall, has already lined up a staff of assistants which insures him of capable assistance during the coming season. Six army officers with past reputations as players at the academy have been promised Coach McEwan by army authorities.

Captain Robert Neyland, who was a brilliant end and who hung up the record of pitching the Army to four straight victories over the Navy in baseball, in addition to winning the heavyweight boxing championship of the corps of cadets, will be in charge of the flankmen. "Biff" Jones, who captained the West Point eleven in 1917, and "Red" O'Hare, a guard who played next to McEwan for four years, will help McEwan with his line candidates, and Lieutenant Gene Vidal, pentathlon and decathlon performer in the last Olympic Games, and Benny Hoge, captain of the Army eleven in 1913, are to take charge of the backs. Captain E. Harmon also will assist.

Coach McEwan will lose several regulars from last year's team by graduation next month. Fritz Breidster, captain of the 1922 team, which broke a long string of Navy victories by triumphing over the middies last Fall; White and Myers, first string ends; Don Storck, a capable lineman, and Timberlake and Dodd, a fine pair of backs, will be among the missing when the squad is called out in September. Among the new cadets who enter the academy next month there are none of any known ability, according to Captain McEwan, who expects to have only ordinary material with which to build his 1923 machine. However with such linemen as Goodman, Mulligan and Farwick, and Smythe and Woods in the backfield, the new coach should at least find an excellent nucleus for a team when he arrives to take up his duties.

LEANDER CREW COMING.

Famous English Eight to Row at Toronto on Sept. 1.

TORONTO, May 7.—The Leander eight, famous English crew, will row at Toronto Sept. 1 against Canadian and American competitors. Word was received today that the crew had booked passage.

EVANDER NINE WINS BEFORE 10,000 FANS

Morris H. S. Loses Baseball Game at Yankee Stadium but Captures Track Meet.

Evander Childs High School fittingly celebrated its tenth anniversary yesterday by decisively defeating Morris High School in baseball at the Yankee Stadium, 9 to 3. However, the Morris athletes somewhat dimmed the Evander glory by triumphing in a dual track meet, which was held before the game, by the narrow margin of 33 points to 30.

Ten thousand spectators, composed for the most part of high school students, witnessed the contests and gay colors, school cheers and a great deal of excitement marked the event. The Evander students, bedecked in the orange and black colors of the school and led by three syncopating girl cheer leaders, filled the first base side of the huge stadium. Opposite was the Morris cheering section with a band to compensate for its lesser numbers. Both schools were in high spirits as the two rival teams from the Bronx took the field.

Konigstein, pitching for Morris, forced the first three Evander players to pop out to the infield, and when Berkham pounded a ball to the left field bleachers for a home run in the first inning with nobody on, the maroon and black section went wild with excitement.

Neither team was able to score in the second, but Evander jumped into a one-run lead in the next inning, when Ryan, the first man up, was given a life after he had flashed, the Morris catcher letting the third strike get through him. A sacrifice sent Ryan to second and White's single pushed him up another base. With two men on, Deutsch hit for three bases and both runners scored. Marquardt hit into a double play, erasing Deutsch from third.

Brooks tightened up with this advantage and shut out the Morris team without a hit in the next two sessions, but in the sixth inning Morris tied the count when Berkham got on base on a fielder's choice, went to second on a passed ball and scored a moment later on Heller's timely single after two were out. Heller then proceeded to steal second and third and P. Shapiro, the next batter, walked, but, with two men on and the score tied at two each, White, the Evander shortstop, took Golovensky's sharp grounder and tossed him out at first, ending the rally.

The Morris rooters' fighting spirit was aroused completely and chances for a victory over the stronger Evander team, which has lost but one game in the P. S. A. L. League, was in their blood. Konigstein was going at top speed, batting held the Evander hitters helpless for four innings. The Maroon stands were pleading for just one run while on the other side of the field a confident silence was evident.

In the seventh inning Morris broke the ice. Kornberg was safe on an error and went to second when Konigstein singled. He advanced to third on a fumble by Ward, who had replaced Brooke in the box for Evander, and then on an attempted squeeze play, which failed, Kornberg came home, putting Morris in the lead, 3 to 2.

This advantage was short-lived, however, for the Evander bats, which have played havoc in the other P. S. A. L. games, began to meet the ball. Ryan opened with a two-base hit and Mayell duplicated, sending Ryan across with the score that tied. Konigstein forced the next two men to hit into easy outs, and it looked as if the rally had been stopped, but Marquardt was safe when his Texas Leaguer dropped safe in short left field and Brooke broke up the game with a solid blow which landed in the left field stand for a home run, bringing three tallies across the plate. Two singles, a triple and a wild pitch accounted for three more Evander runs in the ninth, and the Orange and Black rooters celebrated the 9 to 3 victory with a brilliant snake dance, the first on the new field but probably the forerunner of many, when the college football teams hold their battles there next Fall.

The score:

Wins Race by Three Yards.

Morris High's victory over Evander Childs in the dual track meet was featured by the 440-yard race, which proved a real thriller. Koteen of Morris led the field all the way, with Bowden of Evander lagging far in the rear, but the latter picked up with a beautiful sprint in the last 50 yards and nosed out the maroon runner by a three-yard margin.

FOLLOWING UP THE MAYOR.

It is a disagreeable and thankless task to follow up Mayor HYLAN'S vagaries about rapid transit. But it is especially necessary to do it now, since his fanciful solution of the difficulty has fallen to the earth, and he is left to deal with the situation as it is and the law as it exists. Every suggestion which he makes ought to be analyzed, commended if it is sound, but exposed if it is false. For example, he asserts that great relief would have been quickly given to the city if only power had been placed in his hands to regulate the service of the subways as they are today. If he has anything definite in his mind let him at once take it to the Transit Commission. That body has no pride of opinion, nor have the managers of the Interborough or the Brooklyn Rapid Transit. If Mr. HYLAN can point out to them any improvement in the supply of trains or their frequency, there will be no hesitation in acting upon his proposals. The relief which he so confidently talks about being able to give by better regulation will be instantly given by the regulatory Transit Commission, if it does not find that he is uttering nonsense. On the other hand, if the Transit Commission is able to show that the subways are operated up to their full physical and engineering capacity, with due regard to safety, the result should be to condemn the Mayor to silence as regards this particular complaint, or else to stand before the city as an official who does not know what he is talking about.

Few words are needed to dispose of the Mayor's other suggestion, that a special session of the Legislature be called in September to deal exclusively with a rapid transit bill. That would be only deferring hope. There could be no change in the legislative decision, unless the Mayor himself were willing to abandon his impossible demands. And if he still clings to the idea that uncontrolled municipal operation can be made a winning issue in the election of the next Assembly, he is doomed to a painful disillusion. The present outlook is that the issue of prohibition will dominate everything in the election next November, and that it will be out of the question for the Mayor to get anything which even he could pretend to be a "mandate" in his favor. As for his move to oust the Transit Commissioners on charges of incompetence, that is only one more effort on his part to evade the question which the city is daily putting to him—"Why don't you build more subways?"

COMING CLOSER TOGETHER.

Neither Great Britain's disappointment at not having been consulted by M. POINCARÉ nor Germany's distress at finding that her offer had been so unkindly received by France should seriously impede the progress of the negotiations. The British public has failed to see that the position of France was that for a direct refusal there was no need of a conference of the Allies. M. POINCARÉ has repeatedly emphasized that when the final settlement is made it will be in conjunction with the Allies. He is far too wise to forget that in joint action lies the greatest hope, but he is also enough experienced to know that Ambassadors' conferences which have not a definite plan or a constructive purpose do nothing but delay the settlement. He has therefore left open the door in his answer to Chancellor CUNO, and there is every indication that Great Britain will follow suit. The British have made clear their disapproval of the German offer, and Lord CURZON has pointed out that cooperation with France is eminently desirable.

Great Britain is again reported anxious to bring the Germans to reason. At the time of the Rosenberg speech it was rumored that the British, through their Ambassador in Berlin, had tried to impress the Germans with the necessity of offering at least forty billion gold marks as a minimum, and that there was irritation in England that the German Government by failing to do this had deprived the British of the opportunity of reopening the conversations with the French and Belgians on a basis that held promise of success. By taking up the matter officially with Berlin and expressing its dissatisfaction with the German offer the British may have no small influence upon the Germans.

Probably the most optimistic note of all, however, comes from Germany. It is uttered by a paper of no especial significance, the Zeitung am Mittag, but it contains the comment on POINCARÉ'S reply, that "We can consider negotiations already open." In other German quarters there are attacks upon the Cuno offer based for the most part on the inadequacy of the French and English translations of the German note. Even the German text comes in for some blame, but this seems to be on the ground of rhetoric rather than of policies.

The main thing is, however, that the opening guns have been fired by both sides. Germany has made a bid which she well knew would not be accepted. She has drawn in reply a good measure of criticism which should help remove doubts from the minds of those Germans who still cling to defiance. If the expressions of opinion from Italy and Great Britain are as clear as those from France, Germany will have a new and better conception of what is expected of her.

RADICAL REVALUATION.

It is not a very imposing list of Congressmen and Governors who have joined Senator LA FOLLETTE in calling a conference of the progressive-radical bloc to consider a revaluation of railroad property. That meeting may be considered as a sort of birthday party in honor, or complaint, of the Railroad Valuation act, the most peculiar child of the senior Wisconsin Senator's brain. The child is about ten years old; and its behavior has deeply pained its doting papa. The late Director of Valuations, Mr. CHARLES A. PROUTY, so long an Interstate Commerce Commissioner, told the commission in 1917, after four years of struggle with Mr. LA FOLLETTE'S masterpiece, that he "would rather undertake to recite the Chinese alphabet backward than read the Valuation act, because it does not mean anything after you have read it."

The commission itself confessed, in the Kansas City Southern case, that the act commanded it to do things that couldn't be done. The Supreme Court told it, as usual, that it must make its valuations in accordance with the law. It has to determine values which it admits to be "incapable of rational ascertainment." As the Supreme Court holds that valuations must conform with current costs of construction, much of the past work of valuation has become fruitless. Any railroad that believes its property to have been overvalued takes the case into court. The general result has been to show that the value of the railroads is in excess of their capitalization, a result confirmed by independent valuations in a number of States. We don't know what the present figures are, but two years ago Mr. LA FOLLETTE'S statute had cost the railroads $54,000,000 and the Government $21,000,000. He is not pleased with the education of his favorite child. He and his associates in virtue want to keep wages up, rates down and "soak" unmercifully the railroads, imagined to be unconscionable profiteers.

The questions involved in railroad valuation are many and some of them almost inexplicably difficult. Therefore, the Committee on Transportation, of which Mr. LA FOLLETTE is Chairman, appointed by the progressive-radical conference of last December, has pondered the matter deeply, and, after four months' study, decided to call a conference in Chicago on May 25 and 26 and arrive at a valuation of the railroads that will be "just and equitable alike to railroad investors, shippers, railroad employés and the consuming public." Railroad investors are always happy when Mr. LA FOLLETTE is busy with their interests; and the consuming public must be consumed with desire to discover the final word of wisdom to be uttered by the conciliabulum of railroad-baiters, including again, as in 1912, "Seven Little Governors."

It seems that the difference between the valuation asserted by the railroads and that "advocated by responsible public authorities amounts to about "$10,000,000,000." The "responsible public authorities" must stand astonished at their own moderation. Politically the conference is a shrewd bid to the farmers, who are complaining of railroad rates; but it doesn't appear that Mr. LA FOLLETTE'S movement represents any great number of them. They have the farm bloc especially to defend their interests; and almost every politician, even if he be urban, reverences them. On railroad valuation, already dark, must fall a thicker darkness, broken only by the lightning rhetoric of Mr. LA FOLLETTE and Mr. BROOKHART and the rest of the brethren. Mr. BROOKHART was caught the other day in an enormous misstatement, only one of many, about the oppressed apple growers of Washington State, forced by the railroads "to dump 10,000 carloads of apples into the Columbia River." The oppressed apple growers denied the oppression; but what of it? Mr. BROOKHART and his brethren will continue to illuminate an abstruse question by their imaginations. The permanent good sense of the American people and the courts, if necessary, can be depended upon to protect the country from any policy of confiscation.

A WEEK OF GOLF.

Everybody plays golf now, and unfortunately nearly everybody talks golf and too many write about it. Among the latter who set themselves up as overnight experts in the game there is to be noticed a sad weakness in technique. One encounters such barbarisms as a reference to the amateur championship "match" in England this week. One reporter of the stirring scenes at Sandwich when Mr. OUIMET won the St. George's Cup spoke of the number of times that "scratch" was beaten. Another commentator mentioned the number of "sticks" that a famous player carried in his bag. Pray you, avoid these solecisms. If we can't master all the shots in golf, let us at least have accurate command of its lingo.

Speculation is rampant about the chances of American golfers in the tournament at Deal now going on. Nothing could be more futile, except as a subject of conversation. It is really a degradation of the noble game, with all its physical uncertainties and spiritual mysteries, to pretend to be able to predict the outcome of any great contest. Too often the favorite has fallen early and dismally, as SWEETSER and GARDNER did yesterday; too many times an unknown has come forward to win. America has a splendid representation of her best amateurs at Deal, but no countryman of theirs should be so rash as to prophesy that any one of them will bring back the cup. Among the other incalculable elements which they will have to confront is the possibility of high and baffling winds across the links by the sea. It has too often been the experience of American golfers on British links that when the breezes blow they generally go below. It was a pregnant saying of the veteran TOM MORRIS that if anybody could tell him that there was to be a big wind he could tell who would be champion.

However, our players abroad have had time to become partially acclimated even to British gales, and may be counted upon not to be too easily dismayed even by that handicap. In any event, this week will have exciting golf news from day to day, and the vast numbers of Americans who will turn first to the dispatches from Deal will furnish added proof of the ever widening hold which the game has taken upon this country.

AN IMPERIAL INSTITUTION.

Had the American people been "imperially minded," the end of 1918 would have given them the greatest opportunity for expanded influence. A formidable military and naval force, an incomparable economic and financial force, gave us a position which Europeans contemplated sometimes with hope, more often with foreboding. The world was ours, if we had wanted it. We did not. We lost interest in the politics of other countries. We retired to meditation in the boudoir.

That some Americans, however, retain the world-wide imagination, and exercise it for the most admirable of purposes, is revealed by the annual report of the President of the American Museum of Natural History. Our armies have been called home; most of our food commissions and relief workers have followed them; our diplomats rise by silence and inaction; but the expeditionary forces of the Museum of Natural History keep the flag flying all over the world. In Mongolia, where Dr. OSSENDOWSKI found so many modern corpses in his efforts to get out, Mr. ROY CHAPMAN ANDREWS went for the Museum to look for ancient corpses, far antedating Baron UNGERN-STERNBERG, or even GENGHIS KHAN. Leaving others to dispute for the political control and economic exploitation of Mongolia, Dr. ANDREWS brought back the remains of the gigantic hornless rhinoceros, who will soon be gazing amiably at the sightseers on Central Park West. Two thousand mammals and twenty thousand feet of film are other fruits of this venture.

In Württemberg other savants hunt for ancestors of the dinosaurs, themselves sufficiently ancient to serve as ancestors of our oldest families, however deplorable their inheritable traits. From Africa Mr. AKELEY has brought back five gorillas, unfortunately dead but still instructive. In the South Seas, where other voyagers look for plump princesses with scarlet hibiscus flowers behind the ear, Mr. BECK has been collecting birds and reptiles. Correspondents in Australia send the skeleton of a marsupial elephant and the rare nectar-eating phalanger Tarsipes. From Santo Domingo comes the largest tree frog in the world and the largest lizard in the Americas, who will probably challenge the European record-holder for the world's lizard championship if Mr. TEX RICKARD can be persuaded to arrange for the gate. In the hills of India, the mountains of Ecuador and the Azores, and the flatlands of Guiana, the Museum has its forces at work, bringing back specimens and more specimens, collating information and drawing inferences.

In America, too, the work goes on. Fossil animals from Nebraska, the inhabitants of pond bottoms in New Jersey, geological specimens from all over the United States are drawn to the museum on the west side. In New Mexico its investigators excavated, explored and put in order a prehistoric ruin. Others are being examined in Utah and New Mexico. Even in New York State prehistoric ruins are being discovered, and remains of primitive humanity come at once from contemporary Alaska and prehistoric Western Europe. And all this constant, unceasing work by men whose reward must come largely from their own sense of duty done inures to the benefit of the people of New York City.

Dr. OSBORN rightly hopes that this great service will be recognized by continuance of the city's appropriations, but the nine-million-dollar building program which "will no more than keep pace with the development of New York during the next decade" must be financed to at least two-thirds of its extent by private subscription. Private benefaction, too, is counted on for the additional endowment fund of $2,000,000 which the Museum needs. Its service as an educational agency, as a means for bringing the acquisitions of these world-wide searchings to the citizens of New York, cannot be overestimated. Those of little faith have seen in the Hall of the Age of Man things that contradicted cherished illusions, but Dr. OSBORN only points out the obvious in remarking that these exhibits interfere with no faith worth the having. "Who is this," he quotes from a passage whose authority must impress even Mr. WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN and Mr. ALFRED W. MCCANN, "that darkeneth counsel by words without knowledge?" The Museum's function is to enable citizens to back their words with somewhat more knowledge than most of us have at present; a democracy can hardly afford to let it be hampered in its work.

THE STUDENTS' SOVIET.

The head-shakers, whither-are-we-drifting-ers, praisers of the past, groaners over the Younger Generation, and so on have plenty to groan about in the latest news from Princeton. A professor, apparently Professor PHILIP MARSHALL BROWN, was late for a class in international law. Ordinarily no professor who is more than twenty seconds late need expect to find his class waiting for him. Perhaps this professor was late on this occasion with some such thought in mind. But the class fooled him. One student, mindful of our cherished liberties, wanted to get up and walk out. The others voted him down. They stayed there and conducted the class themselves, and when the professor appeared they let him sit down in the back row and see how much they knew about the subject.

This is certainly not the Younger Generation we read of. Our colleges are training up a race of young men whose minds are impenetrable to the adult eye. What are they thinking about, these wild youths who stay in class to exchange information when no professorial eye is on them? Can it be that the whole tradition of American academic life is about to be overturned, that students are embracing the heresy that attendance at lectures is a benefit to the student and not a favor to the professor? Perhaps not, for the dispatch says innocently that "the incident is heralded on the Princeton campus as the forerunner of the system of self-education, which starts next Fall." In this system, modeled more or less on that of the British universities, the student is judged at the end of his course on the knowledge he has accumulated in one way or another. Generally speaking, it doesn't pay him to cut lectures; but if he is industrious and ingenious enough he can dispense with lectures, though not with professors, and do his work himself. And this pointer leads one to suspect that the episode was a mere object lesson engineered by the university press agent.

PRESERVING INDIAN DANCES.

The performance of an adaptation of two of the Zuñi Indian corn dances last Sunday at St. Mark's-in-the-Bouwerie, to commemorate American Indian Day, is a pertinent answer to those who have recently been urging the Indian Commissioner to suppress the Indian dances because they are immoral. No one who witnessed the ceremonies at St. Mark's, nor any one who has seen these or other similar dances given by the Zuñi and other Pueblo Indians in their native villages could read into them anything that is in any way indecent.

There have been, of course, certain religious ceremonials of the American Indians and other primitive peoples which, according to our standards, are obnoxious. It is doubtful, however, whether many of them are any more objectionable to right-minded persons than some of our so-called "civilized" dances. There is, in fact, one very great difference which reacts greatly to the advantage of the Indians. This lies in the fact that whether they be harvest or corn, rain or moon or what not, the Indian dances have an underlying religious motive.

It is unfortunately true that this very religious factor is one of the principal reasons why certain societies and groups in this country have been trying to have them suppressed. Commissioner BURKE admitted, in the circular which he sent out to the Indian agents at the same time that he issued his "message" to "All Indians" urging them to limit their dances, that this decision had been made following a conference of the missionaries in the Sioux country. Without in any way criticising the right of missionaries to proselyte, and without minimizing the excellent work that so many have done for the cause of humanity, may it not be urged that there is a wide difference between the voluntary efforts of different church bodies to convert the Indians from the errors of their ways and the interference by the Indian Bureau of the Federal Government to stop, either by threats or decree, the right of the Indians to worship their own gods after the manner of their fathers? To flagrantly obscene or indecent acts the Government might well object. But it is only fair to the Indians to say that they are peculiarly free from those forms of depravity to which the white men so justly object. To make wholesale attacks upon Indian dances as "immoral" is grossly unjust.

The religious dances play an even more important part in the religious and social life of the Indians than does the Church among most Christian peoples. To forbid the Indians to keep those dances which they cherish is to cause them spiritual humiliation. At the same time, by depriving them of the right to freedom of worship it violates a fundamental American principle.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Gliding With Assistance.

A glider with a motor, even though the motor be small, is not a glider at all, or, at any rate, no more a glider than any other airplane, for all of them have the ability to glide for long distances with their engines stopped. Therefore GEORGES BARROT'S feat of crossing the English Channel twice on Sunday last gives little real information as to the possibilities of aerial navigation in motorless planes, and by no means justifies the large claims that have been made in behalf of those interesting toys.

That much premised, considerable importance may be ascribed to M. BARROT'S achievement. It was a conclusive proof that powerful engines are not essential for short flights to predetermined destinations, and, that a sufficiently skillful aviator, in favorable atmospheric conditions, can do something more than flutter down from a height if he has an ascending air current to help him.

M. BARROT kept his engine going all the time he was in the air, and if it had stopped and he could not have started it again, seemingly he would have had to make a forced "landing" in the water. And, after all, fifteen horsepower—some of the dispatches say thirteen—is a good deal of energy, and seems small only in comparison with the flaming and roaring monsters that drag in vertiginous course the planes to which recent years have accustomed us.

How fifteen horsepower compares with the power controlled by birds, weight for weight, is for others to decide, but a hasty judgment would be that M. BARROT was as well equipped in this respect as any except the strongest of nature's fliers. The latter make their amazing journeys, and their even more amazing evolutions and alightings, more by an exquisite skill than by the expenditure of energy, and if M. BARROT teaches human fliers to turn their attention that way his Channel crossing will deserve to be remembered with M. BLÉRIOT'S, made in what now seems like the dark ages of aviation.

Comparisons Also Are Dangerous.

After what must have been anxious deliberation, with full knowledge of the feelings they would hurt and of the protests they would excite from the friends of ignored notabilities, the National League of Women Voters, greatly daring, has issued a list of names as those of the "twelve greatest living American women." Alphabetically arranged, they stand: JANE ADDAMS, CECELIA BEAUX, ANNA JUMP CANNON, CARRIE CHAPMAN CATT, ANNA BOTSFORD COMSTOCK, MINNIE MADDERN FISKE, LOUISE HOMER, JULIA LATHROP, FLORENCE RENA SABIN, M. CAREY THOMAS, MARTHA VAN RENSSELAER, EDITH WHARTON.

Some of us will have to confess—to our humiliation if not to our shame—never to have heard before of some of these objects of the league's admiration and respect, but most of them are familiar names to us all, and as their claims to fame are beyond question, the right of the others to it safely can be assumed.

In other words, it is a good list, and reasonable objection to it can be based only on beliefs demonstrably well founded that certain names as eminent as those included have been left out. There was a certain unfairness, too, in dividing feminine activities into twelve departments and taking one representative from each as "greatest." The women writers, who are innumerable, can complain that they have been subjected to vastly wider and harder competition than have the women astronomers or anatomists, and the women of the stage have a like grievance.

For weeks to come, probably, correspondents of the newspapers will be suggesting additions to this list, but it is to be hoped that none will be so ungallant or discourteous enough to propose eliminations from the list as it stands. Men, cautious beings, will avoid the perils of comparisons by declaring that all women are great and good, putting the emphasis, naturally, on the women of their own families or the ones whom they hope to incorporate therein.

Wronged, and Do Not Realize It.

A New Yorker who himself has been grieved oftener than most of us by what he considered outrageous restrictions on the expression of his opinions, economic and political, declares that the majority of Americans do not realize that they have been deprived of free speech simply because they have nothing to say.

That is amusing, and there may be some truth in it; but certainly Americans are not peculiar in having, as a rule, nothing to say of sufficient importance to arouse objection on the part of the law or of their neighbors. The majority of human beings, indeed, have "nothing to say," in this sense, though all of them do a lot of talking. For them freedom of speech seems to be complete, and it is.

Those who get into trouble by what they say or write, here as elsewhere, are the different persons who constantly yearn to express themselves in ways that the majority deem obnoxious or dangerous, and they have—and apparently much enjoy—the consequent persecution and martyrdom of one sort or another to which they are subjected. Some of these victims do have "something to say," but far from all. The rest just chatter about old fallacies and delusions, and if they knew more history they would be silent most of the time.

So "Teasing" Has Been His Specialty!

Mr. ANDERSON of the Anti-Saloon League not only rejoices in the antagonism which that organization has excited, but for at least a part of it he has an explanation. He says that when he came here he knew that for a movement to attain its ends it must be the subject of unjust attack. Therefore he "teased" the New York papers into making assaults on himself and the other leaguers, their ambitions, their manners and their methods.

This theory calmly ignores the possibility that adverse criticism of the Anti-Saloon League could be just. Presumably Mr. ANDERSON does that, and it really may be that he considered valuable to his cause, and therefore intentionally provoked, the hostility from some papers to which it has been subjected.

One remembers, however, not a few occasions when Mr. ANDERSON bitterly and volubly has resented the criticism which he says he provoked, and it is a little ungrateful for him to forget how much space has been accorded by the New York papers to statements which he was moved to make. Was that, too, the result of "teasing"?

DARWIN'S OLD HOME.

Opportunity to Preserve It as a Station for Testing His Ideas.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

For the second time since the death of Charles Darwin the house and gardens at Down which he occupied for more than forty years, containing the room in which the "Origin of Species" was written, is seeking a tenant. The house of Darwin, like the houses where George Washington or Shakespeare were born or lived, like the house where Goethe wrote "Faust," ought to be preserved as something sacred. It is not merely a national matter; it is something of grave international import that this house should run the risk of being pulled down and the gardens in which Darwin walked and thought and experimented should be built over. But these who love and honor Darwin would scarcely wish the house preserved as a museum; it would undoubtedly have fulfilled his wishes more fittingly could it be turned into a station for testing his ideas and emphasizing what fields of thought he threw open to the men who came after him. The young men of today who stand on the foundation he laid so solidly, because they have built on that foundation, hardly recognise its full importance nor the freedom Darwin gave them once and for all.

At the end of the last century, when Down was first vacant and available, Francis Galton, mindful of the future and understanding the past, summoned a meeting with a view to the purchase of Darwin's house and the adjacent grounds as a station for experimental evolution and breeding. His proposal failed, not so much for want of money as for want of concord. The chance for the moment is there again, and I understand that enough land is available. But the proposal in England would be hopeless today. The war has left us too poor to endow the future of science, too depressed to perpetuate the memory of those who fought in the still more momentous battle, the spiritual battle of last century.

The knowledge that Darwin's house is again on the market, that it cries out to be saved from destruction and devoted to a purpose worthy of its former master—the master of every man who since 1859 has occupied himself with any branch of biological science; nay, of every man who has thought about the origin of living forms as part of his philosophy of life—this knowledge may strike a chord in some American's heart who has the power to save Darwin's house for Darwin's sake, which I venture to think is the sake of all mankind. Yet he who would do must do quickly, for any hour may find the house disposed of and the aid come too late.

Czechoslovakia's Debt.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

A Czechoslovak commission is coming to the United States for adjustment of the debt which they owe to this country. Now, it seems to me that when a small, new and struggling nation is working hard, capably and honestly to gain a position among the other nations of the earth those efforts should be encouraged. What better, grander, nobler act could be done than for this great, powerful and rich nation to cancel that debt?

When this new great Republic first came into existence any act of that nature on the part of any other nation would have been indeed a great and acceptable blessing. Some of the nations seem to have a hard time settling their internal as well as their external difficulties, but Czechoslovakia is splendidly striving to keep free of entanglements so far as possible, both within and without its boundaries.—JOHN MARKO.
Little Falls, N. Y., April 27, 1923.

THE WISTFUL ONE.

My window opens upon the sea
And the smell of the sea comes in to me.
And the voice of the sea that calls and calls
And the sea's hands beating upon my walls.

Sometimes I wake in the night and hear
The sound of the sea, and it seems so near
That I wonder how I have strength of will
To listen and listen and lie so still.

I wonder how I can stay in bed
With a smoth'ring ceiling over my head!
I envy the man who can dip and ride
And drown, if they will, in the brown, salt tide.

Oh, why is a half grown lad so free
To pack up his clothes and put out to sea,
While a maid must live out her life on shore
Mending and washing and sweeping the floor?

Some moonless night, when the sky is black,
I'll run away and I'll never come back;
And maybe the girl who used to be me
Will be far away, like a lad, at sea!

PROHIBITION STILL THE LAW

Federal Statute Is in Effect Even If Mullan-Gage Law Is Repealed.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The ratification of the Eighteenth Amendment forbade the manufacture, sale or transportation of intoxicating liquors for beverage purposes in the several States, and put behind the enforcement of that provision the entire power of the Federal Government. There seems to be no limit to the resources of the Federal Government to enforce the Eighteenth Amendment.

The words of the Supreme Court of the United States, in the case of Rhode Island v. Palmer, 253 U. S., p. 367 (1920), are: "The power confided to Congress" by the Eighteenth Amendment "is in no wise dependent on, or affected by, action or inaction on the part of the several States, or any of them." These words the court repeated in the Lanza case, decided Dec. 11, 1922. They dispose of the loose talk that "inaction" by a State amounts to nullification of the Constitution.

The same court had said many years before:

"The Constitution, laws and treaties of the United States are as much a part of the law of every State as its own local laws and Constitution."—Hauenstein vs. Lynham, 10, Otto, 483 (1880).

It is thus a mistake to say that the signing of the bill repealing the Mullan-Gage law would leave New York unprotected by any prohibition law to enforce the amendment. The papers of today publish a statement by Mr. Merrick, Divisional Chief of Federal Enforcement Agents, that "he saw no reason to get excited over the probable effect of the repeal of the Mullan-Gage law," adding that "the National Prohibition law was still on the statute books and that his staff of agents, which will be augmented, will put forth every effort to see that the bootlegger does not get any stronger hold in this city and State."

We have not seen any statement that in Maryland or Massachusetts the Federal Government finds Federal enforcement of the Federal Constitution a hopeless task, yet in Maryland the Legislature has rejected a bill to establish concurrent State enforcement, and in 1922 the people in Massachusetts rejected, by a vote of about 200,000 to 100,000, the State Enforcement act which the Legislature had passed, but which under the State Constitution required the assent of a popular vote to be valid.

One reason why we have not seen statements that in Maryland and Massachusetts there have been realized, in fact, the results which are now so freely prophesied to happen here is that repeal of the Mullan-Gage law will leave all State and municipal peace officers still under the duty to report to the Federal authorities any evidence of violations of the Volstead law that may come to their knowledge, and to arrest and bring before the proper Federal officer any one whom they detect in the act of violating that statute. This needed no judicial decision, but the principle has been applied by a United States Circuit Court of Appeals. The States are powerless to rid themselves of prohibition and powerless to take from their peace officers the right to arrest violators of the Volstead law, and powerless to thwart the Federal Government in enforcing the Eighteenth Amendment, or any other part of the Federal Constitution.

One thing, and one thing only, they can do. They can follow the precedent set in Maryland and Massachusetts, as well as by our Republican Assembly, under the leadership of one of its youngest Republican members, who seems to have been the first to realize that there was something radically wrong with the system of enforcing against the same man two penalties for the same act, one penalty in the State court and the other penalty in the Federal court. Within about a fortnight from the opening of the session the so-called Davison bill was introduced and was adopted without a dissenting vote. The bill forbade the prosecution in the courts of this State for a violation of the Mullan-Gage law of any person who had been prosecuted and duly acquitted, or convicted, under any law of Congress enacted for enforcing the Eighteenth Amendment for the same acts alleged to constitute a violation of the Mullan-Gage law.

The Mullan-Gage law was not needed to make unlawful the manufacture, transportation or sale of intoxicating liquors for beverage purposes. The Volstead law already had made that a criminal offense against the United States. The Mullan-Gage law merely made the same act a separate offense against the State of New York and thus enabled the Federal Government to secure a double punishment "for the same acts."

In its editorial of March 13, 1923, THE TIMES said: "The possibilities, the probabilities, of oppression under this dual system are evident. Talk to a member of Congress or the Legislature about them and he may say: 'Oh, they only get what is coming to them. Nothing is too bad for the bootleggers. Let 'em keep out of the business and they'll keep out of trouble, single or double.' That forgets the theory of the law and the fundamental constitutional guarantees."

The New York Globe, which regards the repeal as a "childish manoeuvre," concludes by saying that, barring "misconduct and corruption in office, the repeal will make no difference at all." The Tribune says: "The repeal of the law will, in any event, make for official sincerity and reduce the chances of police corruption," and adds: "No State is obligated to offer to do the Federal Government's enforcement work," closing with the statement that "it is for the New York voters" to say "how far they shall spend their money and use their State instrumentalities to carry out the Volstead act." The Buffalo Express thinks that the repeal bill should be vetoed, though it admits that "the repeal can make little practical difference with the enforcement or non-enforcement of prohibition." A paper in Lyons says that to repeal the Mullan-Gage law, "leaving nothing in its place, is folly," but we have seen that the repeal leaves in the place of the repealed law precisely the situation which existed before its passage, except that the State's judicial machinery is no longer available to inflict punishment upon those who remained liable to prosecution in the Federal courts.

Now we hear it said that the Legislature has "put it up" to the Governor. The Anti-Saloon League has invented the question, "Are you in favor of law enforcement?" and on that question, we are told, the next campaign in this State will be fought. That question which the Anti-Saloon agents do not dare to ask is this: "Are you in favor of any and all means which we may take to enforce prohibition, no matter what principle of American liberty we may smash in the process?"

CONRAD FOR "MOVIES" BUT CAN'T SELL ONE

Noted Writer of Sea Tales Admits If He Has a Style He Does Not Recognize It.

TAKES REFUGE IN HUMOR

Doesn't Remember Anything About His Books. He Tells Score of Interviewers.

Joseph Conrad, one of the foremost English novelists, whose early life as a sailor and sea captain formed the background for his tales of the South Seas, was bombarded yesterday with questions about cooking, the "movies," style, and philosophy and many other things which he protested he didn't know anything about. The interview took place at the home of Frank N. Doubleday at Mill Neck, L. I., where Mr. Conrad is spending his first days in America.

He has not been well since he landed here and has been recuperating from the gout at the Doubleday home. His trip to America was in response to repeated invitations of Mr. Doubleday, his publisher, to come to this country for a visit in return for the many which Mr. Doubleday had paid him in England. It was evident yesterday, however, that, despite Mr. Conrad's manifest wish to be agreeable and answer questions, his being interviewed by a score or more of avid young persons was an ordeal.

Mr. Conrad is anything but the type of man one would associate with the sea. He is slight and not tall, and, with his Vandyke beard and monocle, it hardly seemed possible that he had battled with ice-covered seas off the Horn or commanded a towering sailing ship in the days before he took to writing. He speaks with a slight accent, because of his Polish origin, and his manner is rather reserved and somewhat shy. When he was confronted by a question he frequently took refuge in humor.

Recalls Stephen Crane.

The sea and his friends were two topics upon which Mr. Conrad showed an inclination to converse freely, but he had few opportunities. He was asked about his friend, Stephen Crane, author of "The Red Badge of Courage," with whom he used to tramp the streets of London and sit up to all hours of the night discussing literature, and became enthusiastic in a moment. He spoke of his admiration for Crane's amazing feat in writing a great battle story without ever having seen anything of the war, and of his strange lack of knowledge of literature. Once when Crane asked him about Balzac, said Mr. Conrad, he wired his wife that he would not be home and spent the entire night in talking with Crane.

A reference to his trips around the Horn brought a sparkle to Mr. Conrad's eye and he recalled how he had spent two and a half hours in the rigging beside an Australian lad beating the royals to break the ice on them so they could be furled, struggling with the booming canvas in inky darkness, and how he could hear the boy beside him crying with weariness and terror. The sailing ships made only a little while the sea had not changed, the change to steam had developed a new type of seaman, he said. More like factory hands they were now.

But there was much more talk of literature, or an attempt to try to get Mr. Conrad to speak of his philosophy of life and style—attempts which did not succeed very well. When he was pinned down on a question which was meant to bring out some point about technique, he shook his head dismissingly, and said:

"I don't remember anything about my books. I know much less about them than most people. You are asking me things about which I know nothing."

Not Bothered by Style.

He hadn't found any new form for the novel, he protested; he had merely tried to tell his story in the way which he thought best suited to his purpose. As for style, it was "something about which I never bother; it is enough to get the story forward without bothering about these side issues."

And so the great question as to Conrad's style and "technique" was suggested was left "ironical" treatment of life was left unexplained.

"What is an ironical?" he laughed. But he did discloss one interesting thing about "Nostromo," a book over which he worked long years, and which, when it at type he came across an amusing paragraph.

"I read it over, and it didn't mean anything, he said quizzically. "I said. What does this mean? What did I try to say? I could not remember, so I drew the pen through it. It was at the beginning of a chapter."

Mr. Doubleday called attention to the fact that Mr. Conrad had written the first part of "The Rescue" twenty years before he finished it, and after it had been laid aside so long he picked it up and brought it quickly to a conclusion. There might be a chance to find out how a man's style changed, said Mr. Doubleday, but nobody had ever guessed the point at which the break occurred. Then Mr. Conrad was asked where it took place he laughed and said:

"Ah, that is my secret; you must let me have one."

Likes the "Movies."

He likes moving pictures, although he said that long before they were developed novelists had tried to put moving pictures of life into words. It was an essential of novels that they moved. But the achievements of men who had made moving pictures called forth an appreciation from him, in which he said that he had once spent a month trying to write a scenario and that it had been rejected when he finished it.

"I spent a month, bored to extinction, and they wouldn't have it," he said.

A new novel, called "The Sower," will be published in the Fall. On the flyleaf are words he heard from a Breton sailor many years ago: "They were 'of all nations, English, French, Dutch, Spanish and even blackamoors. But they were all brothers."

$610 FOR A 24-CENT STAMP.

Rarities Collected by C. H. Eagle Sell High at Auction.

An unused twenty-four cent "aeroplane" stamp with the centre inverted was sold for $610 at the auction on Saturday of a portion of the stamp collection of the late Clarence H. Eagle. It is one of the sheet of 100 stamps purchased by Colonel E. H. R. Green in 1918, when the first "aeroplane" postage stamps were issued. This was the only sheet of those stamps with the centre printed upside down which got into circulation. Three other similar sheets, it is said, were discovered but immediately destroyed. Colonel Green sold a few single stamps to collectors, but has still retains most of the original sheet.

At the sale of the Eagle collection there were 874 lots, all of United States stamps, which brought a total of $2,000. An unused block of four of the nineteen-cent issue of 1869 brought $190. An unused four-cent Columbian issue, 1893, printed in blue, the wrong color, was sold for $130, which is $30 higher than the standard catalogue value. A portion of the sale was the payment of $171 for a torn, but repaired, two-cent stamp of the 1901 issue with inverted centre.

BOOTH SEES OUTLOOK IN EUROPE BRIGHTER

Banker Says Conditions Have Improved Yearly Since Treaty Was Signed.

MEDIATION ON REPARATIONS

France and Germany, He Declares, Must Accept It or Sacrifice Good-Will of the World.

By T. WALTER WILLIAMS.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ON BOARD S.S. MAJESTIC, May 7.—Willis H. Booth, Vice President of the Guaranty Trust Company of New York, who was elected President of the International Chamber of Commerce at its recent congress in Rome, is returning home with rather optimistic views of the conditions in Europe. He says that they have improved every year since the signing of the peace treaty. He finds that people have more money, that crops are good, and that more land is under cultivation each year. He believes that France and Germany will be compelled to make some kind of terms soon. In the only interview he has given while on his trip Mr. Booth said today:

"Disregarding the ever-present political factors for the moment, the problems of Europe may be gathered under three heads: The impasse between Germany and the Allies is industrial; in Middle Europe the trouble is largely agricultural; in the Near East it is commercial.

"France has no intention of allowing Germany to re-establish her industrial position at the expense of unpaid reparations. The further payments France will insist upon, even in the face of a moratorium, will be such as to assert control over the industrially competing position of Germany for the next generation at least. The counter-proposal which has been worked out by France and Belgium to submit to Germany will doubtless be unacceptable to England and Germany, as Germany's proposal was unacceptable to England and France; so the stage will be set for outside suggestions, either governmental or otherwise, and it is along this road that a settlement, if any settlement is possible, can be made. When the proper time comes Germany and France will have to accept responsible mediation or sacrifice the good-will of the world. In any event, security of boundaries and acceptable control of railroads, customs, industries and other public or private sources of wealth, pledged to protect guarantees seem now of more importance than the amount of reparation payments, if the latter are in any way reasonable.

American Investor and Reparations.

"In the last analysis the investor in England and the United States is going to be the determining factor in any reparation settlement. Unless he has confidence that the settlement will insure the peace of Europe for an extended period and is within the capacity of Germany to pay, no basis for credit has been established, and without such a basis the ultimate financing cannot be done. Hence the importance of broad educational efforts by every possible agency, to the end that American judgment, when called for, shall be intelligently expressed.

"The Middle European countries are largely based on agriculture. The peasants are in the main prosperous. Practically all the countries are back to their prewar acreage, if not production. But the peasant of Poland, Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Austria, Rumania, Jugoslavia and other countries has been given a new toy in the form of voting control in those countries, and he is not handling it as yet very wisely. He has made uneconomic laws to free himself from rent and has been able to keep in power governments which were and are afraid to levy and collect adequate taxes from him. As a result we have the peculiar condition of countries with fairly prosperous populations on the verge of governmental bankruptcy.

Many Bright Lights in the Picture.

"But there are many bright lights in the picture outstanding. The regeneration of Italy on the basis of work and adequate taxation, the adjustment of the English debt and the rehabilitation of Austria on the basis of sound economics are all pointing the way, and the other nations, without a single exception, are all seriously endeavoring to get upon a fundamentally sound basis. But it is not any easy task, and only time and patience, with many threatening collapses meantime, will solve it. But it looks better.

"The Near East is in the lap of the gods pending the Lausanne conference.

"On the whole, the housekeeping of Europe this year as compared with each of the other years since the armistice, is better. Cities are well kept up; the postal, telegraph and train service is much improved; work and social order are the rule; in each country that it must work out its own salvation without outside help is contributory to greater independence, both personal and national. This automatically gives an improved morale.

"With the exception of such adjustments, if any, as we may desire to make in the debts due us from these countries, there is not much that we can do governmentally to help the situation, which is working itself out gradually but surely. In a business way we can do and are doing much, but it will take time to re-establish lost values, both physical and moral, upon which sound credits can be based. No America's place in the picture is to be helpful whenever it is possible. The dark days of the present will doubtless grow worse before they will get better, but as compared with the years directly after the armistice, they show much advantage and warrant encouragement. The problems will be greater with the new nations thrown suddenly and without preparations into great responsibilities; but these are now steadily improving in experience and will ultimately work out, even though there are many troublesome years just ahead."

Views of Masson, French Banker.

Another financier on board is Eugene Masson of the Crédit Lyonnais, who is on his way to deliver an address before the convention, to be held in New York, of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States. In this address he will try to show the situation of France in relation to Germany from a business man's point of view, apart from politics. He contends that France must have her full share of the 132,000,000,000 gold marks set by the Reparation Commission, including the A, B and C bonds. If the other countries choose to reduce their claims it is their lookout. The C bonds, he says, would be of only nominal value. France would like to use them to pay off her debt to the United States, but does not admit it.

Senator George H. Moses of New Hampshire, who has been on a tour of Europe and the Near East, sums up the situation in Europe as one of poor Governments and prosperous peoples. In his opinion the remedy for Europe's ills lies in stopping propaganda and in everybody getting to work.

H. M. Day's Views of Russia.

Henry Mason Day, President of the International Barnsdall Corporation, who is returning from Russia, says that general conditions have greatly improved since his previous visit last Fall. The stores are better supplied with articles of good quality instead of cheap goods; people are getting more freedom; Communism is waning; social life at the opera, ballets and the restaurants is becoming more normal; people are going out in evening dress without fear of being arrested for hoarding wealth; the streets of Moscow are well policed and well lit; there is good street car and taxicab service, and visitors are able to walk about the city safely.

Moscow needs some good hotels, Mr. Day says, as the present accommodations for visitors are poor and inadequate. The Government officials of all classes and the people generally are well disposed toward foreigners. Americans are treated as cordially as they could expect to be in any country. Merchants are going ahead developing their business. Industries lack organization and capital, but manufacturers feel that now that Trotsky has been appointed Minister of the Interior a Government organization will be formed that will make things decidedly better. Rykoff's appointment as Minister of Transportation has also met with popular approval.

"Lenin is very ill and the Cabinet was busy discussing who was to be his successor. Kamenoff and Rykoff seemed to be popular selections. Zinoviff, Radek and Rakovsky are also mentioned.

"I attended the Church of the Saviour, outside the Kremlin, Easter eve. It was packed to the doors, while thousands of worshippers knelt on the icy road outside, holding candles in a temperature of 10 degrees below zero. The people went home chanting. I saw no counter-demonstration against the Church during my five weeks' stay in Moscow.

"The small towns of Russia are suffering from lack of transportation and lack of decision as to the percentages to be charged on import and export taxes.

"The army, numbering 700,000 troops, is well drilled and well equipped.

"Oil production in Russia has been handicaped beyond belief by lack of material, despite the recent receipt of ten rotary sets from the United States. There is plenty of labor to be had, mostly unskilled. The unions demand just wages for the men, with 16 per cent. for insurance and 10 per cent. additional for an educational society whose duties are to improve the educational and social condition of the laboser, his wife and children. The Oil Committee at Baku maintains two well-equipped hospitals and four recreation houses in the mountains for the benefit of laborers suffering from lung trouble, which is prevalent in that district. There are about 20,000 people employed in the oil fields. My experts reported to me there was oil in every direction, and all it requires is trained technical American instruction and machinery and the coupling of these with the native labor as anxious to learn as he would possibly be.

"There is also plenty of coal, lumber, salt, copper and other industries awaiting capital and organization for development. The Russian Government hopes that American corporations will deem it worth their while to invest in Russia. Siberia is still dead."

Mr. Day said that the Soviet Government told him that the contracts given to his organization were more valuable than any awarded by that body before or likely to be given out in future, as the International Barnsdall Corporation was the first American concern to open negotiation with Russia.

Before leaving Moscow, Mr. Day said, he received commissions from the Government to purchase machinery, automobiles and other goods amounting to hundreds of thousands of dollars, of which 50 per cent. was handed to him in cash.

Ziegfeld Testifies in Soprano's Breach of Contract Suit.

Florenz Ziegfeld and Abraham L. Erlanger, who control the Follies, testified before Supreme Court Justice Burr yesterday in a suit by Mrs. Olive Cornell, a soprano, against the Follies management for breach of contract of employment. She sued on the ground that she had quit a $350 a week engagement in big-time vaudeville to accept $200 a week with the Ziegfeld show. She was laid off at the end of the first week of the 1920 show at Atlantic City, but later had a week's engagement on the New Amsterdam roof in the Midnight Frolic and was then dropped for good.

Mrs. Cornell, who is the wife of Charles Cornell, a booking agent and producer, claimed $10,000 loss of salary and $15,000 for loss of prestige. The defense was that Mrs. Cornell's enunciation during a duet with John Steel, tenor, was not clear enough for the Follies. Mr. Erlanger said he heard Mrs. Cornell sing at the opening in Atlantic City and couldn't understand her. "It was the worst I ever heard," he said.

Mr. Erlanger, questioned by his attorney, Nathan D. Stern, declared that the Ziegfeld productions were "glorified vaudeville," and that during the last seventeen years their cost had mounted from $75,000 to $250,000 "before raising the curtain." Asked what he thought of cabarets, Mr. Erlanger said:

"Cabarets are responsible for the Eighteenth Amendment."

Mr. Erlanger said the cabaret end of the show business was looked upon by theatrical producers as "the outcast of their own line," but stated that he did not mean to reflect on any one in cabarets.

Mr. Ziegfeld testified that the first Follies cost $13,000; the 1920 production, in which Mrs. Cornell appeared so briefly, cost $175,000, and it took $237,000 "to raise the curtain" on the present show. He said that when he heard Mrs. Cornell try out her voice with several operatic selections he told her she would have to sing in English in vaudeville.

"Whatever may go in opera," Mr. Ziegfeld said he told the plaintiff, "no opera singer has ever made much of a hit in high-class vaudeville of the kind we put on. Our singing must be in English, and every word must be understood."

The trial will continue today.

REPORTS ON CITY HOSPITALS

Committee Finds Serious Shortage of Beds for Mental Patients.

According to the report of a recent study made by the Public Health Committee of the New York Academy of Medicine, there exists a serious shortage of hospital beds in New York for the treatment of neurological and mental diseases.

The report, which was made public today, says that "of all hospitals, the State hospitals for the treatment of mental diseases show the highest degree of utilization, and that in fact, 'they are overcrowded to an extent which should not be tolerated.'"

Concerning the distribution of the bed capacity by service in the hospitals in New York City, the report says there are 890 beds devoted to neurological conditions, or 2.6 per cent. of the total bed capacity of the city, and that of these, 533 are in municipal institutions, seventeen in a private general hospital, and 340 in two private special hospitals, the Neurological Institute and the Montefiore Hospital.

FLEET OF HUGE AIRSHIPS CONSIDERED IN BRITAIN

Copyright, 1923, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Tuesday, May 8.—"The seal of the Cabinet's approval, according to most reliable authority, is about to be set upon the greatest air project yet seen," says The Daily Chronicle's aeronautical correspondent, who continues:

"For some months the Committee of Imperial Defense, sitting as an advisory sub-committee to the Cabinet, has been considering every strategical aspect of a new super-express, small and passenger service for 10,000 miles across the Empire, conducted with rigid airships of a perfected type, larger than any such craft built before. Backed finally, although others by the Royal Shell petroleum group, and with millions at its command, the scheme, which has been drafted in its technical details by Commander Dennis Burney, is of great imperial significance.

"The Committee of Imperial Defence during its recent meetings has sought to ascertain from our greatest authorities, naval and military, how valuable it might be at a crisis to have a fleet of huge commercial airships in being—craft which, called into war service, would become armed cruisers and transports of the air. The replies of the experts have been emphatically in approval of the scheme from the widest viewpoint of empire defence, and the report of the committee, now going forward to the Cabinet, is understood to so favorable that a general Government decision approving the plan itself, with suggested State co-operation in it, is regarded as almost a foregone conclusion.

"Extraordinary possibilities have been foreshadowed by naval and military experts for giant airships built according to the latest plans. Figures have been prepared which show that, converted into a troop transport, a monster passenger airship could carry 500 or even 1,000 soldiers on a swift journey through the air to some point where their speedy arrival might make all the difference between victory or defeat.

"Nor is this all. Expert investigation has been directed to a development which, in the light of recent secret experiments, is no longer considered fantastic. This is to use a vast, specially designed airship as a "flying aerodrome" for fighting airplanes. This aspect is proving of engrossing interest to the Admiralty, and schemes are on foot to consider how a form of aerial blockade, as well as of sea blockade, might be established in time of war. Here a mother airship, taking up some aerial station at a high altitude, probably hidden from view by the clouds, would play a significant part in a general raid on sea-borne commerce.

"Launched from their mother ship of the air, airplane raiders would come rushing down to drop bombs on merchantmen, returning afterward to be taken aboard the airship by means of a suspended hook or trigger device engaging with a mechanism on the plane itself.

"As for empire passengers in haste, borne aloft in many engined airships, each with 5,000,000 cubic gas capacity, and paying fares comparing favorably with ocean transport, they will travel by air with all the luxury of a great sea line, reaching India in about seventy-two hours from London, and far-off Australia after about only a week of non-fatiguing flight."

KLAN WIZARD SHORN OF FULL AUTHORITY

Atlanta Court Decides That the Imperial Kloncilium Can Veto Evans's Decisions.

ATLANTA, Ga., May 7.—The Imperial Kloncilium of the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan was vested with full executive authority over the affairs of that organization in a decree signed today by Judge E. D. Thomas of the Fulton Superior Court. The effect of the order, it is stated, is to relieve the Imperial Wizard of independent administration and executive authority.

Under the decree the Imperial Wizard, H. P. Evans, is declared to be the chief executive of the order, but all of his acts are made subject to a vote by two-thirds of the Kloncilium, and he is bound to accept all acts of that body.

The order is a sequel to recent litigation between factions of the Klan.

CITY MOVES TO OUST THE TRANSIT BOARD

Estimate Board Orders That Charges Be Presented to the Governor.

MAYOR MAY STUMP STATE

Republicans Accept His Challenge—Governor Sees No Reason for Extra Session.

The Board of Estimate started an attempt yesterday to oust the members of the Transit Commission, who were continued in office as the result of the failure of the Legislature to pass any transit legislation desired by Mayor Hylan.

The action was taken at a meeting of the Committee of the Whole on motion of Murray Hulbert, President of the Board of Aldermen, that the corporation counsel be instructed to prepare charges against the members of the commission for presentation to the Governor. The motion was passed unanimously by the votes of Mayor Hylan, Mr. Hulbert and the five Borough Presidents, Controller Craig being absent.

The board also adopted the Mayor's suggestion for a special session of the Legislature in June for another attempt to get transit legislation desired by the Mayor, and passed a resolution urging Governor Smith to call such a session. The Mayor explained that if the Republican Assembly remained obdurate and refused to give him the transit legislation he wanted he would stump the State against the Republican Assemblymen if it took all Summer, thereby risking a chance of occupying the cottage he has just rented at Saratoga.

Governor Cold on Extra Session.

The New York County Republican organization decided yesterday to accept the Mayor's challenge on transit and will start a campaign immediately for the re-election of the four Republican Assemblymen from this county and for the election of as many more Republicans as possible. A meeting of the Assembly district leaders was held at the headquarters of the County Committee, 107 West Fortieth Street, and it was decided to start the campaign with a dinner for the four Assemblymen at the Hotel Astor on May 24.

The four Assemblymen, George N. Jesse, Sol Ullman, Joseph Steinberg and Victor R. Kaufman, issued a statement in reply to the Mayor's attack upon them. They declared that the Mayor had an opportunity to get the power to construct new subways under the Jesse bill, but rejected it.

Governor Smith, who arrived in the city last night, indicated that there was little chance of his calling a special session of the Legislature, as desired by Mayor Hylan and the Board of Estimate. "I see no reason for calling a special session," the Governor said.

Another indication of the intention of the City Administration to continue its war on the Transit Commission was given in consideration by the Board of Estimate of a plan to organize a force of city inspectors to work in night and day shifts checking up train schedules in the subways. Mayor Hylan declared that the Transit Commission inspectors went through the motions but failed to accomplish anything.

"The B. R. T. and the Interborough always know when the Transit Commission Inspectors are coming around," the Mayor said. "They are prepared for them. While the checkers are on the job the transit companies put on more cars and give an indication of 100 per cent. service. When the checkers leave, the cars are taken off. It's a good joke on the public—a joke we're going to put an end to."

Mayor Attacks Commission.

The Mayor then made an attack upon the Transit Commission, in which he said:

"The Transit Commission is getting no results, so the city must step in and show with facts and figures just how the Interborough and the B. R. T. are falling down and betraying the nickel-paying public. No one has any confidence in McAneny [George McAneny, Chairman of the Transit Commission]. They seem to be under the control of the transit people.

"One of the reasons for the Albany opposition to the Walker-Donohue bill was the realization that the city would, under municipal control, afford relief for three-quarters of the time. The transit companies know this. We have no way of checking up on franchises or on service under present conditions.

"I believe the Governor should call a special session of the Legislature and I believe the Corporation Counsel should advise us just how to proceed against the present members of the Transit Commission. We should get ready records and data and show conditions.

"If a special session is called and no relief is afforded, then we will be in a position to campaign against the legislators denying us the relief. I, for one, am ready to campaign right through the Summer. The special session should be in June so as to afford us time to take the stump. September would make it too late."

Earlier in the day the Mayor issued a statement attacking the Transit Commission and the newspapers and asserting that he would never consent to the construction of new subways to link up with the Interborough and B. R. T. systems.

To Fight, Mayor Says.

The Mayor said:

"As was to be expected, the traction-controlled newspapers, in conjunction with the traction-controlled State Transit Commission, headed by George McAneny, are now beginning to do much talking about presenting plans for building subways although they know very well that it will take several years before a single new subway could be built.

"The traction crowd and their friends exploited the people in the past, and with the aid of Republican bosses and Republican Assemblymen they have obstructed the passage of recent proposed legislation which would have enabled us to regulate the existing transit facilities so that the people would not be obliged to stand up all day and all night, and at the same time permit us to provide an up-to-date bus system for the immediate transit needs of the people.

"To the McAneny crowd and their newspaper cohorts let me say that we will resist to the last ditch any suggested plans for subways that will mean tying up such subways with the dual subway system in a manner to perpetuate the existing control of the Interborough and the B. R. T. It was McAneny's manoeuvring that slipped over the iniquitous provisions of these contracts on the taxpayers some ten years ago, as a result of which the people are now paying $10,000,000 annually in interest while the traction operators rake in all the profits. We will resist another deal whereby $25,000,000 additional burden will be placed upon the taxpayers.

"The subways contemplated in the plans of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment will connect up with the links of the existing subways that can be taken over and operated by the city, and will prevent the tightening of the clutch which the traction operators have held upon the city since the first subway was constructed.

"If the McAneny crowd and the traction controlled newspapers think they are going to force the people of this city to accept a mass of traction, flat-wheeled junk and pay $500,000,000 for this obsolete material, they are very much mistaken. It will not be done.

"The people of this city should know that The New York World, Times, Herald and Tribune and papers devoted to the cause of the traction interests and not the welfare of the people will devote much space to the mouthings of McAneny about new subways. They should also know that this talk of new subways is merely a smoke screen thrown up to entrench the traction corporations in their present policy of inadequate operation of existing facilities with consequent merciless crowding of passengers.

"The fight will go on until it is settled right, and that will be when the people get control of their transit facilities."

Blame Hylan for Delay.

The statement issued by Assemblymen Jesse, Ullman, Steinberg and Kaufman said in part:

"The Mayor again attempts to confuse the transit problem by raising a false issue. He knows, and every one else knows, there can be no relief from the present intolerable conditions without new subway construction. To date, all new subway construction has been blocked by the Mayor's refusal to cooperate with the existing Transit Commission. Recognizing that this situation was likely to continue because of the obstinate attitude of the Mayor, the Republican Assembly, acting on the advice of the Republican Representatives from New York City, offered to give complete and unqualified control of all future subway construction to the city administration. It went further, it offered, subject to the approval of the people of the city, not only to give the administration full authority to build, but full authority to operate.

"There are three phases of the transit problem, to wit: construction, operation and regulation. In order to end the present deadlock, we offered to turn over both construction and actual operation to the City Administration. We declined to have the State surrender its right to regulate. Regulation has always been, and should remain, a State function. Because of this refusal, our opponents have felt justified in blocking all legislation."

BOARD MAY DEMAND REVISED B. R. T. PLAN

Intimates It Will Not Approve Proposed Status of Holding Company.

An indication that the Transit Commission will not approve the proposed Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company reorganization plan unless there is a change in the satus of the B. R. T. as a holding company to make it subject to the regulation of the commission was given yesterday at the hearing before the commission.

The fight of the City Administration against the reorganization was begun by cross-examination of Gerhard M. Dahl, Vice President of the Chase National Bank and a member of the Stockholders' Committee, by Assistant Corporation Counsels Edgar M. Kohler and M. Maldwin Fertig. In commenting upon a question of Mr. Kohler's, Commissioner Le Roy T. Harkness said that, for the purpose of the argument, it might be assumed that the commission would not approve the continuation of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company as a holding company.

Mr. Kohler asked Mr. Dahl how he justified the continuation of the B. R. T. as a holding company as provided by the plan. Mr. Dahl replied that it would be impossible to effect a reorganization otherwise, as it was necessary to deal with the present security holders. "I do not believe you would get very far with them unless you had a holding company in the plan," he said.

The hearing was adjourned until Wednesday.

CALAIS-PARIS FLIGHT AT ONE CENT A MILE

Barbot Is Coming to America to Demonstrate His Economical Low-Power Airplane.

Copyright, 1923, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, May 7.—Georges Barbot arrived in Paris in his low-powered airplane at 9 o'clock, having made the trip from Calais in four hours' actual flight. Owing to fog, however, the famous pilot lost his way once, and for several hours nothing was heard from him, which alarmed the general public awaiting news of his flight.

In today's feat Barbot covered 310 kilometers (192 miles), at an average speed of seventy-seven kilometers (about forty-eight miles) per hour. For his flight the gas consumption was twenty liters. At 1 franc 50 centimes per litre the cost for fuel was 30 francs. With 1 franc added for oil, the cost of the trip comes to 31 francs, or 10 centimes (about 8-10 of a cent) per kilometer. This makes the cost in American money about 1 cent a mile.

Barbot said tonight that he expected to sail next week for America, where he had an engagement to give demonstrations of low-powered flying. He will visit New York, Chicago, St. Louis and Dayton, and return to France June 16. In July he will compete for the Blériot prize.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 7.—A disturbance of moderate intensity was over the lake region and Ontario Monday night and moving eastward, and pressure remained low off the Atlantic Coast. But there was a marked increase in pressure Monday over the Canadian Northwest, Montana and the Dakotas. This pressure distribution has been attended by local rains within the last twenty-four hours in the upper lake region, the Mississippi and Missouri Valleys, Arkansas, Eastern Texas and the Plains States and by generally fair weather over the remainder of the country.

The temperature was higher Monday in the lower lakes region, the North Atlantic States and the Far Northwest, while considerably cooler weather overspread Manitoba, the Northern Plains States, the Mississippi Valley and the Lake Superior region. The temperature was at the freezing point, and snow was falling Monday night at Huron, S. D.

There will be considerable cloudiness Tuesday and Wednesday over the States of the Mississippi River, and showers are probable over the greater portion of this area. However, generally fair weather will prevail in the Atlantic States during Tuesday. Cooler weather will overspread the lower lake region and the Ohio and the lower Mississippi Valleys Tuesday night and Wednesday and the Atlantic States north of Georgia Wednesday and Wednesday night.

AIRPLANE INSPECTOR—There will be an examination for airplane inspector, to fill vacancies in the Air Service, War Department, New York City, at salary of $2,000 to $2,500 a year. Applications will be received up to May 18. Under general supervision the airplane inspector inspects the raw materials, processes, assemblies, finished parts and installations which go to make up a complete airplane to determine whether or not the materials, fabrication methods, parts, assemblies, &c., are in accordance with the applicable specifications and drawings. He detects and corrects defects or troubles in airplanes of standard and approved types which make them unsafe for flight—in some cases, including the inspection of service planes prior to flight—and is called upon to prepare reports for inspection work. Applicants must show they have had at least three years of preliminary experience as mechanical draftsmen, or as mechanics in an machine tool shop, or in the construction and repair of automobiles or aircraft, or their mechanical accessories, or as airplane pilots; or, in lieu of such experience, there may be substituted proportionately three full years of formal technical training in high school or a manual training or industrial school, or two full years in a scientific or engineering course of a college or university. In addition they must show that they have had at least three years of experience as airplane mechanic, assembler, designer, inspector, aeronautical engineer, or foreman or superintendent of airplane construction. For one year of this experience, applicant may substitute one year as an air pilot. Applicants must have reached their twenty-fifth but not their fiftieth birthday.

STEAM ROLLER ENGINEER—Applications will close on May 18 for an examination for steam roller engineer under the jurisdiction of the Quartermaster, Second Corps Area, Governors Island, at $1,200 a year. Competitors will not be required to report at any place for examination. The subjects and weights of the examination are physical ability, 40; training and experience, 60. Applicants must have reached their twentieth but not their fifty-fifth birthday.

SURGEON'S ASSISTANT—Applications will close on May 26 for an examination for surgeon's assistant (dental, eye, ear, nose and throat) to fill vacancies in the United States Veterans' Bureau, Second Civil Service District, at $1,200 a year. The position now open is for dental assistant. The subject and weights of the examination are physical ability, 25; education and experience, 75. Applicants must have reached their eighteenth but not their fiftieth birthday.

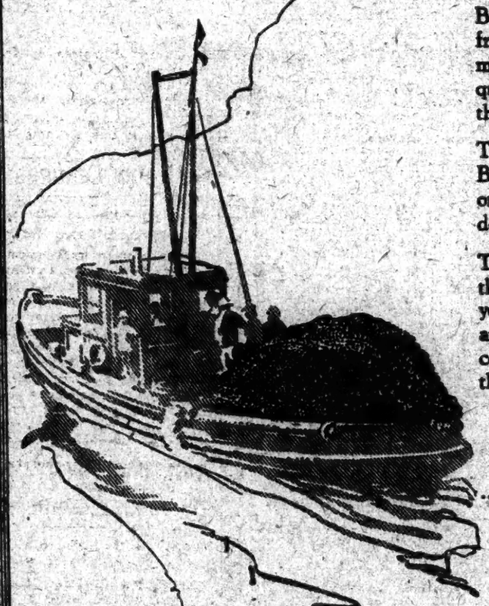
What the Booth "Diamond" Means



Booth has made it easy for you to have the finest of fresh fish or sea foods on your table every day—made it certain that these delicacies are of the highest quality—made it possible for you to have them in the form you like best, and at very low cost.

These things are the fundamental service of the Booth Fisheries Company, a service which it renders on so vast, so complete and so economic a scale as to deserve its place as the world's greatest fisherman.

The organization for this service extends throughout the United States and Canada, and onto the seas beyond. The business carried on exceeds $30,000,000 annually. The equipment for it represents assets exceeding $20,000,000. The extent, variety and value of this equipment can only be suggested in a list like this:

BOOTH FISHERIES COMPANY OWNS AND OPERATES

...1,115 fishing vessels
...3 freight and passenger steamships
...17 salmon canneries, with a capacity of more than 900,000 cases a year, placing Booth among the two largest salmon packers in the world.
...4 codfish packing plants, the two newest of which are the largest and best equipped plants for their purpose in the world.
...8 sardine canneries, with a yearly capacity of one hundred million cans of sardines.
...8 mammoth cold storage plants, situated in great distributing centers of the United States and Canada.
...75 branches, one in every major city of the United States and Canada.

This great array of properties is organized and maintained to assure the consuming public an ample, dependable supply, of the finest quality. The Booth Diamond always and everywhere is the sign of Booth service and Booth quality.

When you lie awake, think of the secret of sound sleep

Thousands of men and women toss and turn for hours every night while sleep shuns them. They give endless reasons for their wakefulness: insomnia, overwork, nervousness, worry. Because genuine sleep comfort is unknown to them, few put the blame where it belongs—on a wretched, worn-out mattress or spring. They have yet to learn the quieting effect of a luxurious bed on exhausted nerves and bodies. Such super-comfort need not be costly.

Set aside enough time today to call on your furniture dealer and examine Simmons springs and mattresses of buoyant new material—now offered at prices to fit any pocketbook. Compare them with your own bedding and decide whether health, vigor and personal success are not worth the investment in Simmons sleep comfort

HARDING GIVES ORDER NOT TO JAR TARIFF

Tells the Commission to Avoid Throwing "A Monkey Wrench Into the Machinery."

REASSURES SOUTHERNERS

Will Proclaim Changes Under the Flexible Provisions Only for "Pronounced Reasons."

BUT WILL NOT STOP INQUIRY

Democratic Delegation Urges Him to Prevent a Cut in Vegetable Oil Rates.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—The Tariff Commission has been cautioned by President Harding "not to throw a monkey-wrench into the machinery" in its administration of the flexible provisions of the Fordney-McCumber Tariff law under which the President is authorized to lower or increase rates as the occasion may demand.

There must be very pronounced reasons, the President says, before he will concur in any decision of the commission to lower existing tariff rates. Protection, he declares, is one of the reasons for the flexible provision and reductions are to be made only when the rates are excessive.

The President expressed his views to a delegation representing the Southern Tariff Association with whom he conferred at the White House today. The delegation was notable in that every man in it was a Democratic State officeholder in a cotton State.

The delegation protested against the proposal to lower the rates on vegetable oils. The Tariff Commission announced yesterday that an investigation was about to be made to determine whether these rates should be lowered.

Addressing the delegation, President Harding said:

"Now let me say briefly in reply—it will be very brief—I am just as cordially in favor of everything consistently possible to promote agricultural prosperity as any of you. I presume I am a more ardent protectionist than any of you. I believe in it with all my heart as an American policy, but I rather infer from your presentation of the case that you have not understood precisely the flexible provisions of the tariff law.

"Your argument proceeds on the theory that the authority of the President, on the advice of the Tariff Commission, is to lower the tariff, when, as a matter of fact, the provision was inserted with equal purpose to authorize the elevation of it.

"We were considering a provision to correct the difficulties growing out of world conditions—out of the great difference in exchange—and we wanted a provision by which we could protect American industry against unfair and destructive competition. So one inspiration of the flexible tariff is protection, and reduction only in case of excessive rates. It is designed to operate either way—to protect the American consumer against inordinate charges, as well as the American producer against unfair competition.

"You stress your objection to the policy of docketing. A policy has been agreed upon by the Tariff Commission and the President. We cannot deny the filing of petitions for modifications, but, before action is taken, the Tariff Commission makes a preliminary survey to determine whether the facts justify recommending a hearing on the question.

"You cannot forbid surveys. If you undertook to do that you would make the provision of a flexible tariff a deadletter. But I have cautioned the commission that the Government does not mean 'to throw a bonkey wrench into the machinery' at a time when we are all trying to recover fully from industrial and agricultural depression. I can tell you surely that the President would proclaim no reduction of the tariff unless there were very pronounced reasons for it, and the President would be justified in modification either way only on the most striking evidence of the necessity of such a change in rates."

FRENCH COMMEMORATE AMERICAN VOLUNTEERS

50,000 Subscribe for a Monument to Those Who Served Before We Entered the War.

PARIS, May 7.—General Mangin called upon American Ambassador Herrick today and announced that 350,000 francs had been raised by popular subscription for the erection of a monument to the American volunteers who joined the French Army before the United States entered the war. The contributions ranged from 1 franc 50 centimes, subscribed by the girls of a primary school, to 20,000 francs, given by the Bank of France.

Every regiment in the French Army, including even the battalions in the remote regions of Africa; President Millerand, Premier Poincaré and all the Marshals of France, former Premiers Briand and Clemenceau, Ambassador Jusserand, the members of the Cabinet and the editors of most of the newspapers were among the 50,000 subscribers, a partial list of which was presented to the Ambassador.

The statue, by Jean Boucher, represents an American in French uniform calling to his countrymen, as an inscription, to come to France. It will be unveiled in the Palace des Etats Unis July 4.

Many of those whom the monument will commemorate were killed in the Aviation Service or in the Foreign Legion, among them Norman Prince, Alan Seeger, Victor Chapman and Kiffin Rockwell.

Both Magistrates completed unexpired terms. Magistrate Douras having been appointed on Dec. 5, 1918, while Magistrate Renaud was appointed on May 26, 1921. Magistrate Douras is the father of Marion Davies, the movie star.

Choose Gov. Smith's Mother to Represent State Mothers

Mrs. Catherine Smith, mother of Governor Alfred E. Smith, has been chosen to act the part of the "Representative Mother of the Empire State" at a celebration in honor of "Mothers' Day" to be held next Sunday at the Home for the Aged on Welfare Island.

In anticipation of the event a number of women, representing various organizations throughout the city and State, called upon Mrs. Smith yesterday and, while paying tribute to her as the mother of the State's Chief Executive, gave her an idea of what will happen to her at the Welfare Island celebration.

The first step in the proceedings was to hand Mrs. Smith a large bunch of tea roses sent by her son, "Al." Then the women passed by the house and each one leaned over the low iron picket railing separating the garden from the sidewalk and deposited a bunch of flowers in Mrs. Smith's lap. Hundreds of children living in the neighborhood then paid the same honor.

WHITE HOUSE JOINS FIGHT ON HIGH SUGAR

Mrs. Harding Sends Telegram to Crusaders Here and President Backs Her Stand.

HELP BY CONSUMING LESS

Circuit Court Judges Reserve Decision on Government Suit Against Exchange.

The White House has joined the ranks of the crusaders against high sugar prices.

This announcement was made yesterday by Mrs. Louis Reed Welzmiller, leader of the New York Housewives' Sugar Committee, shortly after the United States Circuit Court announced it would reserve decision on the Government's application to enjoin the New York Coffee and Sugar Exchange and others on allegations of conspiracy to fix prices.

This was the letter from President Harding to Mrs. Welzmiller:

"I have your telegram of May 3 and have just learned that Mrs. Harding has written you a letter dealing with this same matter. I am disposed to let Mrs. Harding's letter stand for both her and myself. Being a woman, and a highly efficient business woman at that, I think she knows more about this particular matter than I do, and I am quite in sympathy with what she is sending to you."

Mrs. Harding, however, did not write a letter, she sent this telegram:

"Mrs. Harding has seen your telegram of May 3. She asks me to say to you that the White House is economizing to the fullest possible degree in sugar consumption because it is felt here that diminished consumption is the effective remedy with which to meet all unreasonable prices."—LAURA HARLAN,

"Secretary to Mrs. Harding."

Crowd at Court Hearing.

There was a crowded courtroom when the hearing on the court application, adjourned from a week ago, came up before United States Circuit Judges Henry W. Rogers, C. M. Hough, Martin T. Manton and Julius M. Mayer. Special Attorney General J. A. Fowler, supported by United States District Attorney Hayward, appeared for the Government, in opposition. John W. Davis, former Ambassador to Great Britain, and William Mason Smith, for the Exchange and the individual defendants.

Mr. Smith handed to the court the defendants' answering affidavits, and incorporated with them were affidavits from Walter M. Bennett, Vice President of the Bank of America; Bernhard D. Forster, Vice President of the Bank of Manhattan Company; Walter E. Frew, President of the Corn Exchange Bank; Joseph W. Harriman, President of the Harriman National Bank; William M. Kingsley, Vice President of the United States Trust Company, and W. J. Cook, Vice President of the Equitable Trust Company. The bankers defended the Exchange's practice of dealing in sugar "futures," some of them declaring the practice stabilized the market.

In his argument Mr. Smith told the Court that the reason the records of the Exchange showed transactions in greater volume than the actual amount of sugar in the country was due to the fact that the Exchange accepted contracts from all parts of the world. He said that 90 per cent. of the transactions were legitimate and involved actual deliveries of sugar.

Mr. Davis argued that to grant the Government's application would be to wipe out the Exchange, and "would leave to the Court only the melancholy and funeral duty of proclaiming the patient still dead." He said that the Government's petition failed to make out a case. There were "sprinkled through the bill," he said, several phrases such as "combinations and conspiracy," "orgy of speculation," and "feverish speculation," but that nowhere was a conspiracy or the actual restraint of trade charged.

Blames Federal Bulletin.

"The Government sets forth," Mr. Davis said, "that the only relief is to wipe out the Exchanges. It's like a barn with some rats in it. You do not catch the rats, but you burn down the barn."

He charged that the Sugar Exchange has been singled out for prosecution, although the Cotton and Coffee Exchanges operated on similar lines. He said that the Sherman Anti-Trust law did not contemplate regulation of high prices, so long as the prices were not the result of illegal combinations in restraint of trade. "The Government," he declared, "has seized upon a symptom and is treating it as a disease." The rise in the price of sugar, Mr. Davis explained, was due to crop conditions and to the publicity given the prospective shortage in a bulletin issued by the Department of Commerce.

Mr. Fowler asked permission to offer additional affidavits for the Government, but this was refused. He replied briefly to the statements of the defense, and will file a brief in a few days.

GET GREEK MASONIC HONORS

Ex-Gov. Allen and American Relief Workers Receive 33d Degree.

Copyright, 1923, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ATHENS, May 7.—The last day of the visit of ex-Governor Allen of Kansas to Greece was signalized today by the Supreme Masonic Council's conferring upon him the Thirty-third Degree. He was one of four Americans thus honored at a solemn conclave in recognition of American relief work for Asia Minor refugees. The others were William W. Archibald of the Near East Relief, John Dawson of the American Red Cross and U. L. Amos of the Y. M. C. A. The same honor was also to have been conferred upon H. C. Moffatt of the Near East Relief, but he was absent from the city on a refugee ship and will therefore receive it at a later date.

Mr. Allen returned early this morning from the Island of Syra, to which he went yesterday with Colonel Plastiras and members of the Greek Cabinet to attend the dedication of the buildings constructed by the Near East Relief to house an industrial school for 5,000 refugee orphans.

The United States Supreme Court in an opinion delivered by Chief Justice Taft yesterday denied the application of E. D. Dier & Co., bankrupt brokerage firm, for an injunction restraining the receiver, Manfred W. Ehrich, from turning the firm's books and papers over to District Attorney Banton. The decision means that the receiver may give the books to the prosecutor for use in the trials of Elmore D. Dier, Harry J. Lawrence Jr., Benjamin F. Schrimpton and Adam G. Recklein, formerly of the defunct concern, on sixteen indictments charging grand larceny and bucketing in connection with the $4,000,000 failure in January, 1922.

Following the decision, Saul S. Myers, counsel for Ehrich, said the books would be turned over to District Attorney Banton for examination today. Mr. Banton said they would be used in Dier's trial, which he hoped to have called in General Sessions by the latter part of the week or early next week. First Assistant District Attorney Pecora will conduct the prosecution, he said.

Dier sought to prevent the delivery of the books to the prosecutor on the ground that they might contain incriminating data. He contended that the use of such evidence would be a violation of his constitutional right to protect himself from the use of evidence which was his property.

The receiver contended that inasmuch as Dier had not claimed this constitutional right before the books and papers were subpoenaed by the District Attorney for his investigation, the data must be delivered. Judge Learned Hand in the Federal Court upheld this contention and ordered the delivery of the books. Dier's lawyers then obtained a stay, pending an appeal from Judge Hand's ruling in the Supreme Court.

In rendering the decision for the Supreme Court, Chief Justice Taft said:

"We held that the right of alleged bankrupt to protest against the use of his books and papers relating to his business as evidence against him ceases as soon as his possession and control over them pass from him by the order directing their delivery into the hands of the receiver and into the custody of the court.

"This change of possession is for the purpose of properly carrying out the investigation into the affairs of the alleged bankrupt and the preservation of his assets pending such investigation, the adjudication of bankruptcy vel non and, if bankruptcy is adjudged, the proper distribution of the estate.

"It may be that the allegation of bankruptcy will not be sustained, and in that case the alleged bankrupt will be entitled to a return of his property, including his books and papers; and when they are returned he may refuse to produce them and stand on his constitutional rights."

The decision added that while the books and papers through the bankruptcy proceeding were out of E. D. Dier & Co's control, Dier's "immunity from producing them, secured him under the Fourth and Fifth Amendments, does not inure to his protection," and "he has lost any right to object to their use as evidence, because, not for purpose of evidence, but in the due investigation of his alleged bankruptcy and the preservation of his estate pending such investigation, the control and possession of the books and papers relating to his business were lawfully taken from him."

"Judge Hand intimated that the bankrupt might prevent the use of such books and papers taken over to the receiver in the bankruptcy proceedings for evidence in a criminal case in the State court by resisting surrender and protesting against their use for such a purpose at the time the receiver took possession. But we think the alleged bankrupt had no such right."

The court called attention to the fact that it made the same ruling in connection with the bankruptcy proceeding of Peter E. M. Butler & Co., broken, held on April 30 last, "in which it was sought to attach conditions of this kind to the turning over of the books and papers of a bankrupt to the trustee in bankruptcy," and explained that a State court could not obtain possession of books and papers on a subpoena except with the consent of the Federal court. The decision concluded:

"All we hold here is that the court below, having exercised discretion to allow the use of the books and papers in the custody of its officer upon subpoena by another court, the alleged bankrupt's rights under the Fourth and Fifth Amendments have not been violated."

BURIED FOR 15 HOURS BY ROCKS HE BLASTED

New Jersey Zinc Miner, Whose Head Only Was Free, Is Dug Out by Searchers.

FRANKLIN, N. J., May 7.—Imprisoned for fifteen hours in a huge pile of crushed rock, with only his head unburied, his arms broken and his body badly cut, Wasil Litzinisk, a miner, was rescued today on the 400-foot level of the New Jersey Zinc Company's mine here.

A searching party worked for eleven hours before Litzinisk's head was discovered protruding from the huge pile of stone in which he was caught. It required nearly two hours to remove the stone. He was taken to the Franklin Hospital, where attending physicians refused to predict the outcome of his injuries.

He was at work on the 400-foot level yesterday afternoon and was directed by a mine foreman to prepare a heavy charge of powder beneath a fissured, overhanging ledge of rock. It was thought that the blast would so loosen the rock that it would fall into a chute leading to a conveyor.

Before Litvinisk finished placing the charge, the ledge gave way, bringing down upon him a huge mass of broken rock, timbers and earth. Fortunately he was able with some effort to liberate his head, which at first also had been buried.

A searching party, organized when he was missed, rescued him after fifteen hours' imprisonment.

Retired Policeman Is Found Dead.

Believed to have been suffering from melancholia and long illness, Thomas Guider, 68 years old, a retired policeman, of 415 Ninety-ninth Street, Brooklyn, was found last night by his wife dead, hanging from a beam in the attic of their home. The police reported the case a suicide.

Prices realized on Swift & Company sales of carcass beef in New York City for week ending Saturday, May 5, on shipments sold out, ranged from 9.50 cents to 16.00 cents per pound and averaged 14.21 cents per pound.—Advt.

Suits of Brush Sisters, 10 Years in Asylum, Sent to High Court to Decide Right to Sue

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., May 7.—A Long Island, where they remained until novel question of law as to the right of the Misses Phoebe K. and Ada M. Brush, aged spinster sisters, to sue two physicians for $500,000 damages for alleged false imprisonment, because the latter signed a certificate of lunacy which kept them in an asylum for ten years, will have to be passed upon by the Appellate Division. This was the ruling today of Supreme Court Justice Joseph Morschauser.

After a jury had been sworn in, Justice Morschauser dismissed the action of Miss Ada Brush and stayed the suit of her sister. To save expense to the litigants, Justice Morschauser said no testimony would be taken, and a test case could be made by Clarence Alexander, attorney for the plaintiffs, on a statement of facts made by the attorneys and the Court's ruling.

The Misses Brush, gray haired and dressed in deep mourning, appeared in court with their attorney. Miss Ada is 59 years old and her sister is 62. They now live in Mount Vernon.

On May 31, 1910, their complaint alleges, Dr. Walter Lindsay and Dr. William R. Gibson of Huntington, L. I., signed a certificate that they were insane. On June 1, 1910, they were taken to the Kings Park State Hospital on March 13, 1920, when they were freed by Supreme Court Justice Arthur S. Tompkins on a writ of habeas corpus. Nine months later the two women sued the two physicians.

Mr. Alexander said the sisters owned considerable property and that it was still in the hands of a committee. He insisted that the plaintiffs were sane at the time of the commitment and were "railroaded" to the asylum.

The two physicians entered a general denial, asserting that they had found the women to be insane in 1910 and their long confinement sustained them. Their counsel, G. W. Whiteside, raised the point that the statute of limitations had run against the suits, because they had not been brought within two years after the women had been confined in the asylum.

"These women," said Mr. Alexander, "could not bring the action while they were in continuous imprisonment. They could not bring suit until they were released."

Justice Morschauser said: "There is a conflict of authority and grave questions of law involved regarding this kind of an action, that I think it is no more than proper that the Appellate Division and if necessary the Court of Appeals should fix the law, and for that reason I will dismiss the action."

BLAST BOMBARDS 5TH AVENUE; KILLS 1

Dynamite in Excavation Sends Shower of Rocks Across Street and Into Central Park.

DRIVER OF TAXI INJURED

Blacksmith's Helper Found Dead in Ruins of Shed on Adjoining Lot.

A blast in an excavation for an apartment house site at Fifth Avenue and Ninety-sixth Street yesterday afternoon killed one man, injured the driver of a passing taxicab and hurled stones across Fifth Avenue into Central Park.

Fifth Avenue was crowded with automobiles and pedestrians when the blast was set off. Excitement was so great as news of the accident spread that reserves from the East 104th Street Station were called out to handle the crowd.

Five minutes before quitting time Gaetanio Quindiliano put two sticks of dynamite in a hole preparatory to setting off the final blast of the day. He told the police later that he carefully adjusted a four-ton steel mat over the stone to be blasted, as is customary, to prevent the broken bits from scattering.

Then Quindiliano blew his whistle to warn others in the excavation of the impending blast. The fifty workmen withdrew to a safe distance, but, as was discovered later, Carmello Caruse, 28, a blacksmith's helper, of 445 East 117th Street, remained in the shed in which he was working in the lot just north of the excavation.

The dynamite was set off. A volley of stones shot in the direction of Fifth Avenue instead of upward, as had been expected. An undetected vein in the rock is believed to have been responsible for this freakish action.

Pieces of stone which flew out from underneath the steel net struck Caruse, killing him, and demolished the shed. Others shot out into Fifth Avenue, striking James J. Spagman, 30 years old, of 674 Tenth Street, Brooklyn, who was driving south. Others dropped in the street and in Central Park.

Detectives George Lane and James Donovan of the East 104th Street Station, who began an investigation, arrested Quindiliano on a technical charge of homicide. Later they said they were satisfied that he was not to blame for the serious consequences of the blast.

Spagman, who was hurried to Mount Sinai Hospital, said that the flying stones reminded him of the firing line in France, where he served with the 102d Engineers. Dr. Carey, who arrived in an ambulance from Harlem Hospital, found Caruse dead.

A fourteen-story apartment house is to be erected on the site of the present excavation by J. E. R. Carpenter of 598 Madison Avenue. The blasting, it is said, is under the direction of the S. S. Jones Construction Company. Quindiliano, who is 42 years old and lives at 309 West Sixty-ninth Street, said that he had been a blaster for fourteen years and had been with his present employer seven years without a previous accident.

50 DEAD IN CUBAN WRECK.

Motorman Is Blamed for Train Crash—Crews Arrested.

HAVANA, Cuba, May 7.—Meagre details received today regarding the wreck yesterday of two trains at Chucho Desquite, on the Hershey Electric Railway, placed the number of dead at more than fifty, with more than that number seriously injured. Only two Americans were on the trains, both escaping with slight injuries.

Blame for the accident is placed on the motorman of the train going to Matanzas, whose instructions were to run his cars on a siding to allow passage for the train from Matanzas to Hershey.

All members of the train crews are being held for examination.

Unable to Give Name, Is Found on Riverside Drive.

An unidentified woman was found hysterical and with bruises on her head and body at Riverside Drive and Eighty-ninth Street early yesterday morning. She was taken to the Knickerbocker Hospital. She was well dressed. A gold ring, set with a pearl, bore the inscription "Regina." She wore another ring set with six diamonds and five rubies.

She was unable to give her name and address, but said she was going home in a taxicab when the driver stopped the car and attacked her, striking her on the head when she resisted.

ARREST WITNESS IN HAZING DEATH

Akron (Ohio) Police Hold Alden Mills, President of Northwestern 1921 Freshmen.

MAY HELP CLEAR MYSTERY

Has Something to Tell, He Says—Chicago Officials to Question Him —Grand Jury Gets Case.

AKRON, Ohio, May 7.—Intimation that he might have information which would throw some light on the disappearance of Leighton Mount, Northwestern University freshman, who had not been seen since September, 1921, until his skeleton was found under a pier at Evanston recently, was given here today by Joseph A. Mills, President of the 1921 freshman class at Northwestern, who is held by the police pending the arrival of Illinois officials.

"Things look pretty dark for me. I know, but I may have some things to tell later which may aid in clearing up Mount's disappearance," Mills said today. "Until the right time comes I have nothing more to say on that."

Mills, however, denied that he had ever seen Mount to his knowledge. Regarding suggestions that Mount might have died as a result of student hazing, Mills said that he was one of the organizers of the class rush which took place on the date of Mount's disappearance, having acted in his capacity as President of the class, but that he had not seen Mount.

Mills, whose home is in Columbus, has lived in Akron since February, having been employed in a rubber factory.

Two Illinois State's attorneys were said tonight to be on their way to Akron to question Mills.

Violence Issue Before Grand Jury.

CHICAGO, May 7.—A Grand Jury today began an investigation of the mystery surrounding the death of Leighton Mount, Northwestern University freshman, who disappeared following a class rush in September, 1921. His skeleton was found under a pier at Evanston a week ago.

State's Attorney Robert E. Crowe attached much importance to the finding at Akron, Ohio, of J. Allen Mills, a former Northwestern student who was said to have been in the class rush the night Mount disappeared. Students have claimed Mills knew most of the circumstances in connection with the rush.

An Assistant State's Attorney who left for Akron to question him and two others, it was reported, departed for Williamson, W. Va., to question two other former students said to have participated in the rush.

Chief Justice Michael McKinley instructed the Grand Jury to investigate Mount's disappearance and to notify him if it finds evidence of violence, explaining that he wished to give further instructions in such an event.

Robert Jamar, a student who was on beach patrol in the Summer of 1922, told Assistant State's attorneys today that when he was on duty there was no hole in the pier under which Mount's body was found.

Jamar's story indicated to the authorities that if the body were put under the pier by lowering it through the hole, it must have been long after the night of the rush.

Says Mills Asked Aid to Run Away.

Mrs. Katherine Hotchkiss Lovemaid, when interviewed today at her home near Rye, N. Y., said: "The last I heard from Allen Mills was in August, 1922, when I received a postal card from him from Yellowstone Park. I never received more than three letters from him in my life.

"During the Winter of 1921 he telegraphed me from San Francisco, saying he was running away from something and asking me to let him have some money. It seemed to me rather ridiculous that he should ask me for money when I hardly knew him.

"To my knowledge he was not in Northwestern University during the term 1922-23. I think he was asked to leave the university in the Spring of 1923 because of some drinking mix-up. At no time in his letters to me did he ever mention anything of hazing activities among the students. I did not know of the Leighton Mount affair before today."

CREATES FOUR NEW DANCES.

France Will Introduce Them at the International Congress on Saturday.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, May 7.—France will present to the world four new dances this month. They are the francesca, the ariette, the caryatis and the mazoure, and will receive their first public tryout Saturday at the International Congress organized by the Academy of Dancing Instructors of Paris.

Mlle. Henriette Regnier of the Opera is originator of the new steps. The francesca is named from a canton in the South of France, the caryatis is inspired by the ancient Greek Dance of Innocence and the mazoure is a Polish theme. The source or inspiration of the ariette is not known.

Safety Signs to Protect Public.

BLAMES DRY REPEAL TO LEAGUE GIFT CUT

Anderson Declares It Would Never Have Happened if Rockefellers Continued Help.

COURT HAS NO LIQUOR CASE

Magistrate Is Surprised — Enright Promises Full Police Support to Government.

The repeal of the Mullan-Gage law followed as a result of the Rockefellers reducing their contributions to the Anti-Saloon League, according to a statement yesterday by William H. Anderson, the league's superintendent.

Prior to May 1, 1921, said Mr. Anderson, the Rockefellers gave the league $75,000 a year. On the recommendation of Raymond B. Fosdick, he declared, the contribution was cut to $30,000 in 1921 and $25,000 in 1922.

Regardless of the fate of the Mullan-Gage law, the police of New York City will co-operate with the Federal authorities, Police Commissioner Enright said yesterday.

"We will not cross that bridge until we come to it," the Commissioner said when asked as to the position of the police here if the Governor signs the repeal. "We will go back substantially to where we were before the act was established. At all times we will co-operate with the Federal authorities." It was pointed out at Police Headquarters that between January, 1920, and April, 1921, when the State enforcement act became effective, New York City policemen made 2,400 arrests in rum cases, arraigning their prisoners in the Federal court.

No arraignments in liquor cases were made by the police yesterday in the West Side Court. There are generally from six to twenty liquor cases on the docket every morning. Magistrate Oberwager was surprised by the situation, and attorneys in the court interpreted the case as being due to the Mullan-Gage law repeal.

The West Side Court covers the district above Forty-second Street and extends as far north as 129th Street, including within its jurisdiction 100 large cabarets as well as many night restaurants and reported "speak-easies."

Anderson Blames Fosdick.

In his statement yesterday Mr. Anderson declared that the vote to repeal the Mullan-Gage law was "the natural and predicted consequences of the adverse recommendation by Raymond B. Fosdick respecting Rockefeller contributions to the Anti-Saloon League.

"For each of the fiscal years up to May 1, 1921, the Rockefellers gave the league $75,000, said Mr. Anderson. He asserted that this aid, with the $250,000 annually from other sources, enabled the league to win the fight for ratification, the repeal of the beer act and for the enactment of an enforcement act.

"It is certain that any curtailment would probably make it impossible for the movement to carry on enough educational and organization work to arouse the people to a realization of the danger soon enough to repeal the inevitable wet counter-attack," Anderson said.

"It is now clear beyond the possibility of question, in view of the exceedingly narrow margin by which the repeal was passed, that this difference of $50,000, if continued even for only one more year, would have furnished an abundantly ample margin of safety."

Jury Ordered to Disregard Repeal.

Two new Grand Juries sworn in yesterday by Judge Charles C. Nott in General Sessions were instructed to pay no attention to the Mullan-Gage repeal act. Until the Governor had actually signed the bill, the Judge said, there would be no change in the law and hence there should be no change in the attitude of Grand Jurors on the subject where the evidence of violation of the law is sufficient to warrant indictment.

Judge Nott did that it would be time enough to discuss the situation after the Governor signed the bill, if he did.

"If the Governor signs," he said, "there may be a conference between your foreman, the District Attorney and the Court as to cases pending in the District Attorney's office and awaiting action by the Grand Jury."

In giving his viewpoint of the causes that led to the repeal, Federal Prohibition Director Palmer Canfield said: "New York is not a representative city of the country or State, nor is New York considered a representative State by other States. New York is looked upon as an absolutely separate State by the other States. The repeal or the Mullan-Gage law was brought about by political influence, originating in New York City by a population of mostly naturalized citizens from all corners of the earth, who are far from being representative citizens, led by a few native born representatives."

Mr. Canfield's opinion was that outside of New York City the people of the State were in favor of the Mullan-Gage law. When asked if he believed that other States of the Union would be influenced by the action of this State he declared, "Emphatically no."

The hearing to be held by Governor Smith on May 21 will be attended by Director Canfield, who will use every influence in his power to have the Governor withhold his signature from the repealer.

Colonel Ransom H. Gillett, general counsel for the association Opposed to the Prohibition Amendment, said that the repeal would be notice to "the fanatics and their leaders that they cannot trifle with the civil rights of citizens."

He hailed the repeal as the "first symptom of returning sanity in our legislative representatives" and declared that nobody need be alarmed at prediction of a crime wave.

He predicted that Congress would eventually follow the lead of New York and repeal the Volstead act.

FRENCH SEEK WAY OUT ON OUR LIQUOR RULING

They Hope Reprisals Will Not Be Necessary, But Are Prepared to Consider Them.

PARIS, May 7 (Associated Press).—Strong hopes prevail in France that some way will be found out of the complications arising from the recent decision of the Supreme Court of the United States that foreign ships cannot take wines or liquors inside the three-mile limit of that country.

One of the highest officials of the Government said today that there were numerous French laws which, if strictly applied to foreign vessels, would cause them almost as much annoyance and real damage as would the strict application of the Supreme Court's decision to French ships. But the French Government did not desire to settle the present difficulties in that way, and every effort would be made first to find some way of satisfying the American authorities without sacrificing French interests.

If, however, French ships were subjected to the stringent measures outlined in the ruling of the Supreme Court, then a strict enforcement of French laws applicable to foreign shipping would be considered.

Autoists' Parade of Protest Barred by Boulevard Police

William Clossey, Chief of the Hudson Boulevard police, said yesterday that if automobile owners attempted to put on a "funeral march" parade on the boulevard today, as has been threatened, he will have every participant arrested.

Since last Friday more than 400 summonses have been issued for speeding and the offenders fined an average of $50 each. Saturday and Sunday there were 113 arrests. As a result the automobile drivers in Hudson County planned a slow parade along the boulevard for today in protest against the arrests.

Chief Clossey declared his men had not issued a summons to any one going less than twenty-eight miles an hour. He said he rode up and down the boulevard Sunday night, and really enjoyed it for the first time. "I was going twenty miles an hour, and the traffic was beautiful," said the Chief.

SHIPS MUST REVEAL ALL GOODS ABOARD

Manifests Must Show All Articles, Including Those Whose Import Is Prohibited.

SUPREME COURT'S DECISION

Rehearing of a Case Closely Affecting the Prohibition and Anti-Narcotic Laws.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—The United States can compel masters of arriving vessels to submit manifests showing all articles aboard, including those whose importation is prohibited, the Supreme Court held today in a case brought by the Government from the State of Washington against Wesley L. Sischo.

The Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals had held that Sischo could not be compelled to report smoking opium he had aboard his vessel, because its importation was prohibited. Because of the importance of the case in the enforcement of prohibition and the anti-narcotic laws, the Supreme Court reheard the case after it had, by an evenly divided court, sustained the lower court.

The Government insisted that the word "imported" as used in the law requiring the listing of such articles should be given the meaning of "bringing into the United States," and that the provisions relating to articles "capable of being imported" should be interpreted to include those illegally as well as those legally imported.

GOV. SMITH SILENT ON DRY LAW REPEAL

Begins Vacation at Absecon to 'Sleep and Play Golf' for Two Weeks.

Governor Smith was in New York City yesterday on his way to Absecon, N. J., where he intends to play golf during his vacation.

He was asked when he would hold a hearing on the Mullan-Gage repeal bill.

"Well," the Governor replied, "it can't be held until I return, but that may be in about two weeks."

"What do you intend to do in the meantime?"

"Sleep and play golf," was the reply.

"Will you sign the bill after the hearing?" he was asked.

"I have nothing to say, at present," he said.

"Have you any comment to make on the Direct Primaries or the Soldiers' Bonus bill?"

"Those matters were thoroughly dealt with in my messages," the Governor replied.

The Governor will leave New York at 9:30 o'clock this morning for his two weeks' vacation.

SEEK BOOTLEGGERS' INCOME

Brooklyn Revenue Office Is Checking Up False Returns.

Collector of Internal Revenue John T. Rafferty in Brooklyn announced yesterday that his office was receiving an average of $5,000 daily from income taxes upon which business men and others made false or incorrect returns.

He said his office was sending out approximately 400 notices every day to persons believed to have made inaccurate returns, and that books of business men and others are being examined by Deputy Collectors to learn whether any errors had been made in returns. He said a close check-up was made upon bootleggers and others suspected of having cheated the Government.

HURTS KILLED MRS. RICHARD

Colonel Littauer's Sister Fatally Injured in Paris Elevator.

PARIS, May 7.—Mrs. Oscar L. Richard of New York, sister of Colonel William Littauer of Gloversville, N. Y., fell three stories to her death yesterday, apparently while trying to operate an elevator in the Hotel Gallia, where she had been staying.

Her husband and brother were waiting for her on the ground floor of the hotel and the body landed almost at their feet. They had walked downstairs, while Mrs. Richard summoned the elevator to descend from the upper floors.

She sent the elevator boy on an errand, however, and it is thought she attempted to operate the lift herself, with tragic results. The elevator was found by the police to be functioning normally.

Mrs. Richard was 59 years old. She was born in Gloversville, a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. N. Littauer. With her husband, who is a member of C. B. Richard & Co., bankers and steamship agents of 29 Broadway, she left for Europe about two weeks ago. Her brother, Colonel William Littauer, joined them in Paris.

Harold C. Richard of 240 Park Avenue, her son, is President of the State Bank. Lucius N. Littauer, former member of Congress, is a brother of Mrs. Richard.

Supreme Court to Hear Gitlow Again

WASHINGTON, May 7.—The Supreme Court restored to the docket today for reargument the appeal of Benjamin Gitlow, sentenced to prison in New York for articles published by him in the Revolutionary Age in 1919. Gitlow contends that the Criminal Anarchy law of New York is unconstitutional.

ROME, May 7.—This city today gave the first British King to visit Rome in a decade and the first British Queen to visit Rome since time immemorial an unforgettable reception, pouring out all its pent-up enthusiasm in scenes of rejoicing which it would be difficult to equal.

This visit to the Italian capital, coming only six months after the Fascista revolution, completely changed the nation's outlook, is considered in political circles here to be more than a mere polite call of one European reigning house upon another. Should a hitherto unconfirmed rumor prove true that Premier Benar Law, who is cruising in the Mediterranean, is coming to Rome within a few days, the presence of British royalty here would assume a different character. In any case it is held to be important that King George, soon after arriving at the Quirinal Palace, had a long private conversation with Premier Mussolini. No one else was present at this meeting, which is in itself most unusual.

That there may be more in the visit than is apparent on the surface is also indicated by the fact that within the last few days the British press has again taken up the matter of the cession to Italy of Jubaland. This is a question which has been dragging on and has caused some friction between Italy and Great Britain ever since the colonies were shared out among the Allies at the end of the war.

Baron Sonnino, who was then Foreign Minister, conceived the plan of joining the Italian colonies of Erithrea and Benadir by obtaining from Great Britain the cession of Jubaland and from France the cession of Gibuti. Britain consented to this and promised Jubaland to Italy, but the whole project was wrecked by the opposition of the French Government. Italian officials hope that Britain may now be ready to cede Jubaland without insisting on the compensations for which she formerly asked.

Despite these material considerations, there is no doubt that Rome's welcome to King George and Queen Mary was heartfelt and spontaneous. The friendship between Italy and Great Britain, so long continued and so cordial, found expression. A great crowd was outside the railroad station, and over the long route which the royal cortège followed from the station to the Quirinal Palace there was tremendous cheering.

Queen Mary wore a silk dress decorated in a large flower pattern, with toque of blue and silver, and carried a pale blue parasol. King George wore the full dress uniform of a British field marshal.

While King George cordially shook hands with King Victor Emmanuel, Queen Mary kissed Queen Helena on both cheeks on entering the railway station which waited at the station entrance the visitors paused to receive tremendous applause from the scores of thousands who were crowded into the huge square outside and whom soldiers, lined up four deep, had great difficulty in restraining.

As the brilliant royal cortège in open carriages drawn by King Victor's wonderful horses moved down the principal Roman thoroughfares escorted by mounted cuirassiers of the King's bodyguard in full dress helmets and with waving horsehair plumes and enthusiasm knew no bounds. Round after round of applause echoed deafeningly, while from windows decorated with flags and bunting showers of flowers fell into the cortège.

When the royal visitors had entered the Quirinal Palace the crowd which was gathered outside began clamoring for them to

By JOHN CORBIN.

Dramatized Locke.

THE MOUNTEBANK. A play in four acts by W. J. Locke and Ernest Denny; based on Mr. Locke's novel of the same name. At the Lyceum Theatre.

Andrew Lestrange.....Norman Trevor
Horatio Bakkus.....Lennox Pawle
Anthony Hylton.....F. Whitney Percival
Harry Verity-Stewart.....Charles Rennie
Guinness.....Louis Le Bey
Parker.....F. Cecil Bailey
Lady Auriol Dayne.....Lillian Kemble Cooper
Blodie.....Gabrielle Ravine
Lady Verity-Stewart.....Marjorie Ward
Evadne.....Nora Swinburne

All that intelligent good taste can accomplish is such an undertaking has been done for the dramatization of "The Mountebank," made by Mr. Locke himself, working with Ernest Danny, which was presented last night at the Lyceum with an admirable cast headed by Norman Trevor. Story and characters live again, but the tempo of their lives is still rather that of the novel than of the drama. The four acts skip lightly over the war, the first two being given to the music hall clowns, Felix Patou, and the last two to the Brigadier General he became.

Mr. Trevor's part has all the earmarks of a great opportunity. In the first act he is the gentlemanly French clown of English parentage, who chalks and reddens his face in his dressing room, goes on to amuse the populace with his fellow clown, a poodle, and returns with the dead body of his dog friend in his arms. In the second act the French girl who has made him as an artist has taken the place of the dog—and he is equally loyal and patient, if less happy. Lady Auriol Dayne comes in for a moment, and there is a passage of love at first sight. After the war there is the scene of the General's renunciation at Mansfield Court in England. Finally there is the scene in which Lady Auriol hunts out the General, whom demobilization has made Felix Patou again, forces him to a declaration of love, and goes off with him to the Solomon Islands, to trade in copra.

It seems like a good part, but in reality it is not quite that. Mr. Trevor renders every phase with delicate feeling, fine grace and a truly manly vigor, but somehow the pulse of drama is lacking, which alone can make such a characterization vigorous and alive. As Lady Auriol, Lillian Kemble Cooper is every more severely handicapped. The part of a young woman who loves but waits in vain for a proposal is not primarily dramatic. It was only in the final scene, where she herself put the question, that she came into her own.

In such plays the minor characters are at a certain illogical advantage, being free from all necessity of sustaining a story that is not quite capable of taking nourishment from any actor's skill. Lennox Pawle is an admirable Horatio Bakkus, lastly and impertinently pertinent. As the French music-hall artiste, sane and helpful in her professional capacity, but slack and rebellious in domestic relations, Gabrielle Ravine is finely effective. Sad to relate, one minor actor, the French poodle, who died so nobly in the first act, came to at the final curtain with a lively yelp behind the scenes that convulsed the audience—and disillusioned it. Professional jealousy, of course.

"The Mountebank," as presented at the Lyceum, is an agreeable if leisurely entertainment, abounding in quiet sentiment and gentle humor, which may well serve the intended purpose of a graceful transition into the theatrical close season.

ETHIOPIANS ACT "SALOME."

Art Theatre Gives a Performance Not Entirely Art.

Slave of Herodias.....Marion Taylor

THE CHIP WOMAN'S FORTUNE.

Liza.....Evelyn Preer
Silas.....Sydney Kirkpatrick
Emma.....Marion Taylor
Aunt Nancy.....Laura Bowman
Jim.....Solomon Bruce
A Man.....Arthur Ray

A good deal of shouting and a small amount of good playing were served at the Frazee last night when the Ethiopian Art Theatre opened what it announces will be a repertory season with Oscar Wilde's "Salome." Heralded as the dark horse among the many attempts to lift the drama on stepping stones of art theatres to higher things, the new organization, at least so far as last night's performance is concerned, makes a negative impression—it is not particularly good and it is not particularly bad and it has its moments when it is art and other moments when it is theatre and still other moments when it is neither. Rather strangely for an Ethiopian Art Theatre, it seemed to one observer last night, it had no moments at all when it was Ethiopian.

The shouting above referred to was participated in by most of the members of the cast of "Salome," excepting only the unfortunate two soldiers who delivered their impossible lines in the manner of high school recitations of Gilbert Murray translations. The best of the cast was Sidney Kirkpatrick, an intense Herod, who acted with little restraint, but with a great passion that was only slightly obscured by vehemence. Evelyn Preer was Salome, reasonably well equipped for the physical demands of the rôle, but apparently uncertain, artistically, whether it were better to be bold or blazen or coy and hard to please. Solomon Bruce's Jokanaan was of the stage stagy. The three Jews were well played and well directed, but the effect was slightly spoiled by an unfortunate accident in which one of them slipped off the back of the raised platform on which Herod held his court and disappeared, to be seen no more.

As a curtain raiser to "Salome," which was presented without a pause, "The Chip Woman's Fortune," a one-acter by Willis Richardson was offered. The piece is trifling and at times amusing. Here Evelyn Preer, later to be the not too capable Salome, showed an excellent comedy talent.

Perhaps in the plays announced for production later these negro players will show that they differ, in any way from the average Broadway company. As it is, however, last night's performance tended to indicate an addition of another so-so company to the American stage, already burdened with an overproduction of that kind of thing.

Church Choir's Concert Applauded.

The choir of the Second Presbyterian Church of Philadelphia entertained an audience of good size with a program of music, sacred and otherwise, in Aeolian Hall last evening. N. Lindsay Norden conducted the signing of the group he had trained. He has combined good voices into an organization capable of responding to all of his manual instructions for shading and delicacy or power of tone. Ruth Gibb, soprano; Maybelle B. Marston, contralto; Charles Berkheiser, bass, and Charles Stahl, tenor, members of the choir, all had their turn at singing alone, and they gave creditable interpretations of their selections. The audience expressed its enjoyment of the program with hearty applause.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

"The Comedian" moved last night from the Lyceum to the Belasco Theatre.

Leslie Howard has been engaged for the Dillingham production of "Arent's We All?" announced for the Gaiety in about two weeks.

The Concord Players will give a performance of "Clarence" at the Lyceum Sunday night in aid of Life's Fresh Air Fund. William T. Tilden 2d will play Clarence.

Kenneth Hunter, seen here this season in support of Ethel Barrymore in "Romeo and Juliet," and "The Laughing Lady," will sail on the Mauretania today for a three months' vacation abroad. He will play on the English golf links.

"FOR VALUE RECEIVED."

Ethel Clifton's Play Is on Familiar Lines, but Is Effective.

FOR VALUE RECEIVED. A play in four acts by Ethel Clifton. At the Longacre Theatre.

Almeric Thompson.....Augustin Duncan
Beverly Mason.....Maude Hanaford
Lawrence Banning.....Louis Kimbell
Fellman Thorndyke.....Cecil Owen
Catherine Mason.....Eleanor Griffith
Anthony.....Harry Blakemore
Bernice Quinlan.....May Hopkins

After full value had been received at the close of the fourth act at the Longacre last evening, the woman began to pay again. The difference was that this time the stigma was to be wiped away, and she was to be married. The man was Almeric Thompson, blind, egotistic and crotchety author of serials and short stories. The woman was Beverly Mason, who was his mistress and his secretary; and, as the play ran on to show, also his love and inspiration. During the year in which she left him he had not got on at all with his work. He had been so thoroughly an egotist when she left that he had not foreseen it. But for no apparent reason (except the Providence which makes things so in the theatre) she came back in the last act and they began on a new and finer basis.

Between the first act and the final reconciliation many grave and tumid things occurred. In the first place Beverly was losing her heart to a young artist, Lawrence Banning, who represented the spontaneous affection she had been denied. With a stupidity matched only by his fickle nature, he did not understand her position in the Thompson home until Fellman Thorndyke closed his jaw firm and told the full truth. In the second place it seems that Beverly had been compensating herself a bit higher than was understood by her employer. Fellman Thorndyke knew that, too. But it was merely to pay her sister's musical education in Paris; and even Thorndyke did not object when he discovered that she was not merely Thompson's mistress and secretary, nurse and housekeeper, but really the author of all of his books which had been successful. No wonder that Thompson did not get on without her.

"For Value Received," put down as a melodrama, deals, as this summary suggests, with familiar matter of the theatre. But it is matter which still has strength because it is genuinely human. And acted by a capable group of players it is for the most part effective on the stage. One scene at the close of act two is especially so, with the clash of four varying points of view, each one well supported by the facts. At other times the play drivels and maunders, but succeeding episodes serve to keep the ball in the air. As an emotional actress, in the much worn part of Beverly Mason, Miss Hanaford did extremely well. So, too, did Mr. Duncan in the part of Almeric Thompson, creating a character out of much verbosity. And as the negro servant Mr. Blakemore gave a real touch of distinction, of emotion and humor, to what might have passed for routine.

ONE-ACT PLAYS COMPETE.

Four Given in Little Theatre Tournament Opening at the Bayes.

The Little Theatre tournament, which is being participated in by twenty of the best known little theatre organizations in and about New York City, opened last night at the Bayes Theatre, where the first four one-act plays were presented. All the plays were good, and if the others to be given each night this week are as skilfully handled the judges, headed by David Belasco, will have a hard task in selecting the three winning teams to reproduce their acts Saturday afternoon and night.

"The Rut," by Sara Sherman Pryor, and presented by the Little Theatre League of Bridgeport, Conn., was the first of last night's plays. Margaret Kent headed the cast and her work helped the rest of the cast, and the authoress kept the play consistently in the realm of realism. The next play offered was "The Revolt of the Mummies," by Theodore Pratt, presented by the Huguenot Plays of New Rochelle. It was a satirical fantasia, and as the "mummies," which rebelled against museums, did it cleverly, in spite of the fact that poor lighting hampered their travesty.

"Boccaco's Untold Tale," by Harry Kemp, as played by the Riverside Players of Greenwich, Conn., lacked the atmosphere which elaborate pains had been taken to secure. The story, however, of a man who mistakenly blinds himself thinking his love has lost her beauty, is original and should have been more gripping than it was. Booth Tarkington was the author of the last play, "The Trysting Place," it was as good as Mr. Tarkington's reputation as a dramatist, and the Wayside Players of Scarsdale proved that they had every right to play it.

DAVE MARION SHOW OPENS.

Attractive Burlesque Starts Summer Season at the Columbia.

At the Columbia Theatre last night "The Marion Show," in two acts and eighteen scenes, by Dave Marion, with music by Earl Bronson, inaugurated the fourteenth Summer season of the Columbia Theatre. The presentation had many likable entertainers, chief among whom were old-timers from the days of Tony Pastor. Josephine Sable, for one, sang several songs of thirty years ago, many in the audience humming them with her. Eddie Girard gave his bit of the Irish policeman, and Charles Diamond sang his harp song, as their contributions from memories of the past.

The show is the equal of the best of the Columbia attractions of the past. Among those whom the audience applauded were Dave Marion, Walter J. McManus, Gordon Bennett and George and May LeFevre.

WRESTLER IS ROBBED.

Wladek Zbyszko Obtains Warrant for Negro Housekeeper.

Wladek Zbyszko, heavyweight wrestler, appeared in the West Side Court before Magistrate Charles A. Oberwager yesterday and swore out a warrant for the arrest of a former housekeeper of his apartment at 3 West Sixty-ninth Street. He declared that he believes the woman, Mrs. Susie Smith, a negress, now under arrest at Elmira, to have stolen jewelry valued at $10,000 from his home while he was in Altoona, Pa., last Wednesday in a wrestling exhibition.

Zbyszko declared that the jewelry includes a heavy gold signet ring, which he frequently wears and to which he is especially attached; a diamond ring, two gold bracelets studded with diamonds and a diamond pin.

Says Chauve Souris Suit Is Old.

Oscar M. Carter, who recently had the scenery of the Chauve Souris attached to secure a claim on which he based a suit against Nikita Balieff, denied yesterday the statement of Morris Gest that the suit had been brought at the last minute. Mr. Carter said the suit was started a year ago.

'The Rivals' and 'The Apache' Open.

"The Rivals" was revived by the Equity Players at the Forty-eighth Street Theatre and "The Apache," by Josephine Turck Baker, opened at the Punch and Judy last night. They will be reviewed in tomorrow's TIMES.

MUSIC NOTES.

The Russian Opera Company moves tonight to the Prospect Theatre, the Bronx, for an engagement of eight performances, terminating Sunday evening.

Kay Slevin will be heard in a program of soprano songs this evening at her home, 248 West Seventy-first Street.

Elinor Douglas will give a song recital in Aeolian Hall this evening.

Alton Jones, Sonoma Talley, Wellington Lee and Jennie Seidman will receive diplomas this Spring from the Institute of Musical Art.

THE SCREEN

Love and Letters.

THE RUSTLE OF SILK, with Betty Compson, Conway Tearle, Cyril Chadwick, Anna Q. Nilsson, Leo White, Charles Stevenson and others, adapted from Cosmo Hamilton's novel by Sada Cowan and Ouida Bergere; directed by Sidney Franklin; Captain F. E. Kleinschmidt's "Adventures in the Far North," special "Home, Sweet Home" centenary musical program. At the Rivoli.

With a less impossible story, "The Rustle of Silk," the film which is holding forth this week at the Rivoli, might have been a production worth remembering; but as it is, all the careful direction and attention to detail put into the picture by Herbert Brenon are lost on a yarn that flops like a house of cards. Seldom has a picture been made that breathed such a true London atmosphere as "The Rustle of Silk," with allowances for minor motion picture liberties. Another point in favor of the production is the exceptionally good titling.

Conway Tearle plays the part of Arthur Fallaray, an English statesman. Although his acting is quite good, he does not appeal in this particular character, especially as he has to play against Cyril Chadwick, an actor who never seems to lose a chance on the screen. Chadwick almost stole the honors from the hero in "The Christian." And in this film he is again a most sympathetic villain.

Betty Compson is Lola de Breze, the daughter of an old English aristocrat who is forced to sell watches for a living. Lola has dreams of the finer things, and on seeing a published picture of Fallaray she loses her heart to him. As a hairdresser she goes to the Fallaray home to do Lady Feo's hair—Lady Feo being the wife of Fallaray. Lola is a good hairdresser, and that Lady Feo engages her as her maid is natural.

One day Lola receives a gown from her mistress, and with a borrowed wrap she goes to the Ritz, just to catch a glimpse of Fallaray. She encounters Paul Chalfont (Chadwick), who owns The Daily Herald, and after a fuss, accepts his invitation to dine. She sees Fallaray and Chalfont introduces her as Countess de Breze. Lola writes letters to Fallaray for her own amusement. They are never mailed. But Lady Feo finds them and asks Chalfont to take them to her lawyer for exhibits in possible divorce proceedings. Chalfont publishes the letters on the morning Fallaray had met with a shooting accident. Lola hurries down to see him, having been discharged after the discovery of the letters.

It is Lola, recognized as the "Countess," who persuades her idol to fight. He becomes Prime Minister, and Lola goes back to her home. Lady Feo does not seem so keen on bringing a divorce action.

Anna Q. Nilsson is very sure of herself as Lady Feo, and Miss Compson is capable as Lola. The appearance of half a dozen members of the cast at Fallaray's shooting lodge, after reading the published letters, is somewhat amusing.

The second feature at the Rivoli is "Adventures in the Far North," a series of pictures taken during a hunting and whaling expedition that lasted seven months. They are singularly interesting. There are some fine scenes showing the harpooning of whales, also pictures of walruses. But perhaps the best picture is that showing a polar bear and her cub. A raft is made from the ship to catch the cubs. When the rope is around it the mother fights and lashes the side of the vessel. Eventually because of the remarkable performance of the mother bear the little one is freed and one sees them both swimming off, the cub keeping very close to the big bear. Captain F. E. Kleinschmidt, who took his wife on this expedition, has had the picture titled as it were Mrs. Kleinschmidt's diary, which is quite effective. It is a most interesting production and runs for about an hour.

"The Torchbearers" at the Palace.

Ruffo Wins Ovation in Havana.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

HAVANA, May 7.—Titta Ruffo received one of the greatest ovations ever given an artist in Havna yesterday. He sang "Hamlet," and President Zayas and his wife led the applause from their private box. There were eighteen encores. The theatre was crowded with all the aristocracy of Havana in attendance. Anna Fitziu and Gallo, who are the impresarios, were also cheered.

FINDS FEW RESULTS IN SESSION'S LAWS

REGRETS "TRANSIT FIASCO"

Declares Hylan's Attitude of "All or Nothing" Had Its Effect Upon the Assembly.

The 1923 New York State Legislature was productive of few important results, though prolific in bills, according to a review of the session made public last night by Raymond V. Ingersoll, Secretary of the City Club.

Mr. Ingersoll takes a fling at each party for too close obedience to its "party mandate" and remarks that the Senate excelled "in passing legislation—good, bad and indifferent—whereas, good, bad or indifferent, the Assembly was content to kill it." In a paragraph devoted to lobby activities, Mr. Ingersoll says that up-State manufacturers controlled industrial welfare bills in the Assembly and that there was "a surprising show of influence in the Senate by an anti-conservation lobby."

The review remarks that a number of important nonpartisan measures were passed by both houses and undoubtedly will be signed by the Governor. As most important among these it lists the second passage of the amendment to give home rule to cities. Fully half of Governor's strong program for State reorganization by constitutional amendment went through, Mr. Ingersoll points out, but he remarks that the "most regrettable failure in the reconstruction program was the obstinate defeat in the Assembly of the four-year term amendment and the executive budget."

With regard to freedom of thought and speech, the report remarks:

"The 1923 Legislature was not in spirit very much devoted to the safeguarding of ancient liberties of idea and expression. Nevertheless, in tangible results there was a net gain.

"The Senate, with only a few dissenting votes, passed a childish history textbook bill prescribing among other things that full emphasis must be given to British colonial oppression and that if any individual failings among our revolutionary ancestors are mentioned at least equal prominence must be given to their virtues. After a certain amount of public ridicule it died in the Assembly. The Assembly passed the so-called clean book bill, which would have interfered in a drastic way with established rules of evidence by excluding all expert testimony and by allowing an indictment to be based upon a sentence or phrase with the context absolutely barred from evidence. This bill aroused a storm and was defeated in the Senate.

Listing "other gains," Mr. Ingersoll comments favorably on the begining of a comprehensive State park program, approves the enactment of a Nassau County charter and mentions some legislation to the passage of which he says the City Club contributed.

Under the heading, "The Transit Failure," he concludes:

"From the point of view of this city the transit fiasco was the worst of all. The Assembly leaders had no clear policy on this subject. They seemed to vacillate between fear of what the present city administration might do if given too much power and fear of what might happen at the polls if such power were denied. Actually they were prepared to concede the major points in the city's program, including full control of subway construction and guarantee of a 5-cent fare. In one respect they sought to go the Mayor one better in playing to the galleries by providing for referendum votes in connection with all projects for municipal operation.

"Assembly opposition to proposed transit legislation showed great signs of weakness. It was made sufficient to preserve the present deadlock only by the uncompromising attitude of the city administration. Their attitude of "all or nothing" was so pronounced that it left the impression that the Mayor and his advisers really preferred to have no legislation whatever and would have taken their own bill only as a reluctant second choice. With a divided Legislature they needed independent support, but they made no effort to secure it. Neither were they willing to make much distinction between major and minor points in dealing with the Assembly. From start to finish the transit problem was wrapped in a fog of politics."

HELD FOR FIREMAN'S DEATH.

Two Long Island Officials and Two Others Face Trial in Queens.

C. Dwight Baker of 89 Lena Avenue, Freeport, General Superintendent of the Long Island Railroad; George Mammen of Seaford, Superintendent of Police of the Long Island Railroad; Robert Brinkley, negro, of 906 Kent Avenue, Brooklyn, a crossing watchman, and Joseph Lubin of 2,145 Hughes Avenue, the Bronx, a traffic policeman, were arraigned before Judge Burt J. Humphrey in the Queens County Court yesterday on an indictment charging them with manslaughter in the second degree for the death of John F. Dunne, a New York City fireman, at the Shaw Avenue crossing on Feb. 6. The defendants were represented by Assistant District Attorney William J. Morris of Far Rockaway. They pleaded not guilty and were admitted to bail of $5,000 each.

At the same time Attorney Joseph Keeney, counsel for the Long Island, appeared to enter a plea to the indictment charging the railroad with maintaining a nuisance. Judge Humphrey took the plea of not guilty and gave Keeney ten days in which to file motions.

The accident on Feb. 6 last cost three lives, Dunne being killed outright and two other firemen on the truck receiving injuries from which they died.

ELEVATOR MAN IS SHOT.

Detectives Question Story About Two Assailants Who Escaped.

Percy Hutchinson, negro elevator operator in the apartment house at 342 West Fifty-sixth Street, was found shot yesterday morning on the sixth floor of the building. He told detectives of the West Forty-seventh Street Station that he had taken two men to the sixth floor, where they rang Mrs. Regina Marks's bell. No one opened the door, said Hutchinson, and he suggested that they leave the house. Thereupon, according to his story, the men drew revolvers and shot him through the body, and made their escape by the levator.

According to Mrs. Marks, one of the men said "This is Charlie," when, in response to the ring, she asked who was there. She said that she knew no one by that name, and therefore refused to open the door. With her at the time was Mrs. Grace Isenberg, a friend.

Detectives Maney and Coleman said they believed the shooting followed a quarrel. They could find no evidence to substantiate the information they said received, they said.

To Discuss World Court Plan.

The director of the Forum and Vocal Press, at 279 Madison Avenue, announced yesterday that a series of discussions of the proposed World Court had been arranged. The first will be held today at 5 P. M. at the organization's rooms, with Mrs. James Lees Laidlaw as the principal speaker. Professor Roberts McElroy of Princeton University will speak at the second meeting on May 11.

ANOTHER BOY FACES DEPORTATION INQUIRY

Joined Family Here Three Years Ago—Tommy Goldman Fails to Report at Ellis Island.

A situation similar to that of Samuel Goldman has arisen at Ellis Island in the case of Joseph Schwartz, 15 years old, a Rumanian boy, who arrived in this country Sept. 29, 1920. He is the son of Harry Schwartz, a furrier, of 1,411 Franklin Avenue, the Bronx, who came to the United States some years ago. The boy, on his arrival, was admitted for an indefinite period, on account, as the immigration authorities said, of there being some question as to his mental condition. A week ago he was summoned to Ellis Island for deportation.

For the last three years the boy has lived with his parents and five brothers and sisters, and has attended Public School 2, at 169th Street and Third Avenue. The principal of the school, Mrs. Arthur Haas, has given to the boy's father the following statement relative to his progress:

"This is to certify that Joseph Schwartz has been in my school since Nov. 9, 1920, and in that time he has made five classes and is now in Grade 3A. This is more than normal progress. I enclose an official record card, as well as a report of his present teacher, Miss Madeline Reiser. I earnestly request that this boy be allowed to remain with his father. As long as he remains in my school he will receive every possible attention."

The family has retained Benjamin A. Hartzhorn, a lawyer, of 217 Broadway. He immediately wrote to the Commissioner of immigration, asking that a thorough mental and physical examination be made of the boy at the family's expense, and that pending such examination the boy be released.

Up to 4:30 yesterday afternoon, when Ellis Island closed officially, Sammy Goldman, the Syracuse schoolboy who has been ordered deported, had not been given up to the immigration authorities.

COUNT COMES HERE TO WED.

Di Frasso Is Met at Dock by Mrs. Dorothy Cadwell Taylor.

Delayed several hours by fog the Conte Rosso of the Lloyd Sebaudo line docked here yesterday from Naples and Genoa with 1,453 passengers, among them Count Dentice Di Frasso, former member of the Italian Parliament, who was greeted at the pier by Mrs. Dorothy Cadwell Taylor of 540 Park Avenue.

The Count said that he and Mrs. Taylor would be married here within a short time. Mrs. Taylor was at one time the wife of Claude Graham-White, British aeronautical pioneer, from whom she was divorced. Count Di Frasso was the husband of the step-daughter of the late Henry Siegel. He said there had been a civil annulment of his marriage more than a year ago. Mrs. Taylor said an early marriage was contingent on the recovery of her mother, who has been seriously ill.

Count Di Frasso said that Mussolini was both loved and feared and that the whole country was back of him because of his leading Italy out of chaos. The King had great admiration for Mussolini, Count Di Frasso added.

Enroute to his new diocese in Louisville, the Right Rev. John Floersh, Bishop of Louisville, returned from Rome, where he was consecrated on April 8th. Edoardo Agnelli, director of the Fiat Motor Company of Turin, arrived here on a business trip.

Other passengers on the Conte Rosso were: Mr. and Mrs. Guy Schieffelin, Frank Kennard, James Carter, Federico De Ballegarde and Edward Reser.

CANDY SHOP SAFE ROBBED.

Burglars Get $3,000—Try to Break Into Radio Store.

Burglars drilled a safe in the office of the United Retail Candy Stores, Inc., early yesterday morning and stole about $3,000. An attempt to cut through to the Haynes-Griffin radio store at 26 West Forty-third Street was balked when they encountered a heavy brick wall.

The candy store runs through the block from 25 West Forty-second Street to 28 West Forty-third Street. An addition, which is used as the men's soda fountain, takes in the store at 24 West Forty-third Street. The radio store is wedged between the two wings of the candy store.

In the rear of the addition is a small court. The burglars gained access to this court by coming over a roof of one of the adjoining buildings and climbing down a ladder. They then forced a cellar window and ripped up a portion of the flooring. A small hole was drilled in the upper left hand corner of the safe and the door forced open.

Checks aggregating about $2,000 were scattered about the floor, and drawers and filing cabinets ransacked. Many records were almost unrecognizable through being soaked with milk, quantities of which were inducted into the opening of the safe by the burglars to keep the drill from becoming overheated.

SAYS FATHER KILLED WIFE.

Parent to Be Accused of Murder Because of Son's Story.

Special to The New York Times.

ELIZABETH, N. J., May 7.—Because of the story of the prisoner's eleven-year-old son, Prosecutor A. J. David said today that he would make a charge against George Buderick, thirty-two, of 233 Bond Street, of having murdered his wife, Mary, thirty-five. The boy said that his mother was beaten by his father when demands for money were refused.

The boy, according to the police, told of three men visiting the house, while the father was out. Later the father returned and when money was refused him, according to the son, he struck the woman. Later, the boy said, the father returned and they discovered the woman was dead. The police said the boy first upheld a story told by the father, that the woman was dead when father and son both returned home from a visit. Later, however, the son told in detail of the attack. The father is under arrest and the police are searching for the three visitors.

BRENNAN SUES FOR $100,000

Fighter Alleges Libel in Connection With Recent Bout With Firpo.

William J. "Bill" Brennan yesterday began suit for $100,000 damages against the Mail and Express Company, alleging that he was libeled in an article entitled "Evening Mail staff unanimous in declaring Firpo-Brennan fight queer."

Brennan alleges that the article was published after the fight in Madison Square Garden on March 12, that he fought in the presence of 12,000 persons, receiving $12,000 for his part in the exhibition, and that he had "prepared and trained himself as best he could, did his best to win, and was bested by his opponent through no fault of his own." Joseph J. Jacobs is attorney for Brennan.

Called to Brooklyn Church.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, R. I., May 7.—The Rev. Francis K. Little, rector of Emanuel Episcopal Church of this city since April, 1922, has received a call to the rectorship of Grace Church, Brooklyn. Mr. Little came here from Rhinebeck, N. Y. He has made no decision on the call.

CALLS FUR FASHION DOOM OF MAMMALS

Prof. Osborn Blames Woman's Love of Adornment for Destroying Beauty of World.

SEEK LAST SPECIMENS

Museum Head Says Entire Vertebrate Kingdom Now Faces Extinction.

The animals of the vertebrate kingdom are threatened with extinction as the result of the scramble for their furs, hides, and even their bones to be used in fertilizer, said the annual report of the American Musum of Natural History yesterday in explaining the reason for pressing to a successful conclusion expeditions now being maintained in many parts of the world.

"The reason that certain of our expeditions are being pressed so hard at the present time—especially in Australia and Southern Asia, Mongolia and Polynesia—is that the natural life and beauty of the world are vanishing with almost incredible rapidity, both among the native races of men and of mammals on land and sea," reported Professor Henry Fairfield Osborn, President of the Musuem. "Unless we secure the records of these native races now, we shall never secure them, because they will have vanished completely. Unless we secure these mammals now, our future exhibition halls of Asia, of Australia and of certain parts of Africa will be incomplete."

Professor Osborn quoted from a report which said:

"Nothing in the history of creation has paralelled the ravages of the fur and hide trade, which, with the bone fertilizer trade, now threatens the entire vertebrate kingdom. The legitimate use of furs for protection in cold weather has long since passed. Furs are now a fashion, just as feathers were thirty years ago. The trade has passed almost entirely into the hands of people of Oriental and Asiatic origin. Millions of dollars are spent annually in advertising. Furs are worn in midsummer purely for ornament and personal adornment, or to make a display of wealth and luxury.

Hopes to Check Fashion's Ravage.

"The final cause of the close of the Age of Mammals can be arrested only through the creation of sound sentiment and education of children and of women in the same manner in which the National Association of Audubon Societies has arrested the destruction of birds. But such a movement will be extremely difficult because the fur trade all over the world offers opportunity for money making, with very little effort and with no risk of life."

"The fur trade is making terrible inroads in Australia," he continued. "This explains the urgency of our expedition, initiated by Dr. Gregory and conducted by Mr. Raven, which is securing superb collections. In Mongolia and China the introduction of cheap firearms and the high price of furs are eliminating mammals, large and small, at an alarming rate. In India and its bordering States, the Fauntorpe Indian Expedition is at work none too soon to secure specimens of the last of certain types of historic mammals, the Indian lion, for example, which is on the verge of extinction, and the large Indian rhinoceros, which is becoming extremely rare.

Praises Heroism of Staff.

After reviewing the work of the many expeditions in all parts of the world Dr. Osborn said:

"These expeditions represent 194,475 miles of travel during the single year 1922; they represent a combined expenditure of $148,369.67; they represent devotion and self-sacrifice in the interests of the Museum on the part of explorers and collections which are beyond all praise. The heat, the cold, the hunger, the privations, the fatigue pertaining to life and limb incurred by these young men are not known upon in their reports; we learn of them only through confidential letters to their families and friends.

"The trustees have done their best this year to express their appreciation by a number of promotions in rank and salary, but we need the much larger endowment fund of $2,000,000 for this purpose, and even then we could never adequately repay or reward these devoted men.

"The plan of the Museum which we expect to complete within the next decade will embrace seventeen sections, according to plans which were outlined by the President twelve years ago and which have since been continuously restudied, modified and examined by architects and experts and considered by the scientific and administrative staffs until we feel sure that we have an ideal building program," said Professor Osborn. "The City of New York has thus far appropriated $7,515,796 for building and equipping the first eleven sections. According to present estimates, the total cost of building and equipping the six remaining building sections is $9,500,000."

REPORT PEACE MOVE ON AGAIN IN IRELAND

Officials Will Give No Confirmation — Outrages Resumed at Week End.

Copyright, 1923, by The New York Times Company.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

DUBLIN, May 7.—There are reports again of conversations aiming at peace going on somewhere, but no confirmation is obtainable in any official circles.

Should such movements be under way it would seem that new outbreaks of violence which occurred over the week-end, such as attacks on Free State posts, the Hollybrook mansion, Lord French's Roscommon residence and Senator Martin Fitzgerald's residence in Dublin, where women fired on a sentry, will not make for their success.

Dr. Fogarty, Bishop of Killaloe, in a sermon yesterday at Nenagh, said the people of Ireland had a great many things to be thankful for in attaining national freedom, but that the last year was one of the most disgraceful, sorrowful and shameful Ireland had ever experienced. They need not talk about the destruction carried out by the "Black and Tans" because there was more done by Irishmen in the last few years than could be charged against England in fifty years.

LARKIN WON'T ENTER DAIL.

But He Sees No Objection to the Irish Oath of Allegiance.

DUBLIN, May 7 (Associated Press).—James Larkin, the labor agitator, who recently was deported from the United States, said today that he would not seek a seat in the Dail Eireann. He could not understand the silence of the Labor Party, he added. It should have demanded that the Free State Government take action on Eamon de Valera's recent peace proposal.

Larkin added that he saw nothing in the oath of allegiance. He also said he believed a majority of the Irishmen in the United States favored a republic in Ireland, but they could not understand the happenings in Ireland. If a settlement of the trouble in Ireland could be brought about the country could obtain a hundred million dollars for reconstruction.

A generous opening of the jail gates, in the opinion of Larkin, would be helpful toward peace, and he urged a week's truce by both sides for negotiations.

Bathing Suit Situation.

There has been substantial improvement in the buying of both men's and women's bathing suits during the last four weeks, according to one of the prominent local manufacturers. The season got off to a very bad start, he pointed out, when the lines for this Summer were first opened, owing to a large carryover of stocks. The buying lately, however, has tended to make up somewhat for the slow beginning. At the moment, the most serious difficulty facing the manufacturers is the high cost of woolen yarns. It is thought that this may take a drop over the next three months, according to this manufacturer, and, therefore, the lines may not be opened for the next season until about Aug. 1. He added that his concern would very likely sell its merchandise with a guarantee against a decline in prices in order to allay the jobbers' or retailers' fear of carrying goods that may recede in value.

Weather Helps Retail Sales.

It will not take many more days of business like Saturday and yesterday to make merchants in this vicinity forget all about the coyness of Spring and the way it retarded consumer buying. Outer garments for women and children got the bulk of the attention of the shoppers. Dresses were in especially strong demand, with the preponderance of it apparently favoring silks. Millinery also sold well, as did the new sandal footwear. The growing vogue for matching hats and shoes has stimulated greatly the call for both, especially hats of red and green or models embodying these colors in some form. A good call was reported also for bright shades of hosiery, in which red and some of the other high colors did better than the average person would suspect.

Big Season Ahead for Mink.

If prices remain right, mink will be featured for coats this Fall and Winter more than ever before, according to a market bulletin issued yesterday by Harry Eisenbach & Co. of this city. Not only will this fur be used here, but England and France are going to use it also. The bulletin goes on to say, that the muskrat outlook is still a little hazy, but there is not much doubt that seal-dyed muskrat (Hudson seal) will soon return to its own. Other articles which have been in the limelight to quite some extent, it adds, are moles, taxis of all kinds and colors, especially the finer grades of dyed white foxes, southern "cats" for natural coats, the sheeper grades of squirrels suitable for dyeing, ermines and weasels.

Foulards Among Tie Silks.

While the silk and wool tie still leads, foulards are growing stronger every day, according to one of the leading makers of tie silks here. He says that the demand is gradually getting away from stripe effects and is switching to foulards with small figures woven in jacquard patterns. Bright colors dominate. The so-called "Prince of Wales" checks, in blue and white and black and white combinations are the newest variety. The Prince is said to favor this tie silk. It has white artificial silk threads running through a black or blue warp, with broad stripes in moiré effects. Bow ties are expected to sell well in panel and foulard effects. Sample pieces for early Fall are being delivered to the tie makers this month, while in July the holiday line will be opened to them.

Prepare for Contingencies.

Reports from the South indicate that hosiery manufacturers are anticipating prospective increases in production costs by speeding up their output with working overtime. Shut-downs resulting from wage controversies are looming up, due to the fact that a number of spinners have increased wages, and hosiery mill executives expect demands to be presented to them by labor at any time. While jobbers and retailers fighting price advances to the limit, the Southern manufacturers are taking time by the forelock and hope to accumulate sufficient stocks to tide them over any trouble that may materialize.

Ostrich Feather Vogue.

Reports continue to reach this country of the favorable reception which is being accorded ostrich feathers by the leading French couturiers. Paquin, it is said, has included in his collection a garment similar to the mantelet recently presented to the wife of the Duke of York. Other couturiers of equal note, it is declared, have also given the vogue acceptance. It is the belief that such sponsorship will have a marked fashion influence here. In acknowledging the gift, the secretary of Lady Bowes-Lyon wrote as follows: "I am desired by Lady Elizabeth Bowes-Lyon to send you a message of her most sincere thanks for the very beautiful mantelet, which she received on behalf of the ostrich farmers of South Africa. Lady Elizabeth is charmed with her gift. The garment is valued at 2,500 francs and is composed of between three and four hundred feathers, known as the finest "finas" and pure white. It is forty inches long in back, crossing in front with a ribbon tie.

Another Hand Bag Novelty.

Manufacturers of handbags and vanity cases continue to produce a large number of novelties, which contribute in no small degree to the current stimulated activity. One of the newest items offered in this merchandise is a circular beauty box, five inches in diameter, with a ring strap about 7 inches long attached to the top. This strap has a slide arrangement, which may be moved up or down, so that the box may be carried easily in several positions. Cellulold ornaments decorate the top and bottom of the cover of the article, which has a wood framework. The box is available in a variety of leathers, including seraser, pin seal and beaver calf, finished in all of the new colors. It is equipped with fittings comprising a large mirror, powder container, change purse and shirred silk pockets. The box is named after the Broadway play "A Kiki." The wholesale price is $36 per dozen.

Fall Shirt Lines Opened.

Fall lines of the Manhattan Shirt Company were opened yesterday. Information was refused as to the range of prices or the amount of the advance shown over the preceding season or last Fall. It is the belief, however, that the lines have been moderately priced and do not show any large advance. This concern is among the last to open for the next season. When the lines of the other shirt manufacturers were opened recently the advance shown was approximately 10 per cent., running up to 15 per cent. on a few numbers. Silks had the principal increase.

Cotton Drop Hits Gray Goods.

The drop in cotton yesterday had a marked effect on trading in gray goods here. It did not stimulate buying much, but it did have the effect of weakening the general tone of the market considerably. In the limited trading done were sales of "near-by" 39-inch 68-72 and 88½-inch 64-60 printcloths at 11¼ and 19 cents, respectively. Sheetings were without feature and very dull. Nominal asking prices were based on 12½ cents for 36-inch 56-60, four-yard goods, and 15½ cents for 40-inch 2.85s. The specialties were without feature.

Accept the Soviet Furs.

What is believed to be the largest transaction in trimming furs ever undertaken by a coat and suit house has been consummated by Jackowitz & Pitofsky, members of this city with a representative of the Soviet Government in London. A cable announcing the closing of the deal has just been received here by the firm in question. The amount involved in the transaction was $147,000. The furs, which were sold by the cable to be even better than the samples, will be shipped at once. Arrangements have been made with the Soviet by Lou Pitofsky of the firm of S. M. Jackowitz to examine a still larger lot of furs in Russia, and the latter will sail on the Leviathan on July 4 for this purpose.

BUSINESS NOTES.

Albert Berk, clothing buyer for Littman & Storck, resident buyers, 26 West Thirty-second Street, has resigned.

The firm of Hickson & Richman, Inc., 15 West Twenty-fourth Street, has been dissolved. Louis Herman will continue the business at the same address.

TRIED TO KIDNAP BRIDE.

Two Men Arrested — Police Allege Former Suitor Hired Them.

According to the police, kidnappers hired by a former suitor failed to prevent the marriage of Rose Silvain, 18 years old, of 2,124 Villa Avenue, the Bronx, to Dominick Magallone of 2,108 Villa Avenue on Sunday. The bride did not appear to press the complaint against Joseph Vinci, 24 years old, of 249 East 150th Street, and Concetta Saldo, 27 years old, of 249 East 148th Street, who were held in $1,500 bail for examination on next Thursday by Magistrate Henry Goodman in the Morrisania Court.

On Friday afternoon the Silvain girl, accompanied by two girl friends, left her home to buy her trousseau. After shopping they decided to start home, and took the subway up to Kingsbridge Road station, where they got off. On leaving the station she met a former sweetheart, who offered to walk home with her and her friends.

As the party reached 200th Street and Jerome Avenue a taxicab containing two men drew up to the curb and, without warning, she was grabbed by her former suitor and the two other men and dragged into the cab. The shouts of the girl and her companions were heard by Detectives Casso and Mancini of the Bronx Park Station, who were out on patrol. Learning from the girls the cause of the excitement and seeing the fleeing taxi, the detectives gave chase and caught up to it at 204th Street. One man, who later proved to be the former suitor, jumped out of the machine and disappeared, but the detectives grabbed the other two and on the girl's complaint locked them up.

Mrs. Pinchot to Do Peace Work.

CHICAGO, May 7.—Mrs. Maud Wood Park, President of the National League of Women Voters, and head of the league's delegation to the Congress of the International Woman Suffrage Alliance, opening in Rome, May 12, has selected Mrs. Gifford Pinchot of Pennsylvania as one of the two women from that delegation to travel with her through Italy, France, Germany and England, interviewing women of prominence on what effective peace work they believe American women can do.

To Administer Riordan Estate.

Mrs. Maud Caldwell Riordan of 29 Oliver Street, widow of Congressman Daniel J. Riordan, who died April 28 in Washington, applied for letters of administration on his estate yesterday and stated that he left no will. She fixes the value of his estate at $1,000 in personal property and $10,000 in realty. Congressman Riordan's estate will be divided among his wife, daughter, Marion; mother, Mrs. Margaret Riordan, and sister, Mary.

SPECIAL TRAIN SPEEDS 2,230 MILES TO DOCTOR

David B. Jones, Ill, Pays $11,000 for Los Angeles-Chicago Trip to Family Physician.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, May 7.—David B. Jones, wealthy President of the Mineral Point Zinc Company, who resides at Lake Forest, Ill., is speeding across the continent from his Winter residence in Los Angeles, Cal., over the Santa Fe Railroad in a special train which is due in Chicago at 3 o'clock tomorrow morning. Mr. Jones is ill and is hurrying to reach his family physician in Chicago.

The train will cost approximately $11,000 and if it arrives on schedule it will have covered the 2,230 miles in 48 hours and 27 minutes, compared with the regular Santa Fe Limited time of 60 hours and 30 minutes. This will be at a sustained speed of 56 miles an hour over the entire distance, no time being deducted for water or fuel stops. The train left Los Angeles at 1:33 P. M. Saturday.

The record time between the two cities is 44 hours and 56 minutes made by the Scotty special in July, 1905. Scotty was a miner and made the trip to promote and advertise properties he was interested in. The Peacock special, carrying A. B. Peacock, an executive of the Carnegie Steel Company, made the run in 51 hours and 56 minutes in March, 1900.

TELLS OF PROGRESS IN INDIA

Professor Geddes of Bombay Among 452 Passengers on the Adriatic.

Rabindranath Tagore, India's foremost poet and a leader in an international movement there, has started a university in Bengal, open to all races and creeds, according to Professor Patrick Geddes of the Chair of Sociology in the University of Bombay, who arrived here yesterday on the Adriatic of the White Star Line.

"Tagore is a very energetic and alert old gentleman," said Professor Geddes. "The last time I saw him he was leading the song and dance of an Indian opera, seemingly having the time of his life. India is passing through a social turmoil, yet there is progress in the direction of democracy. Every province or Presidency has a Parliament and there is an All-India Parliament at Delhi."

Sir Israel Gollancz, Secretary of the British Academy since its foundation in 1902, also arrived on the Adriatic. He is Chairman of the Shakespeare Associations of England. He will be the guest here of the British-American Association and will lecture on Shakespeare.

Others arriving on the liner were Sir Edward Kemp, a member of the Canadian Senate; Sir Percy Fitzpatrick, explorer and writer, from Johannesburg; James J. Mallon, writer and lecturer, of London; Lieut. Frederick Hills, Secretary of the National Council of Social Service, Prestwood, England, and Myles Wall of Ulster.

The Adriatic sailed from Liverpool on April 28, bringing 96 first-class passengers, 215 second and 146 third.

Sharp Break in Stocks to New Low Records for the Year—Commodities Lower.

A continuation of the severe decline in stocks, even more drastic in many directions than occurred on any single day last week, held the centre of financial interest yesterday, and while there were declines, too, in such important markets as sterling, which sold at a new low for the year, and in markets for principal commodities, still these were considered more or less secondary because of being largely sympathetic, and it was the market for stocks, because of the violence of the downward movement, which attracted most attention. At the close last night shares of all sorts had declined an average of ten points from the peak of the year, reached in the first week in March. In other words, practically all of the ground gained marketwise since the first of the year has been lost in an unmistakable downswing, which at first had merely the aspect of irregularity but which, during the past ten days, has been accelerated into a sharp and somewhat disorderly decline.

The question arises whether prices on the Stock Exchange are merely reflecting the effects of notes of caution which have been sounded or whether they forecast an extended period of dullness in business not directly ascertainable from a study of barometers of all sorts at the moment. Of course, the fact is always to be kept in mind that the stock market is usually either overoptimistic or ultra-pessimistic, and that on most upward swings stocks go too high, as they possibly did up to the middle of March, and that the present weakness and irregularity represent merely the readjustment necessary in view of the fact that stocks as a whole had more or less discounted the expansion of business affairs to a point where they were in all respects entirely comparable with the "expansion markets" of three years ago, and where in many lines, indeed, the ratio of operation ran far ahead of any heretofore known in this country. But, whatever the cause and whatever the extent of the decline may be, it is certain that stocks have seldom in recent years experienced such a drastic "shaking out" as they have had in the past ten days. The decline of ten points for the average means, of course, that many of the speculative vehicles have declined as much as twenty to twenty-five points. In the meanwhile there has been no industrial development of particularly pessimistic import. When the final recapitulation for the half year is made, it possibly will be found that stocks have merely followed their usual course of running too far ahead of actual conditions and have been forced to the expedient of halting, temporarily at least, until business has again caught pace and a more accurate estimate of the future is possible.

It is always more or less problematical to just what extent a decline in stocks may be related to a decline in commodities. At any rate, cotton, grains, sugar and coffee were all measurably lower yesterday. In many of these markets, of course, there were developments which were peculiar to themselves, among which, for example, was the report in the cotton market of a further curtailment of mill operations in the textile industry.

The offering of $400,000,000 United States Treasury certificates at 4¾ per cent. caused surprise in banking quarters, in one respect, at least, and that was as regards the size of the issue, which bankers had greatly overestimated. The fact that the rate of interest on the new series will be 4¾ per cent. did not cause surprise because this issue is designed primarily to take the place of maturing 4¾ per cent. Victory notes, which have been selling in the open market on approximately that basis. It appears to be a foregone conclusion in banking circles that the offering will be largely oversubscribed. There were some natural readjustments yesterday in other and lower-rate Government bonds, particularly in the 4¼ per cent. series.

MONEY.

MONDAY, MAY 7, 1923.

Stock Exchange call money ruled steady at 4¾ per cent. until opening of last hour, when rate was advanced to 5, for final trades. Time money market was dull, brokers bidding 5¼ per cent. for all maturities at which figure loans up to ninety days were arranged, but beyond that period 5¼ per cent. was lenders' charge. Commercial paper discounted over 5@5¼ per cent., depending on name; acceptances were in better supply, but without change in discount.

London Market.

Money in London ¾ lower, at 1¼ per cent.; short bills unchanged, at 1¾@1¾ per cent.; three months' bills unchanged, at 1 15-16@2 per cent.

Gold bullion 1d up, 89s 1 d. Taking the British Mint standard price of 85s per fine ounce as par, the market quotation of gold would represent a price of 104⅞ at London. On the same basis the highest London price for gold for the year to date was 106, on Jan. 30. The highest price since open trading in gold was resumed at London in September, 1919, was 140⅝, on Feb. 6, 1920; the lowest 102⅜, on Feb. 21, 1923.

$400,000,000 ISSUE MEETS WITH FAVOR

Treasury Officials Confident Notes Will Be Absorbed Rapidly.

EXPECT OVERSUBSCRIPTION

Sufficient Surplus Revenues in the Treasury to Meet Any Deficiency in Subscriptions.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—The Treasury Department is confident that the new $400,000,000 issue of 4¾ per cent four-year notes to meet May maturities and provide for current expenses until June 15 will be absorbed rapidly and that it will probably be generously oversubscribed. Reports from several of the Federal Reserve districts indicated today that the terms of the offering had been favorably received in banking and investment circles. Indications also were that a considerable total of maturing Victory notes would be offered in exchange, in addition to the cash subscriptions.

The Treasury fixed the 4¾ per cent rate first because the existing market for short term Treasury securities, as indicated by the yield on the 4¾ per cent notes maturing in 1926, was already close to that rate, and also with a view to obtaining the largest possible conversion into the new notes of 4¾ per cent. victory notes of 1919, maturing this month. The Treasury's attitude is based on the fact that the great bulk of these maturing victory notes is now in the hands of investors and not of banks, and that their extension or conversion would, under such circumstances, tend to keep the new obligations off the market.

The Treasury believes that tenders of maturing Victory notes for conversion into the new issue, together with the cash subscriptions, will provide adequately for taking up the old Victory notes outstanding, called and uncalled.

There will be sufficient surplus revenues in the Treasury to meet any possible deficiency in subscriptions below the amount of maturing notes. The discrepancy between the Budget Director's estimate of a $50,000,000 surplus for the fiscal year and the $125,000,000 estimate in Secretary Mellon's official statement of yesterday probably arose from the Budget Director's failure to allow for income and corporation taxes for which the thirty-day extension had been obtained. Director Lord's estimate was sent out before it had been checked up by the Treasury.

Regarding the report, lately current in the financial markets, that the advance in reserve bank rediscount rates was delayed only until the Treasury refunding operation was out of the way, there is no confirmation. Both Treasury and Reserve Board officials at present hold the opinion that the credit position is not dangerous and that the business situation, so far as concerns the possibility of over-expansion, is taking care of itself through the reaction of prices and the evident spirit of caution among business men.

Favorable comment throughout the financial district greeted the Government's May financing announcement yesterday. Bankers, generally, were of the opinion that the amount offered and the rate were such that the loan would be heavily oversubscribed.

The amount was far smaller than anticipated, and indicates, bankers said, that the Treasury was in a much better shape than had been generally believed.

Co-operation of 600 investment security houses was urged by the Board of Governors of the Investment Bankers Association of America in a notice sent out yesterday to its members.

In this notice the members are requested to call attention of their clients to the opportunity offered them by the Treasury Department of exchanging their holdings of Victory 4¾ per cent. notes maturing March 15, 1927.

KANSAS CITY JOINT STOCK LAND BANK

OF KANSAS CITY, MISSOURI

5% Farm Loan Bonds

Dated May 1, 1923 — Interest payable May 1 and November 1 — Due May 1, 1953

Coupon Bonds of $1,000 each, fully registerable. Coupon and registered Bonds interchangeable. Redeemable at par and interest on May 1, 1933, or any interest date thereafter. Principal and semi-annual interest payable at the Kansas City Joint Stock Land Bank or coupons may be presented for collection at the office of Blair & Co., New York.

From a letter signed by Mr. Walter Cravens, President of the Kansas City Joint Stock Land Bank, Kansas City, Mo., we quote as follows:

The Bank's Bonds are directly secured by deposit with the United States Registrar of the Federal Land Bank in the district in which it operates, of an equal face amount of first mortgages on farm lands, which, under the law, must not exceed 50% of the value of the land, plus 20% of the value of the permanent insured improvements, as determined by Federal appointed appraisers.

The equity in the farm lands is constantly increasing by reason of the semi-annual amortization payments made upon the loans, and by the increase in farm values, which in the States of Missouri and Kansas, according to United States Census reports, have averaged 4% per annum for a period of 60 years.

It is today the second largest Joint Stock Land Bank of the United States.

By Act of Congress these Bonds, prepared and engraved by the Treasury Department, are legal investments for all Fiduciary and Trust Funds under the jurisdiction of the Federal Government.

All offerings are made "when, as and if issued" and received by us.

PAN-AMERICAN PETE REPORTS BIG GAINS

Statement for 1922 Shows Net Profit of $31,575,937, or $14.87 Earned Per Share.

OUTPUT INCREASED 85%

Mexican Petroleum Co. Announces Profits Equal to $55 a Share on Outstanding Stock.

The Pan-American Petroleum Company yesterday issued its report for 1922, giving effect for the first time to the consolidation of that company with Mexican Petroleum.

Prior to the offer made in 1922, the Mexican Petroleum Company had been operated independently of the Pan-American Company, although a majority of its stock was owned by the latter organization. The income account showed net profit for the year of $31,575,937, or the equivalent of $14.87 a share earned on the 2,123,350 shares of $50 par value stock outstanding on Dec. 31, after allowing for the increase in Pan-American stock.

The consolidated income account shows gross profits for the year of $48,049,736, from which there was deducted $1,106,-622 for interest, $10,785,177 for depreciation and depletion, and $4,580,000 for Federal taxes, leaving net profits for the year of $31,575,000. The consolidated balance sheet shows net current assets of $53,946,115 and net current liabilities of $16,142,880. The profit and loss surplus on Dec. 31 was shown as $32,550,-738.

While the annual report mentions the dividend paid by the company during 1922, nothing is said regarding the dividend outlook. When asked regarding this omission, Edward L. Doheny, President, said that it would be "continued at the same rate during the remainder of this year and indefinitely thereafter."

In a supplementary statement the company reported its earnings for the first quarter of the current year, which showed net profits of $8,392,820 after all charges, equal to $3.80 a share on the capital stock for the period. Mr. Doheny said that "if the price of gasoline remains steady during the balance of this year it is possible that the net profits of the company will range between $35,000,000 and $36,000,000."

The Mexican Petroleum, Ltd., proper for 1922 reports net profits after all charges of $25,376,000, equal to about $50 a share on the average amount of stock outstanding during the year. This company reports net current assets of $42,900,000 and net current liabilities of $9,900,000. The profit and loss surplus of the Mexican Petroleum Company on Dec. 31 was $43,750,000.

Mr. Doheny, in a statement to stockholders, said that the increase in earnings last year "is a direct reflection of the greater volume of business done during the year under review. Refined oil business showed an increase of about 52 per cent., and crude and fuel oil business an increase of about 62 per cent., the total volume representing an increase of approximately 85 per cent.

"It should be borne in mind that in 1922 your company's profits, for about two months only, were augmented by the greater proportion of the profits of the Mexican Petroleum Company, Ltd., which accrued to your company by reason of its increased holdings in said company.

"The consolidated net profit for the year 1922 is equivalent to approximately $20 per share (40 per cent.) on the average stock outstanding for the period, as compared with $12.94 per share, or 26 per cent. profit for 1921.

"The combined production of oil from your lands for the year 1922 amounted to approximately 62,000,000 barrels, or about 85 per cent. increase over the year 1921, such increase being principally resultant to the activities carried on with respect to lands heretofore undeveloped, or reserves not hitherto drawn upon. Your subsidiary companies' production in Mexico up to Dec. 30, 1922, amounted to approximately 230,000,000 barrels, representing 25 per cent. of the total production of Mexico up to that date. Incidentally, it might be mentioned that the net profits arising from the increasing production in the State of California show a very substantial increase over the year 1921, the actual results being about two and one-half times the profit of that year."

JERSEY WATER TAX UPHELD.

Supreme Court Rules State Can Collect From Municipalities.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—New Jersey's law of 1907, imposing a tax on municipalities for excess water diversion, was sustained by the Supreme Court today in cases brought by the cities of Newark and Trenton.

Under the law, the quantity of water used by the various municipalities is measured by the State, which fixes a maximum that can be furnished free and imposes a tax of $1 per 1,000,000 gallons on the excess.

Newark and Trenton, controlling water works of their own, contended that they were entitled tax free to all the water which the water works were prepared to furnish at the time the cities obtained control of them.

The State courts had sustained the excess water taxes.

Declares an Extra Dividend.

The Mahoning Investment Company has declared an extra dividend of 50 cents a share in addition to the regular quarterly dividend of $1.50 a share, both payable June 1 to stockholders of record May 23. This company owns practically all of the capital stock of the Rochester and Pittsburgh Coal and Iron Company.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE

Sterling Goes to New Low in General Reaction — Greek Drachma Only Exception.

European exchanges were heavy and generally lower yesterday, the only exception to the reaction being found in Greek exchange, which was predicated on the favorable outlook for a Government loan by London and private bankers. The drachma moved up to 1.41 cents, a new high for the year, from 1.26 on Saturday.

The softness in sterling and the continentals was attributed to the weakness at London, there being a steady stream of lower cables in the forenoon session, when the market was weakest. Sterling sagged to a new low for the year at $4.61⅜, a net loss of 1¼ cents from Saturday's final, while French and Belgian remittances were weak on the answer directed to the Germans on the latest reparations offer, Paris checks selling down to 6.5⅛ cents from 6.66 on Saturday, while Brussels declined to 6.71¼ cents from 5.76. Guilders were moderately firm at the start, but closed for a slight loss at 39.07 cents, with the Italian, German, Spanish and Scandinavians sympathetically lower.

All Far Easterns reported losses, declines running from ⅛ to ¼ cent in the Chinese, Japanese and Indian bills.

Foreign Exchange.

In the subjoined table the quotation on sterling represents dollars and decimals of a dollar; all others represent cents and decimals of a cent. Quotations preceded by the decimal mark indicate a price measured in fractions of a cent.

Thirty Million Dollars in 1923 To Meet Constantly-Growing Demands for Service

TO provide for the ever-increasing requirements for electricity and gas, operated utilities of Standard Gas and Electric Company will spend $30,000,000 on new property construction, extensions and additions in 1923. Total power resources of the companies will be increased over 39%.

Growth of the business of these companies—serving 665 cities and towns, with population of over 2,375,000, in 16 states—has been consistent since 1912. The substantial increase of 1922 was reflected in a gain of 23.3% in net revenue of Standard Gas and Electric Company. Dividend requirements on the Preferred stock were earned more than 2½ times.

Securities of public utility companies represent the most substantial and reliable form of corporate investment to be found—investments in properties supplying daily necessities. They are fundamentally sound and meet the requirements of the conservative investor. Diversity of their business is limited only by activities of the people and natural resources.

You may share in the prosperity of one of the large, progressive and rapidly-growing utility organizations of the country by investing in the

BRANCH BANK ISSUE BEFORE HIGH COURT

Involves Right of a State to Forbid National Banks Establishing Agencies.

MISSOURI LAW CONTESTED

Eleven Other States and Two New York Institutions File Briefs in St. Louis Suit.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—The question whether national banks should be allowed to open branches was argued before the United States Supreme Court this afternoon, when the Court heard the appeal of the First National Bank of St. Louis against an order of the Missouri State Supreme Court closing one of its branches. The case is notable, especially as eleven States, in addition to Missouri, have intervened, and as the Chemical National Bank and the National City Bank of New York obtained permission today, through their counsel, Otto A. Schlobohm, to file briefs in the suit.

Although the St. Louis branch bank was not closed until March 3, the United States Supreme Court considered the case so very important that it advanced the date for a hearing of the argument, only about six weeks having elapsed since the suit was brought to Washington.

Appearing for the First National Bank of St. Louis, Frank H. Sullivan denied the right of the State Supreme Court of Missouri to hand down an order closing the branch. He said the action of the Missouri court narrowed to the question whether the State had the power to revoke the charter of a bank granted under a national law. National banks were regulated by Congress alone, he contended, and thus the States could not legislate on the fundamental power bestowed on the national banks. If this condition obtained, Mr. Sullivan held, then States could pass laws practically destroying national banks. Summed up, his argument was that the question of branch establishment was a matter to be regulated by Congress and not by the States.

Merrill E. Otis, Assistant Attorney General of Missouri, declared that under the National Banking act national banks should conduct their business in an office, "and" in the place where they were incorporated to conduct this business. The word "and," he contended, was a clear limitation, and could not be given a general application.

Four decisions on this point—one by the Solicitor of the Treasury Department, a second by the Comptroller of the Currency, a third by former Attorney General Wickersham and the fourth by the Missouri State Supreme Court—all had been to the point that the word "and" constitutes a limitation, Mr. Otis asserted. Congress had expressly granted exceptions to this, he continued, in authorizing branch national banks at various expositions thrpughout the United States and this special legislation was necessary, he declared.

As a special consul for the State of Missouri, Harold R. Small argued that branch bank extension allowed the establishment of these offshoots on the capitalization which, he said, was originally intended for a single institution. He argued that establishment of branch national banks brought serious competition with State banks, and sometimes amounted to monopolies. The American Bankers' Association, Mr. Small recalled, went on record against branch banks at its last convention.

On June 22, 1922, the First National Bank of St. Louis opened a branch bank in that city. On June 27 the State filed proceedings to find out where the right lay to establish such a branch. The case was carried to the Missouri Supreme Court, which closed the branch March 3, 1923, and granted an injunction against its reopening.

The State of Illinois, Connecticut, North Dakota, South Dakota, Washington, Wisconsin, Iowa, Arkansas, Minnesota, Indiana and Kansas are participants in the suit. Their laws prohibit national branch banks.

Panhandle Producing Revenue.

The Panhandle Producing and Refining Company for the first three months of 1923 reports operating revenue of $856,052, comparing with $996,755 in the same period in 1922. After payment of operating expenses and taxes and allowing for other deductions there was a balance available for the stock of $152,009, against $122,549 last year. After payment of preferred dividends there was left $93,305, against $59,711 in 1922.

Price of Zinc Rises Sharply.

Reports were received in New York yesterday by metal dealers that the price of zinc, as established in the East St. Louis market, where quotations for the country are made, had advanced more sharply than at any other time in several months. It was reported that a large order for the metal was being filled. The May delivery now is quoted at 7.20 cents, June 7.15 cents and July and August deliveries 7.10 cents.

HIGH COURT BACKS MINNESOTA ORE TAX

NOT 'BURDEN ON COMMERCE'

Ruling Involves About $5,000,000 in Back Taxes Due to Minnesota From Mining Companies.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—The occupation tax laid by Minnesota on the valuation of iron ores mined and produced in the State was upheld today by the Supreme Court in an opinion handed down by Justice Van Devanter.

The Court held that the tax was not a burden on interstate commerce as asserted by thirty-seven ore mining companies which sued to contest the validity of the Minnesota law. The case came to Washington on an appeal from the District Court of Minnesota, which held the law valid.

The original suits were brought to restrain and prevent the enforcement of an act passed by the Minnesota Legislature in April, 1921, levying on mining within the State an occupation tax of 6 per cent. of the value of the ore obtained during the preceding year, directing that the tax be computed on the value of the ore where it was mined and requiring reports on production before Feb. 1 annually.

The mining companies refused to make reports for 1921, holding that the act was invalid, as in conflict with the constitutional provision that "taxes shall be uniform on the same class of subjects." When suits were brought the District Court dismissed them.

The mining companies contended that the tax was a property tax instead of an occupation tax, but the Supreme Court disagreed with this view.

Calls It an Occupation Tax.

"We think the tax in its essence is what the act calls it—an occupation tax," said Justice Van Devanter. "It is not laid on the land containing the ore, nor on the ore after removal, but on the business of mining the ore, which consists in severing it from its natural bed and bringing it to the surface, where it can become an article of commerce and be utilized in the industrial arts. Mining is a well-recognized business, wherein capital and labor are extensively employed. This is particularly true in Minnesota. Obviously a tax is laid on those who are engaged in that business, and laid on them solely because they are so engaged, as is the case here, in an occupation tax.

"The chief contention is that mining as conducted by the plaintiffs, if not actually a part of interstate commerce, is so closely connected therewith that to tax it is to burden or interfere with such commerce, which a State cannot do consistently with the commerce clause of the Constitution of the United States," said the court, explaining that the mining companies said practically all of their output was used outside the State and thus went at once into interstate commerce. In 1921, out of a total output of 18,197,370 tons, only 261,622 tons were sold and used within Minnesota.

"Plainly the facts do not support the contention," said the opinion on this point. "Mining is not interstate commerce, but, like manufacturing, is a local business subject to local regulation and taxation. Its character in this regard is intrinsic, is not affected by the intended use or disposal of the product, and is not controlled by contractual engagements, and persists even where the business is conducted in close relation to interstate commerce. The business on which the tax is laid ends before the ore enters interstate commerce, and there is no discrimination against such commerce. It may well be that the tax indirectly and incidentally affects that commerce, just as any taxation of railroad and telegraph lines does, but this is not a forbidden burden or interference.

Discusses Uniform Taxes.

"The contentions made under the equal protection provision of the Fourteenth Amendment and under the State constitutional provision that 'taxes shall be uniform upon the same class of subjects' presents a question of classification and have been argued together. Consequently with both provisions the Legislature of the State may exercise a wide discretion in selecting the subjects of taxation, particularly as respects taxes. It may select those who are engaged in one class of business and exclude all others, if all similarly situated are brought within the class and all members of the class are dealt with according to uniform rules. Here the selection is of all who are engaged in mining or producing ores on their own account, that is to say, as owners or lessees. The selection seems to be an admissible one, so we turn to the objections urged against it."

One of these contentions was that the contractors who stripped the soil, and who loaded cars, or took ore out of the ground, were not included in the tax. But the court held that "none of these are engaged in mining on their own account," and that their pay was part of the expenses of the business they were working for.

Another objection was that some miners who did extensive development work but removed no ore were not included. The Supreme Court said:

"Equality does not require that unproductive mining be taxed along with productive mining. Besides, if ore is uncovered or made accessible by such development work the tax will be imposed when the ore is mined."

Among the deductions which the act provides shall be made from the value of the ore before computing the tax is the amount of royalties paid on the ore mined and produced. The provision is assailed as working a serious discrimination in favor of those who operate under leases and pay royalties, as all the lessees do, and against owners who operate their own mines and pay no royalties.

"This question apparently requires a construction of the particular provision along with other parts of the act, and possibly of the State constitutional provision.

Denies Discrimination.

"It is also said that the royalty provision and others respecting deductions will work a discrimination as between different lessees, in that some will be subjected to a higher tax than others. No doubt there will be differences in the amount, but they will result from differences in situation and not from differences in treatment. * * *

"But all lessees will have the benefit of deductions adjusted to the royalties, expenses and taxes actually paid, and the value of the ore, according to the tax which will be computed, will, in each instance, be its actual value when it is brought out of the mine, less these deductions. In short, the tax is to be adjusted to the value of the output, less the major expenses of the business, and this according to uniform rule.

"We, therefore, cannot say that it is intended to, or will, work any arbitrary or unreasonable discrimination as between different lessees."

ST. PAUL, Minn., May 7.—About $5,000,000 back taxes will become due from mining companies operating in Minnesota under the decision of the Federal Supreme Court today in sustaining Minnesota's law levying a 6 per cent. gross earnings tax on all ore mined in the State.

Becomes New Haven Superintendent

NEW HAVEN, Conn., May 8.—Harry E. Baily has been appointed superintendent of the New York division of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad. It was announced today. He will also be superintendent of the New York connecting railroad, which uses the Hell Gate bridge. Mr. Baily succeeds F. M. Clark, who has been given leave of absence because of illness.

MILLS DUMP COTTON AND BRING A BREAK

Weight Particularly Heavy on May Contracts, As Prices Decline 88 to 125 Points.

The most severe break of any single session this season took place in cotton yesterday. Under a series of rushes, during which from 10 to 20 points was clipped from prices at a time, July sold down over a cent and a half and new crops about a cent a pound. Pressure came not only from outside sources but from cotton interests, weight on May being particularly noticeable. This was taken as an indication that the dry goods situation had assumed a phase where some mills had decided to sell out contract obligations rather than take more raw material at the moment. Over 5,000 bales arrived in New York on consignment. At times lack of buying power made execution of orders difficult, July going to about 125 points over October. More liberal buying occurred in late trading which steadied July but left late months at the bottom. Southern spot quotations were reduced 50 to 150 points on very few transactions. Prices lost 88 to 125 points.

With a steadier Liverpool than had been expected after the week close there on Friday, July opened around 25.60 at an advance of 20 points. Execution of several covering orders in both May and July absorbed contracts on and for a few moments after the call. But with most favorable over-Sunday weather of the season and nothing of a stimulating nature in developments outside the cotton industries to encourage buying, the selling movement was resumed. When it became evident that, instead of attracting support, lower quotations uncovered stop loss orders, pressure increased in volumt as the morning advanced. Under a series of selling waves which caught stop orders and brought out more cotton at each new low level, prices broke rapidly. Rallies proved feeble and without bringing in either new buying or starting liberal covering. So much cotton was for sale on each upturn that new low territory was reached after each temporary halt. July "sailed through 25 cents, 24½ cents, to 24¼ cents before midday. With a weak stock market and the heaviest May liquidation so far since notice day, another open break occurred early in the afternoon which carried July within striking distance of 24 cents. This represented a decline of nearly 6% cents from high levels of the season.

With virtually the first clear map for two consecutive days in some weeks, new crop positions came under selling pressure from the opening. While houses with domestic and foreign trade connections executed scale buying orders of considerable volume, support was not sufficient to prevent declining prices. October started around 23.90, and room traders looked for a repetition of large orders around 23¾ and 23½ cents such as characterized trading last week. Instead of this, however, weakness in both May and July with persistent selling from the South by late months to a degree not previously experienced. Some buying around 23½ cents and more at 23¾ cents rendered progress slower than was the case in July but all demand was filled and October broke through 23 cents, a cent from early figures.

This carried January to 22¼ cents, a cent from the level prevailing each day last week, indicating that the new crop had moved to a definitely lower basis. Under conditions now existing, it is extremely difficult to obtain well defined opinions regarding the probable value of cotton a few months, since so much depends upon progress during the growing season. Planting operations are now making rapid strides in all sections of the belt, though many complaints of low night temperatures retarding growth are being received from various points in the South.

RAILWAY AND 10 BOATS SOLD

Property of Maryland, Delaware & Virginia Brings $650,000.

BALTIMORE, Md., May 7.—The Maryland, Delaware & Virginia Railway property, which included ten bay steamboats, was sold in three lots at public auction today under a foreclosure proceeding for a total of $650,000.

A representative of the bondholders bought six of the steamers for $400,000; E. B. Leas of Philadelphia bid in the railroad property and three boats at $225,000, and N. W. Smith of Philadelphia purchased three steamers for $25,000. It was not stated who Leas and Smith represented.

The Maryland, Delaware & Virginia Railway extends from Love Point, Md., to Lewes, Del., a distance of approximately seventy-eight miles. Its steamers ply between Baltimore and points on the Potomac and Rappahannock Rivers.

Reduces Number of Directors.

The Atlantic Fruit Company yesterday reduced its Board of Directors from seventeen to fifteen members at the annual meeting. The vacancy caused by the death of Sir John Pringle of Jamaica was not filled. Other Directors were re-elected with the exception of H. B. Mendenhall. Officers of the company were re-elected.

Humphreys Oil Votes $1 Dividend.

DALLAS, Texas, May 7.—An annual dividend of 10 per cent., totaling $600,000, or $1 per share, was voted here today by stockholders of the Humphreys Oil Company, payable June 15. About 75 per cent. of the stock was represented at the annual meeting, at which all Directors were re-elected.

ANOTHER TUMBLE IN GRAIN PRICES

Wheat Is Off 10¼ Cents—Grain Shrinkage Loss Now Figured at $75,000,000.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, May 7.—All grains sold at a new low on the present downturn, with the finish at net losses of 10¼ cent on wheat, 1¼@1⅝ on corn, ⅛@⅝ on oats and 2¾@2¼ on rye, and the finish about the bottom.

The loss of grain growers and handlers, to say nothing of the speculative element, in the last two weeks now aggregates around $75,000,000 as the result of the decline in prices for the four major grains alone. Numerous stop-loss orders were uncovered on the way down today, and had it not been for heavy short covering the break might have extended further.

There was a good class of buying in both wheat and corn early, July wheat advancing nearly 1 cent, to 11.18¾, on commission houses and local buying, but the market sank later to $1.15¾, at the inside showing 10¼ cents under the recent high.

Sentiment was much more friendly to the bull side, with dry weather talk from Illinois, Indiana and Ohio, with country buying orders a factor in wheat, while in corn the strengthening influences were large shipments via Lake to Eastern ports. Rumors that over 1,000,000 bushels of corn had been chartered for shipment and an unexpectedly heavy decrease in the visible supply, bullish factors, were, however, ignored after liquidation commenced.

The seaboard was after hard Winter wheat here, that showed a profit of around 1 cent per bushel, c. i. f. Buffalo, if boats could be secured.

Charters were made for 500,000 bushels of corn. In the visible supply there was a decrease of 825,000 bushels, making the total 43,398,000, against 44,521,000 the previous week and 31,000,000 last year.

Buying of corn early by brokers who generally act for several leading local traders, very bearish for some time past, helped to advance prices. July was wanted for a long time at 78¼ cents, but the buying gave out, and, with liquidation general, prices dropped to 77¼ cents, at which figure there was renewed short covering that checked the decline.

Weather conditions over the Central West were generally favorable for plowing and planting, although a soaking rain would be beneficial for the corn now planted and for the new oats crop.

There was some buying of oats early on the dry weather talk, but it quickly ran its course.

A decrease of 3,280,000 bushels in the visible supply of corn brought it down

FIGHT RESERVE BANK BRANCH FOR CUBA

Many Oppose Proposal Made on Behalf of W. P. G. Harding's Boston Bank.

ATLANTA CHIEFLY ANXIOUS

New York Bankers Agree That Cuban Business Belongs to Her Rather Than Boston.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—Unusual importance was given today to the hearing before the Federal Reserve Board on the proposal of Governor W. P. G. Harding of the Boston Federal Reserve Bank to establish a branch or agency of that bank in Cuba by the appearance, in opposition to the application, of representatives of the New York Reserve Bank and other New York banking institutions. It was contended that the grant of permission to establish such a branch in competition with member banks would furnish a precedent which might have far-reaching consequences. President Charles E. Mitchell of the National City Bank of New York also argued that if permission were to be given to any reserve bank the Atlanta Reserve Bank, because of its proximity to the Cuban field, should have precedence.

The Atlanta Reserve Bank and financial institutions in that district led the movement in opposition to the application of the Boston bank, and it was apparent that the banking interests of the Southeast had been deeply stirred. The Cuban business heretofore has been handled through the Atlanta Reserve Bank and its Jacksonville branch, and the Atlanta bankers asserted that Cuba was within their jurisdiction and that Boston had no right to attempt to invade the territory. President John K. Ottley of the Fourth National Bank of Atlanta estimated that if the Harding proposal was granted it would reduce the lending power of the Atlanta Reserve Bank by from sixty to ninety millions annually.

Among the bankers who appeared in opposition to the proposal were L. C. Adamson, Deputy Governor of the Atlanta Reserve Bank; ex-Senator Hoke Smith, a Director of the Fulton National Bank of Atlanta; J. H. Case, Deputy Governor of the New York Reserve Bank; Gates W. McGarrah, Chairman of the Board of the Mechanics and Metals Bank of New York, and Charles E. Mitchell, President of the National City Bank of New York. The Reserve Board also received telegrams of protest from Senators Harris and George of Georgia, Harrison of Mississippi, McKellar and Shields of Tennessee and Fletcher of Florida.

Denying that there was any sectionalism involved and saying that he himself was a Southerner, Governor Harding said:

"Objection has arisen in the Sixth District to the original application of the Boston bank to establish our own agency or branch in Cuba, and there seems to be a misapprehension. We have amended our application to preclude the issuance by the Boston bank of even one dollar of currency. If the Atlanta bank wants to furnish us with our currency down there, we will be glad to turn it to do so.

"However, we do want permission to establish our own agency there under Section 14 of the Federal Reserve act and to buy and sell exchange, make cable transfers, deal in bankers' acceptances and so on.

"We do not want authority for a general banking business in Cuba, but the Boston bank wants to act directly in Cuba rather than through existing banks there."

John K. Ottley, first speaker for the opposition, said that the amended application of Governor Harding was unsatisfactory to banks of the Sixth Reserve District.

"A number of American banks," said Mr. Ottley, "now have branches in Cuba and are doing business there. I do not think there should be authorized an agency to go in and compete in Cuba with these commercially established banks, and this is what the Boston proposition amounts to."

Deputy Governor J. H. Case of the New York Reserve Bank, told the Reserve Board it would establish a dangerous precedent to approve the Boston application. He referred to a letter from Paul Warburg, New York banker and former member of the board, along the same line. Mr. Warburg said if the Reserve Board was going to embark upon such a policy it ought to go to Congress and get specific authority and not attempt to act under insufficient existing law.

"I am rather bald-headed," said Mr. Case, "but my hair stands on end when I read such applications as that of the Boston banks. If Boston can go to Cuba and enter the banking business, why cannot the Atlanta Reserve Bank go to Porto Rico, the Philippines, or any other country that wants a dollar of American currency? It is the principle of the thing for which I am contending. Cuban conditions are peculiar, it is true, and the island is deserving of sympathy and help, but not to the extent of embarking upon such a dangerous policy and precedent as the Boston proposal would involve."

Charles E. Mitchell, President of the National City Bank of New York, said he opposed any reserve bank establishing a branch in Cuba in competition with member banks.

"But if such a branch bank is to be established," said Mr. Mitchell, "it ought to go to the Atlanta Reserve Bank, because of its proximity, and the service afforded ought to be complete and not half-way."

Chairman Crissinger adjourned the hearing after three hours of argument and discussion, and the board reserved decision.

SHIP TO HAVE BRANCH BANK.

Farmers Loan and Trust Office to Be Opened on the Leviathan.

The Farmers Loan and Trust Company completed arrangements with the United States Shipping Board yesterday for opening a branch banking office aboard the steamship Leviathan, scheduled to sail July 4 on her first trip since reconditioning. This, it is said, is the first time that an American bank has ever had an office aboard a steamship, although it is now common practice among the larger Cunard liners to have English bank offices.

Full banking facilities will be extended to all aboard the large liner, the Farmers Loan and Trust Company announced yesterday. Three clerks will be in charge of the office, and it is planned at first to carry $25,000 in cash. The facilities offered will include cashing letters of credit, travelers' checks and exchanging moneys. Wireless communication will be maintained between ports and ship, so that the exchange rates will be kept up to date daily.

PROTECTS NORWEGIAN BANKS

Government Grants Guarantees to Foreningsbanken and Centralbanken

CHRISTIANIA, May 7.—The two Norwegian banks placed under public administration a fortnight ago—the Foreningsbanken and the Centralbanken—have been granted a State guarantee in conformity with the decision of the Storthing.

To facilitate business connections with foreign banks it is provided that former liabilities that have arisen through the general exchange of goods between nations shall be promptly adhered to. In this way reimbursements will be covered and export bills protected.

As regards other earlier liabilities to foreign banks, measures will be taken to have the amounts placed at free disposal proportionately as soon as possible and to such extent as the position of the banks may allow.

EMPLOYES TO GET STOCK.

Vacuum Oil Company Adopts Plan for Subscription for Shares.

The Directors of the Vacuum Oil Company, a former Standard Oil subsidiary, have approved a plan whereby employes of the company receive the opportunity to become interested in the affairs of the company through stock ownership. The plan, it is stated, will become effective May 14 and will operate for five years unless terminated sooner by the Directors.

Employes are permitted to purchase stock in the company up to 20 per cent. of their annual salaries, the amount to be deducted in instalments from the weekly payroll. For each dollar subscribed by the employe the company will subscribe 50 cents. This is similar to the policy in force by some of the other larger Standard Oil organizations.

To Call In $3,000,000 Notes.

The A. O. Smith Corporation announced yesterday that it would issue a call for the $3,000,000 6 per cent. notes, due Oct. 1, 1924. All of these notes now become due and payable at the office of the First Wisconsin Trust Company, Milwaukee, June 5. Recently the corporation issued $5,000,000 in first mortgage bonds, the funds from which will be used to pay off the issue called and to provide for business expansion.

Cuts Price of Wyoming Crude.

The Ohio Oil Company announced another reduction of 10 cents a barrel in all grades of Wyoming crude oil, according to advices received in Wall Street yesterday.

GRAIN EXPORTS LARGER.

Last Week's Wheat Shipments Decrease, but Barley and Oats Gain.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—Exports of grain from the United States during the last week were 4,601,000 bushels, compared to 4,663,000 the week before.

Flour shipments from the United States amounted to 376,900 barrels, compared to 379,300 barrels the week before.

European countries were the largest takers of American grain. Figures as made public by the Commerce Department comparing shipments for last week with the week before follow:

Barley, 297,000 bushels against 213,000; corn, 1,894,000 against 1,403,000; oats, 273,000 against 226,000; rye, 586,000 against 790,000; wheat 2,041,000 against 2,448,000.

Canadian grain in transit shipped to export from United States ports amounted to 1,255,000 bushels compared with 2,295,000 bushels the week previous.

Shipments of the principal commodities last week compare as follows with previous weekly reports by the department this year:

APARTMENT DEALS INVOLVE MILLIONS

Builders Sell Big Structure in Murray Hill Section, Valued at $1,600,000.

$500,000 HEIGHTS DEAL

Operators Purchase the Avoca Apartments — Tenants Sell Riverside Drive House.

Apartment house deals involving millions of dollars were closed in trading on yesterday's real estate market. One of the finest apartment properties in the Murray Hill section of Park Avenue changed ownership when Schroeder & Koppel, builders, sold the fourteen-story building at 67 Park Avenue, valued at $1,600,000. Occupying a plot 87.9 by 115 feet on the northeast corner of Thirty-eighth Street, the structure contains five apartments on a floor and yields an annual rental of $220,000.

It was erected by Schroeder & Koppel on the site of the former Barney mansion and was one of the first apartments of its type to be erected in the section. It was fully rented before completion.

Samuel Greenberg, a Bronx attorney, is the buyer, and William H. Peckham was the broker who negotiated the transaction.

Buy the Avoca Apartment.

Jerome C. and Mortimer G. Mayer bought, through W. H. Ebbitt & Co. from Washingtonia, Inc., the Avoca, an eight-story apartment, on a plot 93 by 100 feet, at the northwest corner of West Washington Avenue and 170th Street. The building has an annual rental of $57,000 and was held at $500,000.

It has six apartments on a floor in one four, one six and four five room suites, except the eighth floor, which has one four, one eight and three five room suites.

Riverside Drive Corner Sold.

The Peter Stuyvesant, a ten-story structure at 258 Riverside Drive, south corner of Ninety-eighth Street, valued at about $750,000, has been sold by the tenants, who formed the 258 Riverside Drive Corporation, headed by James T. Anyon, W. Watson and F. T. Wolcott. The new owner is Joseph Schwartz.

The house stands on a site fronting 101.8 feet on the Drive and 108.6 feet on the street, with easterly and southerly lines of 100 feet. It contains about fifty suites and was bought by the present sellers from the Dalriada Realty Company, representing Julius Fleischmann, Brown, Wheelock-Harris, Vought & Co. were the brokers.

Nathan Wilson purchased the northwest corner of Convent Avenue and 147th Street, a 6½-story elevator apartment, from the Reiwall Realty Company, Ellen A. Stewart, President. It has a frontage of 99.11 feet on the avenue and 100 feet on the street. The structure was originally built for a cooperative project and this is its first sale. It has an annual rental of $43,600 and was held at $300,000. H. Howard McNiele was the broker in the deal.

The Harlem block of six-story elevator apartments erected by Dr. Philip Meirowitz about ten years ago on the triangular area bounded by St. Nicholas and Manhattan Avenues, 122d and 123d Streets, facing Hancock Square, have changed ownership twice within the past few days. The property, valued at $1,250,000 and returning rentals of about $160,000 annually, was first sold by the Hancock Construction Company, Dr. Meirowitz, President, to I. Lewis, who immediately resold the houses to M. Rosenthal, operator.

The structures were known as Eldeligh Hall, Hartridge Court and the Cedarleigh, and numbered 630 and 640 Manhattan Avenue and 303 West 123d Street. They occupy a frontage of 201.10 feet on Manhattan Avenue, 237 feet on St. Nicholas Avenue, 224.2 feet on 122d Street and 100.3 feet on 123d Street.

The houses contain 275 families, being laid out in suites of two, three, four and five rooms. This is their first sale since erected. Wendell Buckley was the broker in the deal.

BUYS BIG BLOCK OF STOCK.

Clarence E. Tuttle Becomes Director of Pittsburgh & West Virginia.

Stockholders of the Pittsburgh & West Virginia Railway Company held their annual meeting in Pittsburgh yesterday, and it became known that Clarence E. Tuttle of the Tuttle Coal Corporation, which owns properties in Pennsylvania, had acquired a large block of the company's common stock during the past few weeks, in which the steadily advancing price of the stock on the New York Stock Exchange had given rise to rumors regarding a possible change in control.

It was not indicated how large an interest Mr. Tuttle had obtained other than that it was "substantial." Evidence was also supplied to that effect as Mr. Tuttle was elected to the Board of Directors in the place of A. L. Scheuer, who had resigned. Other Directors were re-elected and subsequently officers were re-elected.

Business Properties.

The six-story brick and stone loft building known as 237 and 239 Mercer Street has changed ownership.

The premises are located on the west side of Mercer Street, 100 feet south of West Third Street, and have a frontage of 50 feet and a depth of 100 feet. The premises were sold for the Harge Realty Corporation to a buyer for investment. McInerney-Klinck Realty Company were the brokers.

Otterbourg, Steindler & Houston have sold for Harry Matz the five-story loft building at 126 West Twenty-sixth Street, on a plot 25 by 100. The purchaser will make extensive alterations.

Operator Buys Seafield Arms.

A. H. Levy, operator, has purchased from the Geraldag Real Estate Corporation, M. Fitzgerald, President, the Seafield Arms, at the northwest corner of Broadway and 178th Street, a six-story elevator apartment house. The building has seven apartments on each floor and stores on the Broadway frontage.

The structure fronts 103 feet on Broadway by 145 feet in depth and accommodates forty-six families. The brokers were Vols & Mass, Lewis Fine, and Charles A. Berlin.

Resale on Eighth Avenue.

Louis H. Low and Charles W. Wynee, operators, have resold 165 Eighth Avenue, two and one-half story business building on plot 24 by 100, forty-seven feet north of Eighteenth Street, the upper portion of which at the present time is occupied by the local Democratic headquarters.

The purchaser, A. Levine, intends to renovate the building and occupy it for his own business. Goodman & Co. were the brokers who negotiated the resale.

A New Mortgage Firm.

Hewson, Wolfe & Co., Inc., comprising William L. Hewson and Allan L. Wolfe, have been organized with offices in the Bowery Savings Bank Building, where they will conduct a business in real estate mortgage loans. Mr. Hewson was formerly connected with William A. White & Sons and Lawrence, Blake & Jewell.

TENEMENT HOUSE DEALS.

Operator Buys and Sells Multi-Family Properties.

Journie Silverman, operator, purchased through Frederick Zittel & Sons from Robert A. Butler the five-story apartment, 50 by 100, at the northeast corner of Fort Washington Avenue and 177th Street, accommodating three families on a floor. It has an annual rental of $15,000 and was held at $105,000. Mr. Silverman sold through the Ruland & Benjamin Company to the 1,324 Bryant Avenue Corporation the five-story building at 4 East 113th Street, 25 by 100, renting for $5,000 and held at $30,000; also sold through Samuel Kaplan the six-story apartment, 50 by 85, at 1,263 and 1,265 Fifth Avenue, with an annual rental of $18,000, and held at $110,000. He also sold through Irving Wolf to the S. L. K. Realty Company the northeast corner of Audubon Avenue and 182d Street, a five-story apartment with stores, 70 by 80, renting for $21,900 and held at $130,000.

The estate of Herman Wendt sold the northeast corner of Broome and Mangin Streets, a six-story tenement with six stores, 50 by 75 feet, F. A. Holly was the broker.

Shaw, Rockwell & Sanford sold for Theodore Brinckerhoff, Loretta Van O. Lands and Mabel Cafferty 2,453 Second Avenue, a six-story triple flat, 25 by 67 by 108, to an operator.

Jacob Subin sold to Jacob Blackner to Joseph Baming 73 West 118th Street, a five-story flat, 20 by 100.

PLAN PRODUCE CENTRE.

Washington Street Block Front in $1,000,000 Project.

The Fox-Gelberg Holding Company, Inc., has purchased the entire block fronting on the easterly side of Washington Street, between Gansevoort and Little West Twelfth Streets, having a frontage of 250 feet and a depth of about 140 feet on Little West Twelfth Street, including buildings 71-73 Gansevoort Street.

The property has recently been sold by the Astor estate. The present owners, upon the expiration of the present term of the present leases, will erect a ten-story concrete building having a complete refrigerating plant, offices and stores.

This building, upon its completion, will be the home of several prominent fruit growers and produce dealers' associations as well as several meat packing concerns.

The present purchasers paid close to $700,000 for the plot and, according to the approximate estimate of the new structure, will invest over $1,000,000.

Jamaica Dwelling Sold.

M. Morgenthau Jr. Co., Everett M. Seixas Co., Consolidated, have sold for the Langling Company, Henry Langling, President, to M. Kraushaar the three-story frame building, on a plot 40 by 100, on the northeast corner of Eastwood Place and Fourth Street, in the Borough of Queens, at Jamaica, Long Island.

William H. Stonebridge and Thomas Davis sold for E. Horowitz the four-story brick flat 1,498 Brook Avenue to Antonio Russo. It is on a lot 25 by 100 and contains two stores and six apartments.

Harry T. F. Johnson has sold for the Regas Realty Company, Joseph Sager, President, to a client for investment, the five-story apartment house 2,903 Grand Boulevard and Concourse, also 50 by 101. Same rents for $16,000 and was held at $110,000.

PRIVATE HOUSE SALES.

Former Delafield Residence on Park Avenue Sold.

The Fieldston estate sold 892 Park Avenue, southwest corner of Seventy-ninth Street, the former home of Matturn L. Delafield, to the Mandel-Ehrich Corporation. Douglas L. Elliman & Co. were the brokers.

The house occupies a plot 75 by 21 and was valued at $125,000. The buyers will remodel the property for dwelling purposes. The house at 890 was recently sold to a buyer for occupancy.

Bryan L. Kennelly, Inc., have sold at private sale, for Theresa Follmen and Willis M. Follmer, two four-story and basement American dwelling houses, altered into apartments, known as 311-319 Riverside Drive, near 103d Street. The property was held at $125,000.

The four-story and basement private house at 335 West Eighty-seventh Street was sold by Slawson & Hobbs to a buyer for occupancy.

James H. Crulkshank purchased from James Cochrane and Henry Cochrane 160 West 133d Street, a three-story private dwelling, size 17.8½ by 100, between Lenox and Seventh Avenues. Harry Sugarman was the broker.

Commercial Leases.

William A. White & Sons, with Brown, Wheelock, Harris, Vought & Co., leased for Prince & Whitely and the Exchange Court Corporation to John David the entire New Street side of the ground floor of 52 Broadway for a retail clothing and haberdashery store. The premises have a frontage of 50 feet on Exchange Place and 100 feet on New Street and the lease is for a term of years at an aggregate rental approximating $80,000.

Tankoos, Smith & Co., associated with Spotts & Starr, Inc., have leased for Maurice and Charles Gillette to a client for a term of twenty-one years at a rental aggregating approximately $970,000 the entire four-story and basement building 601 Eighth Avenue, northwest corner of Thirty-ninth Street, having a frontage of 25 feet on Eighth avenue and 50 feet on Thirty-ninth Street. Extensive alterations and improvements are contemplated whereby the entire ground floor will be modernized and subdivided and the second floor also improved with show windows and the upper floors arranged for small apartments.

Charles F. Noyes Company leased in the Hallenbeck-Hungerford Building, 80 Lafayette Street, the entire seventh floor to the Frank Shepard Company, publishers, for ten years from July 1, at an aggregate rental of about $200,000.

Frederick A. Goetze Buys Home.

Bryan L. Kennelly, Inc., has sold at private sale for the 64 East Sixty-sixth Street Corporation, C. C. Fiygare, President, a three-story frame cottage on the ocean front at Sea Bright, N. J., running to the Shrewsbury River, with dock and walls, situated between the residences of the late General Louis Fitzgerald and Dr. Gilman Wylie, for Frederick A. Goetze, Treasurer of Columbia College, for his Summer home.

The same brokers sold at private sale for William T. Smith a twenty-two-room house and twelve acres of land in Monmouth Beach, N. J., formerly the Beadleston property, to the Salvation Army; and also sold at private sale for Dr. J. Short, the two two-story frame Colonial houses, barns, garages and outhouses and ten and one-half acres of land on King Street on the dividing line between New York State and Greenwich, Conn., formerly known as the Schultz property. The property was held at $35,000.

Apartment Project Financed.

Arrangements were completed yesterday for the immediate erection of another large apartment building in the Broadway and Seventy-second Street zone. The Ludor Realty Corporation, of which Otto M. Kohn is the President and principal stockholder, will erect the building at 147-151 West Seventy-fourth Street. Mr. Kohn expects to have the apartments ready for occupancy before the close of the year.

S. W. Straus & Co. have purchased an issue of $360,000 first mortgage 6 per cent. serial coupon bonds of the Ludor Realty Corporation, maturing in from two to fifteen years. These bonds are a closed first mortgage on the land and building, appraised at $492,000, and are the direct obligation of the borrowing corporation. The building will be nine stories.

West Side Loft Buyer.

John H. Eagle is the buyer of the twelve-story loft building at 219 West Eighty-first street, valued at $1,600,000.

This building covers a plot 102.2 by 186.2 on the northeast corner of Broadway and Eighty-first street. It was sold by Benjamin Winter, who purchased the property three years ago from Booth & Flynn, Ltd., contractors.

The first mortgage of $1,082,000 is held by the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company. Spear & Co. were the brokers in this transaction.

Garment Center Plot Sold.

Another garment centre plot has been sold after an ownership of twenty-eight years. The property, 256, 258 and 260 West Thirty-eighth Street, three five-story flats, size 75 by 98.9, has been sold by Josephine A. Johnson of Orange, N. J., to Arthur rGeenbaum through Harry B. Cutner, broker.

Mrs. J. A. Johnson purchased the property from the original builder, who completed the buildings in 1898.

BROADWAY LOFT SOLD.

Jeweler Buys Twenty-First Street Corner, Valued at $1,000,000.

Purchase was made yesterday of a loft loft building on Broadway, valued at $1,000,000, and in part payment the buyer gave a block of lots in the Harlem section. The deal involved the southeast corner of Broadway and Twenty-first Street, improved with a sixteen-story loft building, which was sold by Frederick Brown, the operator, to August Oppenheimer, a jeweler, who is President of the Fairmile Realty Company. Mr. Brown acquired the property several months ago.

The building was sold subject to mortgages which total $375,000. The building has a frontage of 96.1 feet on Broadway and 70.5 feet on Twenty-first Street. The eleven lots fronting on Macomb's Place, between 153d and 154th Street, were taken in part payment for the loft building. They have a frontage of 225 feet on Macomb's Place, 40 feet on 153d Street and 195 feet on 154th Street. Mr. Oppenheimer is understood to have bought the Broadway loft as an investment. The total income of the building is $102,820 a year. Ernest Tribelhorn was the broker in the deal.

OPERATORS BUY LOFT.

Estates Dispose of Holding on Lower Broadway.

Meister Builders, Inc., purchased from the estates of A. M. Benheim, John Rogers, Julius G. Miller and Arthur Wise the twelve-story loft building at 625 Broadway, extending through to Mercer Street. It covers a plot 34 by 200, located between Houston and Bleecker Streets. The property rents for more than $50,000 a year.

The broker in the transaction was G. I. G. Realty Company.

Del Sappenfield, Inc., broker, 125 West Seventy-second Street, sold for Carrie L. M. Greig to Hugo A. Moran a private dwelling, 30 West Eighty-fifth Street, size 21 by 100, four-story and basement, held at $38,000, and has leased same to a tenant to be conducted as a furnished room house business for a term of five years at a rental of $350 monthly.

Trading in Brooklyn.

Frederick W. Walker Jr. has resold the southeast corner of Third Street and Seventh Avenue. The property fronts ninety feet on Seventh Avenue, is composed of seven apartments and one store and has been held at $60,000. The purchaser will remodel the property in the near future.

J. Lacov resold for the Art Building Company, Inc., to Golding & Son, a plot 100 by 100 on the southwest corner of Coney Island Avenue and Avenue K. Golding & Son will immediately erect five stores with three rooms in rear and five rooms above. The property was held at $35,750.

I. Salsberg sold for A. Gold to M. Abner the corner one-family, eight-room house on plot 20 by 80 on the northwest corner of Fifty-fifth Street and Seventeenth Avenue, known as 5,424 Seventeenth Avenue, and sold for J. Wallis to M. Epstein the one-family seven-room house on plot 40 by 100 on the south side of Fifty-sixth Street, 136 feet east of Fifteenth Avenue, known as 1,523 Fifty-sixth Street.

$75,000 Loan Placed.

Lawrence, Bleke & Jewell have placed for the 217 West Eighty-third Street Company a first mortgage loan of $75,000 for a term of years with a savings bank on the three apartments 215, 217 and 219 West Eighty-third Street, on a plot 74.9 by 102.2.

GOETHALS QUITS POST IN CHESTER COMPANY

Resigns Presidency as Interests Divide on Proposal to Admit French and British Investors.

MONTREAL, May 7.—The Canadian and American interests in the Ottoman-American Development Company, which controls the Chester concession in Asia Minor, are divided over the question of British and French participation in the concession, according to C. A. Barnard, counsel for the Canadian interests.

Major Gen. George W. Goethals, U. S. A., retired, resigned as President of the company, Mr. Barnard said, in order to leave the Board of Directors free to decide the question. General Goethals, however, remained a Director of the company. There was no dispute between the Canadian and American interests, Mr. Barnard asserted today, and the question would be settled amicably by the Board of Directors.

"General Goethals and some of the other Directors were of the opinion that the magnitude of the concession was such that for political and financial reasons, if the concession was to be successful, British and French interests should be invited to join the American interests," he said.

Rear Admiral Colby E. Chester, U. S. N., retired, who secured the concession, was very strongly of the opinion, on the other hand, that American interests alone should handle the matter. General Goethals did not wish any conflict of opinion at the present time, so he retired from the Presidency of the company, although remaining on the board. He took that action in order to leave the board free to decide between the two opinions.

"The Canadian interests naturally agree with the views expressed by General Goethals, as it is manifest that if British and French interests were joined to the American interests the international difficulties would disappear." he said.

The Canadian interests are said to control about 10 per cent. of the Ottoman-American Development Company, which they purchased for $50,000. Their identity has never been revealed. Major B. R. Clayton-Kennedy, a Canadian, was a co-signer with a son of Admiral Chester recently at Angora of a convention made by the Turkish Government confirming certain sections of the concession.

SUE FOR FIREMAN'S DEATH.

Family of Lieutenant John J. Schopmeyer Asks $150,000 Damages.

The family of Lieutenant John J. Schopmeyer of the Fire Department, who was killed in the fire in the warehouse at 10-14 Jane Street last July, filed suit yesterday against the Manufacturers' Transit Company, lessee of the property, for $150,000 for his death on the ground of negligence. Thomas F. Doherty, a fireman who was hurt, sued for $25,000. The cases were brought in Bronx County but were transferred to New York yesterday by Justice Wasservogel because all the parties are in Manhattan.

A jury before Justice Gavegan gave a verdict for $50,000 in a suit of Louis Christian, a city fireman, against the Nelson Railway Company for injuries when the fire truck on which he was responding to an alarm at Lincoln Hospital in the Bronx on Jan. 13, 1921, was rammed by a one-man trolley car. He was in the hospital for five months.

Will Review Sage Estate Tax.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—The legality of estate tax deductions made by executors of the estate of Margaret Olivia Sage, in New York, will be reviewed by the Supreme Court. The executors contended that bequests made to charitable and educational institutions from the residue of the estate were not subject to the Federal estate tax, and the Federal court in New York City sustained that contention. The case presents a precedent affecting the validity of between $3,000,000 and $4,000,000 of taxes in other cases.

100 PICTURES AT $250 EACH.

Grand Central Galleries Opens Its First Special Sale.

Yesterday was the first day of the Grand Central Art Galleries first special sale, 100 pictures shown in one gallery at the special price of $250 each, and by 3 P. M. five pictures had been sold, one animal picture, two landscapes, one marine and one flower painting. The sale continues through Thursday. The special sale pictures are an interesting lot by well-known artists.

Hobart Nichols has a landscape, Murray Bewley a couple of charming heads, E. I. Couse a painting with sheep, Waugh a vivid marine, Chauncey Ryder a landscape, John Sloan one of his Mexican paintings, Jerome Myers a nice little east side picture, Potthast a landscape and a gay little bathing scene, &c. Several of the artists have more than one picture.

There have been many sales of larger and more important works during the four weeks since the gallery has been open with its exhibition of the work of American artists. The Metropolitan Museum of Art has made three purchases of sculpture—an important piece a couple of feet high, "Diana," by Edward McCartan; "Philomea," by John Gregory, and a "Siavic Dance," by Harriet Frismuth. President Charles C. Glover of the Corcoran Art Gallery, Washington, D. C., has purchased for his private collection a snow scene by Elmer Schofield for $3,500. Other pictures have sold for as high prices.

Among the sculptors and painters whose work has been sold—some of them selling more than one piece—since the galleries have been opened are: Painters—Elliott Daingerfield, Helen M. Turner, Murray P. Bewley, Charles M. Hawthorne, Eugene F. Savage, Frederic M. Grant, Elbert Jerell, Chauncey F. Ryder, Anna L. Fisher, Joseph Pennell, Guy Wiggins, Edmund Greacen, W. Elmer Schofield, F. C. Frieseke, Cecilia Beaux, Bronzes by Laura Gardin Fraser, Malvina Hoffman, Bessie Potter Vonnoh, John Gregory, Herbert Adams, Frederick MacMonnies, Chester Beach, Mario Korbel, Harriet Frismuth, Edward McCartan, Anna Vaughn Hyatt, Lucy Perkins Ripley, Attilio Piccirilli.

Work is going on on the new galleries at the rear of those now open, and the exhibition space will be increased three-fold and the number of galleries from seven to twenty.

Since the opening of the galleries a reception with refreshments has been given to the red cap porters in the Terminal Station Building to familiarize them with the location of the galleries that they might be able to direct travelers. There has been a continued good attendance. The galleries are open from 9 A. M. to 6 P. M.

SLEUTHS PLAN RADIO USE.

Fingerprinting of Everybody Also Urged at Convention.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, May 7.—Use of the radio in private detective service to insure the quick apprehension of criminals, extension of the fingerprint system and the use of electrical apparatus by which a suspect's nerves will betray his guilt, are among the topics under discussion at the second annual convention of the International Secret Service Association at the Hotel Breakers.

Elimination of the bogus detective and the standardization of charges for investigation so that such work may be done in a distant city at a cost no more than at home, are also aims of the sleuths who are seeking to elevate their profession and perfect their work.

Delegates from all over the country are present as well as several foreign members. Leon Leoni of Paris is a scheduled speaker tomorrow. He was the man who arrested Landrau, the French "Bluebeard." A. L. Dunlap, head of one of the principal fingerprint schools, will speak on fingerprints. The effort to have everybody fingerprinted and the results recorded at Washington is one of the aims of the association. This is not only for the detection of criminals, but for identification of missing persons and kidnapped children as well.

FIRST EDITION 'ELEGY' BRINGS $2,800 HERE

Copy of Gray's Poem Printed in 1751 Goes to Gabriel Wells at Auction Netting $12,547.25.

A copy of the rare first edition of Thomas Gray's "An Elegy Written in a Country Churchyard," brought $2,800 yesterday at the sale in the Anderson Galleries of books and autographs from the libraries of Thomas J. Keogh of American Falls, Idaho; the estate of the late Daniel Paine Griswold of Lenox, Mass., and the estate of the late Grace Wilkes of New York City. After spirited bidding the poem went to Gabriel Wells.

The first issue of the poem was printed in London in 1751. This edition has the word "hidden" instead of "kindred" spirit in the fourth line of page ten.

Gabriel Wells also purchased for $830 one of the other high priced items of the day. Charles Dickens's "A Child's History of England." This was a presentation copy from the author, with an autograph inscription in each of the three volumes, "Grace and Harriet Wilkes, from their affectionate friend, Charles Dickens, Tenth February, 1854."

Twenty-nine mezzotints from pictures painted by John Constable, engraved by David Lucas, were bought on order for $570. Brentano's paid $475 for a presentation copy of the first issue of the first edition of Charles Dickens's "American Notes." On the half title of volume one is the autograph inscription, "David Colden, Esquire, from his friend, Charles Dickens, Ninteenth October, 1842." Mrs. C. Millhiser gave $630 for a French illuminated manuscript of the fifteenth century, "Horae ad usum Romanum."

This the first session of the sale, brought in $12,547.25. The second and final session will be held this afternoon.

SIX IN ARMY LAUNCH MISSING IN GULF

Cutters From Key West Will Search for the Q-15; Caught in Heavy Seas.

KEY WEST, Fla., May 7.—The sixty-two-foot motor launch Q-15 of the United States Army, with a crew of six on board, has not been heard from since 4 o'clock Saturday morning, when she was seen in a strong gale in latitude 26.55, longitude 86.40. This was made known here today on the arrival of the army boat General Frank M. Coxe.

The Coast Guard cutters Saukee and Cossack prepared to go in search of the missing boat. The General Frank M. Coxe, Captain E. K. White in command, was en route from New Orleans to Panama.

The list of men aboard the missing vessel is not available here.

MRS. TOWNER RESIGNS.

Mrs. Bird Succeeds Her in Federation of Womne's Clubs.

ATLANTA, Ga., May 7.—Mrs. Charles Sumner Bird of Boston was elected to head the Department of International Relations for the General Federation of Woman's Clubs at a meeting of the federation's Board of Directors here today. She succeeds Mrs. Horace Mann Towner, resigned. The Directors' meeting preceded the opening of the mid-biennial council of the federation here tonight.

Mrs. Towner's resignation was due to the fact that her husband has been appointed Governor for Porto Rico. Others nominated for the place, it was stated, included Mrs. Charles Stockton of New Jersey.

MADISON AV. (near 86th St.)—Three-story dwelling; suitable for alterations in October; suitable for retail business of almost any kind. Owner, William D. Kilpatrick, 149 Broadway.

HOW the prophets of 1919 fell, and great was the fall thereof. In 1919, when prohibition began to loom up the wail of distress which filled the air anent the supposed effects of prohibition on realty was vociferous and heartrending. store rents went to smash and ten thousand (count 'em, 10,000) vacant stores were to be the result of the shoe dealer, butcher, baker, clothier, grocer and other retailers getting the seven hundred million dollars which annually went to the saloons; prohibition came and store rents went to smash to the tune of 100% to 300% above the saloon rents. Those 10,000 vacant stores—where, oh where, are they? King David said in his haste, "All men are liars." If he had known the anti-prohibition realty prophets he would have said it at his leisure. William Douglas Kilpatrick, 149 Broadway.

MALE HELP WANTED. Salesmen.

SALESMEN.

If you are purposefully seeking a real business future and know that you are not now on the right track, this advertisement will have a very pertinent interest for you.

I do not know the specific conditions responsible for your reading this column. I do not know the extent of your business success, but if you have a successful selling record, or even if you have a sincere ambition to take up sales work, I can show you an opportunity which is rarely matched in business today. When you know what it is you will need nobody to tell you that it is a very unusual business opening.

All I want is a man with a sales personality, with sincere ambition, with a genius for work and enough business experience to be able to appreciate a really unusual situation when he sees it.

If you fit that picture, come in and attack your problems against mine. If you have the qualities which this connection requires, I am pretty sure that I will be able to show you the kind of personal opportunity for which you, like every executive in this organization today, have been looking for for years. It is the cleanest and soundest financing situation that I have ever seen. It will tell you the remarkable success that other men have made here and the attractive commissions which are attainable.

Please understand that I have a career—not a job—to offer. When you come in I want to feel that you came with that viewpoint. On that basis let us get acquainted and have an unhurried time together. Write for appointment to M 525 Times.

FULL GROWN MEN IN BOYS' JOBS.

Between the ages of 28 and 35 salesmen find themselves. They begin to think in bigger figures; they recognize opportunity where they never before saw it; they want and are entitled to more money.

But many of these men go along for years in jobs too small for them.

We are looking for a man of this better type to sell first mortgage bonds. These are the fastest growing form of security known, as well as one of the safest. The opportunity to build a future here will positively be limited only by the ability of the man himself. Remuneration is on a salary-plus-commission basis.

If you feel that you are beginning to arrive and if your character is 100% sound, we would like to have a confidential talk with you. We are not easily satisfied, but we have something better than a "job" for our kind of men. Telephone to Mr. Loveloy for an appointment.

SALVATION ARMY GETS GOULD GIFT

$10,000 Given as Unrestricted Contribution to Activities in New York.

IN HOME SERVICE APPEAL

Wall Street Brokers as Newsboys Sell "War Cry" to Aid Drive for $500,000.

The largest single contribution received thus far for the 1923 Home Service appeal of the Salvation Army came yesterday as a check for $10,000 from Edwin Gould. Mr. Gould sent a letter with the check, describing his gift as "an unrestricted contribution," giving the Salvation Army the liberty to apply the amount to whatever branch of its New York activities that needed the money most.

The letter was received by Colonel Margaret Bovill, head of the Women's Social Department of the Salvation Army in the Eastern territory of the United States. Mr. Gould has been particularly interested in Colonel Bovill's department because it includes the work among children. This department has jurisdiction over the Infants' Hospital on Herkimer Street, Brooklyn, and several children's activities in Manhattan, including the Social Centre at 94 Cherry Street.

Henry W. Taft, General Chairman of the Campaign Committee, has called a meeting of the Executive Committee to be held at a luncheon at the Lawyers' Club today, when a full report of the progress of the $500,000 appeal will be submitted. The committee will be addressed by Commissional Thomas Estill, head of the Salvation Army in the Eastern territory of the United States.

One of the most unusual features of the campaign occurred yesterday when a group of members of the Curb market, headed by Cameron Bialkie, invaded the financial district as newsboys. Accompanied by their stenographers, who acted as "sandwich men," displaying signs advertising the campaign, the brokers sold copies of The War Cry, the Salvation Army publication, at fancy prices.

The enterprise brought in a considerable amount of money. The brokers who took part in the selling expedition included, in addition to Mr. Blaikie, John Dore, Francis Dickson, Albert Fisarra, Mortimer Landsberg, Edward Haggerty, E. H. Whiting, William P. Hoffman, William Steinhardt, John L. Morgenthau, George Perry, H. Low, A. Low, Thomas Nesbit, Leonard J. Dunkley, Ernest F. Menken, Samuel Feinstein, Joseph Shuman, Frank Bennett, George Hooley and Bertran Knolhof.

THE PUBLIC SHOULD KNOW THESE FACTS

IT is important to know that mere brushing the teeth with a soapy dentifrice will no more remove the "film" from teeth than soap and water will wash paint off a wall. Soap stiffens "film."

It is vital to know that any dentifrice containing gritty abrasives is ruinous to the tooth-enamel, perhaps even more than "acid mouth" or "film." "Grit" wears down precious tooth enamel.

It is good to know that there is one dentifrice, Prophylactic Tooth Powder, that removes the "film" and corrects "acid mouth"—harmlessly—literally a 2-purpose dentifrice.

It is well to remember that Prophylactic Tooth Powder does not contain any abrasives—and that its formula is published for all the world to see and verify.

Try Prophylactic Tooth Powder. Have clean, white, "film-free" teeth, and an alkaline mouth, safely, harmlessly.

Schieffelin & Company, 170 William Street, New York City

PROPHYLACTIC TOOTH POWDER
"The 2-Purpose Dentifrice"

Ask your Dentist about this formula

Calcium Carbonate, Bicarbonate of Soda, Potassium Bisulphate, Saccharine, Sodium Oleate, Flavoring Agents

The 2-Purpose Formula, first, Removes the "Film," secondly, Prevents "Acid Mouth"—and it does both harmlessly. Your druggist can supply you with Prophylactic Tooth Powder.

Laboratory of Schieffelin & Co. St. Anns Ave. & 133d Street, New York.

Gentlemen: Please send me your generous Sample Can of PROPHYLACTIC TOOTH POWDER. I enclose 10c. (stamps or currency) to cover cost of packing, mailing, etc.

"For men who want to know why"

I KNOW I am safe in saying that most men prefer a mild cigar. I would hold this opinion even if I were not a cigar manufacturer. And there could be no better proof of its correctness than the universal call for La Palinas from every town and city in this country.

There is no question about the mildness of La Palina, whether you buy it next week, next month or next year. Tobacco crop conditions never affect its flavor—for many years it has been the same—it always will be the same.

The mild, full-bodied flavor of La Palina is the result of an exclusive combination of fine imported tobacco. I keep on hand, in advance of manufacturing requirements, more than three and one-half million dollars' worth of this tobacco. It is cured and tested and the proper combination made in advance. The varying strengths and flavors of crops of different years are blended in exactly the proportions that produce the one flavor you recognize as La Palina.

No matter where or when you buy it, La Palina is the same—a full-bodied, satisfying, mild cigar.
